Publisher's Note

The following appendices not forming part of the original work have been included in this volume.

I. Seven Sleepers
II. Identification of Zul-Qarnain
III. Historicity of Hāmān
IV. Ukht-u-Haroon
V. Was Muhammad Literate?

This liberty has been taken by the publishers, first, as the late author had himself included a number of appendices, being the writings of other scholars, in order to elucidate his notes, and, secondly, since the subject matter dealt with in each of the above appendices is important enough to require more light to be shed on it for the benefit of the readers.

PART XV

Sarah Bani Isrā'īl

The Children of Isrā'īl. XVII

(Makkan, 12 Sections and 111 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. Hallowed be He! Who translated His bondman in a night from the Sacred Mosque to the Further Mosque, the environs of which We have blessed, that We might show him of Our signs. Verily He! He is the Hearer, the Beholder.

2. And We gave Mūsā the Book and made it a guidance to the Children of Isrā'īl: take not beside Me a guardian.

3. O progeny of those whom We bore with Nūh! verily he was a bondman grateful.

1. ——-the Mighty, the Glorious——

2. i.e., the holy Prophet. See P. I. n. 98.

3. The word اسْرَىٰ itself denotes a night journey. ليلة is added to emphasize the miraculous nature of the act—the colossal distance being covered in a fraction of a single night. ليلة is here used instead of ليلة because when they say the meaning generally is, he occupied the whole night in journeying.’ (LL).

4. (at Makka).

5. (at Jerusalem; from whence he was carried through the seven heavens to the presence of God, and brought back again to Makkah the same night). The details of this ascension are to be found in the Ahādis of the Prophet abundantly.
Asin, the Madrid professor of Arabic, has traced the great influence this Islamic literature had on Dante and other Christians of the Middle Ages. "Embellished by later accretions, this miraculous trip still forms a favourite theme in mystic circles in Persia and Turkey, and a Spanish scholar considers it the original source of Dante's Divine Comedy (Hitti, op. cit., p. 114). See also E1. III. p. 567. أَكْبَرُ properly denotes the site, not the building, of a mosque; hence there arises no question of the existence or not of the actual Temple at the time. It is called 'furthest' because it was at the time farthest place of the worship of one God from Makka.

6. (both in a spiritual and in a material sense). The country of Canaan was not only the homeland of several prophets but also a land 'flowing with milk and honey.' 'The barren rocky slopes that confront us today, carry traces of once having been covered with vines and olive-trees; with oaks and acacias, with fig-trees and flowers.' (Marston, The Bible is True, p. 35).

7. (with his bodily eyes).

8. (and wonder). The well-known مَيْرَة or Ascension of the Prophet is generally believed to be corporeal; but even allowing with some that it was merely a vision, does the reducing of a prophet's immediate experience to a vision detract in the least from its reality or its authority?

9. (and none is His co-partner in these attributes).

10. 'I am the Lord thy God ... Thou shalt have no other gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image ... Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God.' (Ex. 20: 2-5) 'And the Lord hath sent unto you all his servants the prophets ... They said: ... And go not after other gods to serve them, and to worship them, and provoke me not to anger with the works of your hands.' (Je. 25: 4-6).

11. (in the ark). The descendants of the survivors of the great deluge had all the more reason to be grateful to the Almighty.
And We decreed for the Children of Isra"l in the Book: ‘You shall surely commit evil twice in the land and you shall rise very high.’

Then when the promise came for the first of the two, We raised against you bondmen of Ours endued with great violence, so they entered the dwellings; and it was a promise fulfilled.

Thereafter We gave you a return of victory over them and We supported you with riches and children, and We made you a numerous concourse.

If you will do well you do well for yourselves; and if you will do evil, you shall sin against your own selves. Then when the second promise came, We raised up a people that they may disgrace your faces and may enter the Mosque even as they entered it the first time, and that they may destroy with utter destruction whatsoever may fall under their power.

Perchance your Lord may have yet mercy on you, and if you still revert, We will revert likewise. And We have appointed Hell a prison for the infidels.

Verily this Qur’an guides unto that path which is straightest and bears glad tidings to the believers who work righteous deeds that theirs shall be a great wage.
16. (in rebellion, and will sin against God and man). The Book of Jeremiah in the Bible is full of forebodings consequent on the rebellious disposition of the Jews and their deeds of impiety. 'The followers of Nebuchadnezzar massacred the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the priests and the people, old and young, women and children who were attending school, even babies in the cradle. The feast of blood at last shocked even the leader of the hostile heathens, who ordered a stay of this wholesale murder.' (Polano. op. cit., p. 320) The rabbis have assigned various causes for the Babylonian exile. 'Some authorities mention general unworthiness; others give specific sins, as idolatry, licentiousness, and bloodshed, incontinency in the drinking of wine, too great indulgence to one another and failure to reprove those who sinned ... and neglecting the study of the Torah.' (JE. III. p. 566).

17. (judgments to be executed).

18. (O Jews!).

19. (as God's instruments in carrying out His wrath). In the Bible also the epithet 'my servant' is applied to Nebuchadnezzar. (Je. 25: 9).

20. (against enemy). 'Nebuchadnezzar was most merciless toward the conquered people.' (JE. IX. p. 202) The Jewish king Zedekiah was seized while fleeing, his sons were slain before his eyes, and he himself was blinded.

21. (capturing, pillaging and murdering). 'And burned the house of the Lord, and the king's house; and all the houses of Jerusalem, and all the houses of the great men, burned he with fire: And all the army of the Chaldeans that were with the captain of the guard, brake down all the walls of Jerusalem round about.' (Je. 52: 13, 14).

22. (given through the prophet Jeremiah). 'And this whole land shall be a desolation, and an astonishment; and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years.' (Je. 25: 11).

23. (fully, and in every detail). 'Jerusalem was destroyed. The temple, palace and city buildings were burned, the walls broken down, the chief priest, Seraiah, and other leaders were put to death, and many people again carried off. The disaster became the great epoch-making event in Jewish history and literature.' (EBr. XIII. p. 48) For the Biblical account of the catastrophe see La. 2: 1-5.

24. (through a nation friendly to you). See Ez. 1: 1, 2. "is a turn to prevail against an opposing party; victory.' (LL).

25. i.e., We let you prosper for a long time after your return from Captivity about 520 B. C. As regards the property:—'This is the number of them: thirty charges of gold, a thousand chargers of silver, nine and twenty knives, thirty basins of gold, silver basins of a second sort four hundred and ten, and other vessels a thousand. All the vessels of gold and of silver were five thousand and four hundred. All these did Sheshbazz-zar bring up with them of the captivity that were brought up from Babylon unto Jerusalem.' (Ez. 1: 9-11) As regards their number:—'The whole congregation together was forty and two thousand three hundred and threescore, besides their servants and their maids, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred thirty and seven. (Ez. 2:64-65).

26. (multiplying you abundantly).

27. i.e., that evil will only recoil on yourselves. All this was announced to the Jews through their prophets.

28. (of the judgments to be executed). Cf. the NT:—'Behold, your house is left unto you desolate.' (Mt. 23:38) 'There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.' (Mt. 24:2) See also Mk. 13:2, Lk. 19:43, 44, 21:6, 20:24.

29. The reference is to the second destruction of the Temple, by the Romans under Titus in 70 C. E.

30. i.e., the Holy Temple at Jerusalem.

31. i.e., your enemies.

32. (under Nebuchadnezzar).

33. 'The raging flames, the infuriated soldiers, the groans of the wounded and the dying, all spoke with another voice. It was the judgment. The words of John the Baptist and of Jesus of Nazareth had come true. Thousands perished in the temple flames... When the wall fell their pride turned into helplessness and cowardice, and they sought to hide themselves in the subterranean passages. On the same day the Roman soldiers made their way through the Upper City, 'burning, plundering, and massacring.' (EBi. c. 2285) 'The slaughter within was even more dreadful than the spectacle from without. Men and women, old and young, insurgents and priests, those who fought and those who entreated mercy, were hewn down in indiscriminate carnage. The number of the slain exceeded that of the slayers. The legionaries had to clamber over heaps of dead to carry on the work of extermination.' (Milman, History of the Jews, II. p. 370) 'Titus crucified so many Jewish captives and fugitives during the siege of Jerusalem, that there was not sufficient room for the crosses nor sufficient crosses for the condemned.' (Klausner, Jesus of Nazareth, p. 349).

34. عَلَى, as uttered by God, is expressive of the certainty of an event. (LL).

35. (if you renounce your old ways of sin and rebellion, and come to believe in the Last Prophet of God).

36. (to your life of guilt and rebellion, refusing to acknowledge the holy Prophet of Islam).

37. (to Our judgment). As usual, the warning went unheeded. Dire consequence naturally followed soon, and the Arab Jews within a very few years were wiped out of existence.
10. And that those who do not believe in the Hereafter—for them We have prepared an afflictive torment.

SECTION 2

11. And man prays for evil as he should pray for good, and man is ever hasty.

12. And We have appointed the night and the day as two signs; then We blurring to the sign of the night and made the sign of the day illuminating that you may seek grace from your Lord, and that you may know the number of years and the reckoning; and everything We have detailed in full details.

13. And every man: We have fastened his actions round his neck, and We shall bring forth unto him on the Day of Judgement a book preferred him open.

14. Read thy book; suffices to-day thy soul against thee as a recocker.

15. Whoso is guided, it is only for himself that he is guided, and whoso strays it is only against his soul that he strays; and not one laden bears the load of another. And We do not chastise until We have raised a messenger.

38. (out of ignorance; mistaking evil for good).
39. (of Our providence and majesty). For 'night' and 'day' see P. XIII. (nn. 465, 466).
40. (by doing your business in the daylight).
41. (and other divisions of time, by the regular alteration of day and night).
42. (requisite to a perfect religion).
43. (in the Holy Qur'an).
44. (with Our infallible knowledge of who is going to be disobedient and who to be obedient).

45. (whether good or evil). \( \text{אָרְנָה} \) in addition to its well-known meaning of ‘a bird’, means the actions of a man, which are the cause of his happiness and misery, and which are, as it were, attached to his neck as a necklace. (LL).

46. (like a collar which he cannot get off). So are his actions inseparable from him; and it is they that make or mar a man’s fortune.

47. i.e., a scroll recording all his actions thereon.

48. i.e. to his own advantage.

49. i.e., to his own hurt.

50. This establishes and emphasizes once more the principle of personal responsibility, so completely violated and negated by the Jewish and Christian conceptions of ‘mediation’, ‘satisfaction’ and ‘atonement’. Curiously enough, in the early days of Pauline Christianity it was held that ‘Christ by His sufferings made a payment to Satan to have him relinquish his might to man.’ (CD. p. 77).

51. (of any nation or people).

52. (to preach and to warn).
16. (و اذ ا...) And when We intend that We shall destroy a town\textsuperscript{53} We command its affluent inhabitants,\textsuperscript{64} then they transgress therein, and thus the word\textsuperscript{65} is justified on them. Then We annihilate it completely.

17. (وكم ...) And many a generation We have destroyed after Nuh. And suffices thy Lord, the Aware, the Beholder,\textsuperscript{66} for the offences of His bondmen.

18. (من ...) Who so intends the quick-passing world\textsuperscript{59} We hasten to him\textsuperscript{60} therein whatever We please\textsuperscript{68} to whom We intend; thereafter We shall appoint for him Hell where he shall roast, reproved, damned.\textsuperscript{69}

19. (و من ...) And whoso intends the Hereafter and strives therefor with due striving while he is a believer,\textsuperscript{60} then those! their striving shall be appreciated.

20. (كلا ...) To each—these and those—We extend the bestowal of thy Lord,\textsuperscript{61} and the bestowal of thy Lord is never restrained.

21. (انظر ...) See thou! how We have preferred some of them over some others;\textsuperscript{62} and surely the Hereafter is greater in degrees and greater in preference.\textsuperscript{63}

22. (لا تجعل ...) Set not up along with Allah another god, lest you sit down reproved, renounced.

\textsuperscript{53} (in consequence of its persistent law-breaking).
\textsuperscript{54} (to obey Our message and messengers).
\textsuperscript{55} (of requital) i.e., the sentence; the judgment.
\textsuperscript{56} (needing no other witnesses).
\textsuperscript{57} (certainly not as a mark of Our approval, but only in accordance with Our universal Plan).
\textsuperscript{58} i.e., We allow him lavishly whatever He desires of the luxuries of this world.
\textsuperscript{59} (so affluence in this world is no criterion of the approval and goodwill of God).
\textsuperscript{60} (as right conduct must imply right belief).
\textsuperscript{61} (so far as the blessings of this world are concerned).
\textsuperscript{62} (in the matter of worldly gifts, with no distinction of the godly and the ungodly). So that affluence is no criterion of one's nearness to God.
\textsuperscript{63} (so the Hereafter alone is worth striving after).
SECTION 3

23. (وَقَضَيْنِ . . . كِرَامًا) And thy Lord has decreed that you should worship none but Him,\(^64\) and show kindness\(^65\) to parents; and if either of them or both of them attain old age\(^66\) with thee,\(^67\) say not unto them: pooh!\(^68\) and browbeat them not,\(^69\) and speak to them a respectful speech.\(^70\)

24. (وَبَاخْصِ . . . صِفِّا) And lower unto them the wing of meekness out of mercy,\(^71\) and say: Lord! have mercy on the twain as they brought me up when young.\(^72\)

25. (رَبِّكَ . . . غُفُورًا) Your Lord is the Best Knower of what is in your souls;\(^73\) if you have been righteous,\(^74\) then He is unto thee penitent,\(^75\) Forgiving.

26. (وَأَطَّلِبْ . . . تُبِيرَ) And give thou\(^76\) to the kinsman his due,\(^77\) and also to the needy and wayfarer; and squander not in squandering.

27. (أَنَّ . . . كَنوُرًا) Truly the squanderers are the brethren of the devils,\(^78\) and the Devil is ever ungrateful to his Lord.

28. (وَإِمَّا . . . مِسْؤُورًا) And if thou turnest away\(^79\) from them\(^80\) awaiting a mercy from thy Lord which thou hopest,\(^81\) then speak to them a gentle word.

29. (وَلاَ جُعِلِ . . . عِسوُرًا) Let not your hand be chained to your neck, nor stretch it forth to its extremity,\(^82\) lest you sit down reproached, improvised.

30. (إِنَّ . . . إِصْبُرًا) Verily thy Lord extends the provision\(^83\) for whom He will, and measures it out;\(^84\) He is in respect of His creatures Aware, Beholder.

64. See n. 10 above.
65. See P. V. n. 101
66. —— an age hard to please ——
67. i. e., in thy life, O reader!
68. (for any other disrespectful word), i. e., do not deem anything of their affairs burdensome, nor be rough or coarse to them. اِنْفِقْ in its primary sense, denotes one's blowing at a thing that falls upon him, such as dust or ashes; . . . or rather it is a word imitative of a sound, like ugh in English, both in sound and meaning, and in meaning like our interjection feh and fough denoting vexation, or distress of mind, or disgust.' (LL).

69. All this required some emphasis in view of the atrocious practices current in many communities, specially the ‘abandonment’ of aged parents.

70. Alongside this ‘old-fashioned’ morality, observe the comments of a thoughtful Westerner on the modern up-to-date ways of the Western families. ‘In a society which is essentially technological and is being organized, at a rapidly increasing rate, on purely mechanical lines the behaviour of an individual son towards his father is of no great social importance . . . . Consequently, the European father daily loses more and more authority over his son, and the son loses respect for his father. Their mutual relations are being quickly overruled and—for all practical purposes—annihilated by a mechanized society which has a tendency to abolish the privileges of an individual over another, and—in the logical development of this idea—also the principles created by family relationship.’ (Leopold Asad, Islam at the Crossroads, pp. 47-48).

71. i.e., behave towards them in a humble and respectful way.

72. This implies that the rearing of infants is primarily the business of the parents, and not of the State. Apart from the horrors of infanticide, the world has also known, even in some of the most famous civilization of the past and with the direct blessings of sages and philosophers, the custom of ‘exposure’. Boys and girls, ‘exposed’ by their parents, were taken by the State, and ‘reared and fed like brute beasts for the vilest purposes of sensuality; so that a man might commit the grossest crimes unaware with one of his own children, and from these wretched human beings the State derived a shameful impost.’ (DCA. I. p. 18).

73. (so mere outward behaviour is not enough; inward attitude is the real thing).

74. (by habit, and uniformly obedient and respectful to the parents).

75. i.e., those who make amends for their occasional and accidental lapse.

76. (O reader!)

77. i.e., friendship and affection, and assistance in time of need.

78. i.e., like them in ingratitude. إخ signifies not only ‘a brother’, but also ‘an associate’, ‘a fellow’ and the like

يسعى في كل مشارك لغيره في القيلة أو في الدين أو في旋转 أو في معاملة أو في مودة و في غير ذلك من الممارسات
(Rgh). See also P. XVI. n. 129.

79. (owing to thy inability, O reader!).

80. i.e., from those who are seeking pecuniary help from thee.

81. i.e., if you do not on the occasion possess the wherewithal with which to help others and are deferring your charity till God shall put you in easier circumstances.

82. i.e., do not be either niggardly or profuse, but observe the mean between the two extremes.

83. i.e., makes it ample and generous.

84. (for whomsoever He will), i.e., makes it adapted to the circumstance.
SECTION 4

31. (ولا ... كريما) Kill not your offspring for fear of want:86 We provide for them86 and for yourselves; their killing is a great crime.87

32. (ولا ... سيلًا) And do not approach adultery:88 it is ever an abomination89 and vile as a pathway.90

33. (ولا ... مصرا) And do not kill anyone whom Allah has forbidden91 except by right,92 and whoever is killed wrongfully, We have surely given his next-of-kin authority,93 so let him not exceed in killing;94 verily he is ever succoured.95

34. (ولا ... مستولا) And do not approach the substance of an orphan save with what is best,96 until he reaches the age of strength. And fulfil the covenant;97 verily the covenant shall be questioned about.98

35. (روا ... تاريلا) And give full measures when you measure, and weigh with an even balance,99 that is good,100 and the best interpretation.101

36. (ولا ... مستولا) And do not thou go after that of which thou hast no knowledge102 verily the hearing and the sight and the hearts, each of them shall be questioned about.

85. In the modern craze of ‘birth-control’ or contraception, the same fallacious economic argument that so utterly misled the ancients, has re-emerged and is having a leading part. See P. VIII. nn. 143, 212, 213.

86. See P. VIII. nn. 212, 213.

87. For this reform at least the credit, even according to the detractors of the holy Prophet, belongs to him. ‘As a moral reformer Muhammad has to his credit the abolition of infanticide.’ (ERE. VIII, p. 876). It was due to his efforts that the custom so prevalent among many nations both in the East and West . . . in Arabia came to an end (Robert, op. cit., p. 97).

88. The Arabic word زنل is much more comprehensive than either ‘fornication’, which is restricted to the illicit sexual intercourse of ‘unmarried person’, or ‘adultery’ which also denotes ‘the sexual intercourse of two persons either of whom is married to a third person.” It denotes the sexual intercourse between any man and woman, whether married or not, who do not stand to each other in the relation of husband and wife. Note the very great importance attached by the Qur’ān to this crime. The words are not تَزْوَّ ک ‘commit not adultery’, but تَزْوَّ ک والم ‘approach not adultery’, or ‘go not nigh unto adultery’, thus impeding all the ways and paths that could lead to it. Compare this austere attitude of Islam with the sordid morality of the present-day West. ‘Sexual fidelity and discipline are quickly becoming a thing of the past in the modern West.’ (Leopold Asad, Islam at the Crossroads, p. 47). ‘Adultery ‘has become fashionable in both England and America during the past few years.’ (Scott, History of Prostitution, p. 226) ‘The old type prostitute who pranced about gaudily and drunkenly in the Strand, Leicester Square, Piccadilly, and Regent Street, is a thing of the past. . . . There has been a huge increase in promiscuity among men and an ever greater increase among women . . . . The results are that more and more every year is man turning to so-called girls of respectability in order to satisfy his sexual appetite’ (pp. 224-225). ‘Virginity among women is becoming something to sneer at.’ (225). ‘Where all are practising what is virtually prostitution there can be no such thing as prostitution’ (p. 228).

89. i. e., abominable in itself; impure and debasing for the soul. Islam condemns żinā, or promiscuous unchastity in any and every form outright, whereas it has flourished in all ‘civilized countries’, and even prostitution has been recognized by them subject only to regulation by law or by custom. ‘In Egypt, Phoenicia, Assyria, Chaldea, Canaan and Persia, the worship of Isis, Moloch, Baal, Astrate, Mylitta and other deities consisted of the most extravagant sensual orgies, and the temples were merely centres of vice. In Babylon some degree of prostitution appears to have been even compulsory and imposed upon all women in honour of the goddess Mylitta. In India the ancient connection between religion and prostitution still survives.’ (EBr. XVIII. p. 58).

90. i. e., conducive to many other sins and vices; cf extreme disruptive tendency; causing many diseases.

91. (to be slain).

92. i. e., except for a just and rightful cause.

93. (to demand full satisfaction).

94. i. e., he should not exceed the bounds of the Law by avenging the slain person’s blood on any other than the slayer.

95. (by the Law so long as he keeps himself within its bounds). If he carries the vengeance too far, then it is the other party which shall receive the protection and support of the Law.

96. i. e., except with the best of motives. See P. IV. n. 493; P. V. n. 542.

97. i. e., every engagement that you have entered into consistent with the Law.

98. Man is accountable for every engagement of his, big or small.

99. In short, observe the dictates of morality in every dealing of yours with men, whether commercial, legal or social.

100. i. e., proper in itself.

101. i. e., leading ultimately to the best of results.

102. (O reader!) i. e., entertain no such opinion as you have no good and strong reason to believe that it is true.
37. And do not thou walk on the earth struttingly; verily thou wilt not by any means rend the earth, nor canst thou attain the mountains in stature.
38. Each of these! their vice is to thy Lord ever detestable.
39. That is part of that wisdom which thy Lord has Revealed to thee, and set not up thou along with Allah another god, lest thou be cast into Hell reproved, damned.
40. Has then your Lord distinguished yourselves with sons and taken for Himself the females from amongst the angels? Verily you say a saying mighty.

SECTION 5

41. Assuredly We have propounded it variously in this Qur’an so that they might be admonished, but it adds only to their aversion.
42. Say thou: were there along with Him other gods, as they assert, then they would have brought a way to the Owner of the Throne.
43. Hallowed be He, and exalted be He above what they say—a great height!
44. There hallow Him the seven heavens and the earth and whatsoever is therein. And naught there is but hallows His praise, but you do not understand their hallowing. Verily He is ever Forbearing, Forgiving.

103. (O reader!) i. e., in a pompous and conceited manner.
104. i. e., the precepts.
105. (O Prophet!).
106. (O reader!).
107. (whom you highly esteem). The address here is to the pagans of Makka.
108. (as His daughters, and as goddesses). See P. V. 513.
109. (and so derogatory to Godhead). The blasphemy involved was twofold; first, the ascribing of any offspring to God, and secondly, the feminine nature of that offspring.
110. i. e., the subject of God's absolute purity and absolutely unity.
111. i. e., the polytheists.
112. (by the constant repetition and reiteration of the subject).
113. (O Prophet!).
114. i. e., the polytheists.
115. i. e., these minor gods, if endowed with power and will at all, would surely have endeavoured to contend with God, and would have asserted their independence or executed their own will.
116. (very much like the tiny little creatures).
117. This leaves no room for heaven-gods, earth-gods or any other minor gods. However strange it may sound to us, the fact remains that an earth-god and a heaven-god have found a distinguished place in the pantheon of the mythologies of Babylon, Egypt, India, Greece and Rome; and 'the ever-arching Heaven and the all-producing Earth' have also been conceived as 'a Father and a Mother of the world, whose offspring are the living creatures, men, and beasts and plants.' (PC. I, p. 322). See also P. VII. n. 226.
118. (so that He does not seize you with His vengeance immediately).
119. (so that He shall forgive you, if even now you repent and mend your ways).
And when thou recitest the Qur'ān, we set up between thee and those who do not believe in the Hereafter a curtain drawn down.

And we set up veils over their hearts lest they understand it, and in their ears heaviness; and when thou mentionest thy Lord alone in reciting the Qur'ān, they turn back as averters.

We are the Best Knower of that motive with which they listen to thee and whenever they counsel together in secret, when the wrong-doers say, you but follow a man enchanted.

See! how they propound similitudes for thee. They have strayed away and cannot find a way.

And they say: when we shall have become bones and fragments, shall we in sooth be raised as new creation?

(to the infidels, O Prophet!)

deliberately and of their choice).

Cf. the Bible:—'Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and see ye indeed, but perceive not. Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes; lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts, and convert, and be healed.' (Is. 6: 9, 10).

(negating the association of their gods and their intercession with Him).

So averse are they to the doctrine of monotheism!

i. e., of their motive.

(O Prophet!) i. e., their only motive is to make a fun of thee, instead of being instructed by thee.

(to any Muslims who may happen to be in their company).

Calling the Prophet a mad man or an enchanted person is not much different from attributing the staggering achievements of this 'most successful of all prophets and religious personalities' (EBr, XVI. p. 898. 11th Ed.) to epileptic fits and to auto-suggestion—if not to downright fraud.

129. i.e., calling thee now a poet and now a lunatic, now a soothsayer and now an enchanted one!

130. (far from the truth). Who are these 'they'? Obviously not only the Abu Lahabs and Abu Jahls of the past but also the Margoliouths and Torreys of the present day.

131. i.e., the pagans who denied Resurrection.

132. (bare of all flesh, in our graves).

133. i.e., and even broken, crumbled particles of those bones. رقَت is 'an old and decayed bone, or anything broken in pieces, or pounded.'

134. i.e., things far more removed from human life than the bones of a dead man.
or anything created of the things more remote\textsuperscript{135} in your breasts.\textsuperscript{136} Then they will say: who will restore us? Say: thou: He who created you the first time.\textsuperscript{137} Then they will wag their heads at thee,\textsuperscript{138} and say: when will it be? Say thou: perhaps it is nigh——

The Day whereon He will call you, and you will answer\textsuperscript{139} with His praise,\textsuperscript{140} and you will imagine\textsuperscript{141} that you had tarried but little.\textsuperscript{142}

\textbf{SECTION 6}

Tell thou My servants\textsuperscript{143} that they should say only what is best.\textsuperscript{144} Satan would stir up strife among them; Satan is to man ever an open foe.\textsuperscript{145}

Your Lord is the Best Knower of you,\textsuperscript{146} He will have mercy upon you if He wills,\textsuperscript{147} or He will chastise you if He wills.\textsuperscript{148} And We have not sent thee over them as a trustee.\textsuperscript{149}

And thy Lord is the Best Knower of those who are in the heavens and the earth.\textsuperscript{150} And assuredly We have preferred some prophets over some others,\textsuperscript{151} and We gave Da\textsuperscript{152}d a Scripture.\textsuperscript{153}

Say thou: call upon those whom you fancy\textsuperscript{154} beside Him; they are able neither to remove the distress from you nor to change it off.\textsuperscript{155}

Those whom they call upon\textsuperscript{156} seek access themselves to their Lord,\textsuperscript{157} striving which of them\textsuperscript{158} shall be the nearest;\textsuperscript{159} and they hope for His mercy and fear His chastisement;\textsuperscript{160} the chastisement of thy Lord is indeed ever to be guarded against.

\textsuperscript{135} (from capability to receive life). The phrase is equivalent to the saying: أو خلقنا عليك نعمتين من قبول الحياة (or created you two graces from the moment of receiving life).

\textsuperscript{136} (and yet it shall be raised up).

\textsuperscript{137} (is He less powerful now than He was then?)

\textsuperscript{138} (in denial and derision).

\textsuperscript{139} (the call).
140. (uttered automatically).
141. (in extreme consternation).
142. (in the world and the grave).
143. (faithful and loyal) i.e., the Muslims who were naturally incensed with the infidels.
144. (and kindliest, and not use harsh words, lest the infidels may be further estranged).
145. (taking pleasure in dividing mankind).
146. (all; knowing well the tendencies and dispositions of everyone).
147. (by guiding you aright).
148. i.e., if He so willeth in consonance with His universal Plan. He will keep you on the wrong track, and thus you will be led to eternal damnation.
149. (so coercing the infidels into submission is out of the question).
150. (of angels and mankind; and may choose whom He pleases for His messengership).
151. (in the past; so why should it be surprising that We have preferred thee over all of them?)
152. زُور without the definite article جل is ‘any writing or book, or any divine book.’
153. (to be gods).
154. (of that distress), i.e., they are able neither to free you from the trouble altogether nor even to mitigate it.
155. (and are not mere figments of imagination, such as nature-gods, but are real beings and good servants of God, such as angels, prophets and saints).
156. (by means of strict and rigid obedience to His laws and commandments). وسیلٌ is ‘a means of access, nearness, or intimacy.’
157. i.e., of those devoted worshippers of God.
158. (to their Lord).
159. (like all mortals; and so independently of Him, far from benefiting others, they cannot even benefit themselves, nor save themselves from harm).
58. Not a town is there but We are going to destroy it before the Day of Judgement, or to chastise it with a severe chastising; that is inscribed in the Book.

59. And nothing hinders Us from sending the signs except that the ancients belied them. And We gave to Thamūd a she-camel as an illumination, but they did her wrong. And We send not signs but to warn.

60. (Recall) when We said to thee: thy Lord has encompassed mankind. And We made the vision We showed thee but a temptation for man, and likewise the tree accursed in the Qur'ān. And We warn them, but it only increases their exorbitance greatly.

SECTION 7

61. (And recall) when We said to the angels: bow down before Adam. So they bowed, but Iblis did not; he said: shall I bow to one whom Thou has created of clay?

62. (Iblis) said: bethinkest Thou: this one whom Thou hast honoured above me? ——— if Thou deferrest me till the Day of Judgement, I will surely seize his progeny save a few.

160. (populated with infidels).
161. i.e., its inhabitants.
162. (in the Hereafter).
163. (of Our eternal decrees).
164. (to them, O Prophet!); i.e., special miracles; miracles specified by the pagans.
165. i.e., the pagans of former generations having the same mentality as you have, rejected similar miracles.
166. —— as a case in point ——
167. (wherewith to see clearly) Or ‘an eye-opener’. See P. VIII. n. 546
168. (instead of profiting by that miracle; and thus hastened the divine wrath).

169. i.e., as our final warning.

170. (by His all-comprehending knowledge; so He well knows beforehand whether a particular people would profit or not by a particular miracle).

171. (to find out who believes therein and who mocks thereat and rejects). 'The vision' may refer either to the miraculous experience of Ascension or to any other miraculous spiritual experience stoutly rejected and scoffed at by the pagans.

172. i.e., the tree called zaqqum, thorny and bearing excessively bitter fruit, springing from the bottom of the Hell. The pagans ridiculed the very idea of a tree growing in the heat and fire of the Hell. See P. XXIII. n. 168.

173. (by Our constant warnings).

175. (through sheer conceit).

176. (whereas I am made of fire—a superior material, as he thought).

177. (after he had been damned for his flagrant disobedience).

178. (entirely, and bring them under my sway).
Allah said: be thou gone; whosoever of them follows thee, Hell is your meed, an ample meed.

And unsettle them whosoever of them thou canst with thy voice, and summon against them thine horse and thy foot, share with them riches and children and make promise to them, and Satan promises not but to delude.

Over My bondmen thou hast no authority, and thy Lord suffices as a guardian.

Your Lord is He who speeds for you the ship in the sea that you may seek His grace; verily He is to you ever Merciful.

And when there touches you a distress on the sea, those you call upon fall away except He alone, then when He delivers you on the land you turn away, and man is ever ungrateful.

Are you then secure that He will not cause a side of land to swallow you up, or send over you a sand-storm, and then you will not find for yourselves a protector?

179. (by inspiring evil suggestions in their minds).
180. i.e., collect all thy forces against them; use every means in thy power to seduce them.
181. (all sorts of things).
182. The sentence is parenthetical.
183. This makes it clear once more that Satan in Islam is not a sort of Evil Deity. All through the Qur'an the message is that man himself acquires the habit of sin through his weakness. The devil is not endowed with any power at all, his influence being confined to suggestion and persuasion.
184. (in the case of those who trust in Him, and do not themselves readily submit to the viles of the devil).
185. (by trade and commerce, O mankind!).
186. (from Him, as before).
187. (as a punishment from Him). is 'A violent wind that raises the pebbles, or a wind that bears along the dust and pebbles'. (LL).
69. Or, are you secure that He will not send you back therein another time and send upon you a gale of wind and drown you for your having disbelieved, so that you will not find for yourselves an avenger against Us?

70. And assuredly We have honoured the Children of Adam, and have borne them on the land and the sea, and We have provided them with clean things, and We have preferred them with a preferment over many of them whom We have created.

SECTION 8

71. Remember the Day when We shall call all mankind with their record, then whoever will be given the book in his right hand— those will read their book, and they shall not be wronged a whit.

72. And whoever has been blind in this world will be blind in the Hereafter and far astray from the path.

73. And surely they had nearly tempted thee away from what We have Revealed to thee, that thou shouldest fabricate regarding Us something else, and then surely they would have taken thee as a friend!

74. And were it not that We had confirmed thee thou hadst almost leaned towards them a little.

75. In that case, We would have surely made thee taste the double of the torment of life and the double of the torment of death and then thou wouldest not find a helper against Us.

188. Or 'prosecutor', نيب is 'one who prosecutes, or sues, for a right, or due'. And the phrase signifies: 'Then ye shall not find for you any to sue us for the disallowing of what hath befallen you, nor for our averting it from you.' (I.I).

189. i.e., mankind. The obvious meaning is that man is a creature honoured and honourable, and this completely contradicts the Biblical attitude towards man: 'And it repented the Lord that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart," (Ge. 6: 6).

190. i.e., by peculiar privileges and endowments, not shared by other creatures. That is the true place of man in nature. In the language of modern anthropology, 'the great superiority of man's mental manifestations over those of all other animals is too patent to be called in question by any serious worker in the field of anthropology. Indeed, according to some eminent psychologists, the gap between them cannot be bridged over by the doctrine of organic evolution.' (ERE. I. p. 569).

'The attempt to minimize this remarkable disparity between man and brute has not met with much support from any class of investigators.' (ib).

191. (to judgment).

192. (of deeds). Or the phrase may mean:—'We shall call every batch of mankind with its leader.'

193. i.e., the register containing all his deeds

194. (with great joy and delight).

195. (to the ways of faith and rectitude).

196. (to the abode of peace and bliss).

197. ٖ٠ here is a contraction of ٖ٠. This ٖ٠ is called the lightened ٖ٠, and is usually without government (WGAL. p. 284).

198. (O Prophet!) Some of the pagans had pressed on the Prophet for certain privileges as the terms of their submission to Islam.

199. (in a special measure, and had already, as a prophet, made thee sinless).

200. *(in thy anxiety to win over those pagans to the cause of Islam), i.e., thou wouldst have inclined to grant them some small concessions; but as even this was derogatory to thy position as a sinless prophet, We prevented thee from this inclination even. 'Prophet's not inclining to them little or much is understood from ٖ٠ which requires this inference. (LL).*

201. —purely hypothetical—

202. (because of thy very high responsibility as a prophet).
76. And surely they had almost unsettled thee from the land that they might drive thee forth from hence. And in that case they would not have tarried after thee but a little while.

77. This was Our dispensation with those whom We sent before thee of Our messengers and thou wilt not find a change in this Our dispensation.

SECTION 9

78. Establish thou the prayer from the declination of the sun to the darkening of the night and the Recitation at the dawn; verily the Recitation at the dawn is ever borne witness to.

79. And of the night keep the vigil therein as an act of supererogation for thee; perchance thy Lord will raise thee up in a station Praised.

80. And say thou: Lord! cause me to enter a rightful entrance and cause to go forth a rightful outgoing, and appoint for me from before Thee a helpful authority.

81. And say thou: the truth is come and falsehood is vanished: verily falsehood is ever vanishing.

82. And We reveal by means of the Qur'an what is a healing and a mercy to the believers; and it only increases the ungodly in loss.

83. And when We show favour to man, he turns away and withdraws on his side; and when evil touches him, he is ever despairing.

203. (by their apparent solicitude). The Jews, envious as they were of the holy Prophet’s reception and stay in Madina, had advised him, seemingly in all sincerity, to emigrate to Syria, which, they said, had always been the land of the prophets.

204. i.e., if thou hadst actually departed from the city.
205. i.e., had the Prophet departed, the unbelieving citizens too would not have been left untouched for long. The Prophet's departure was sure to prove a precursor of Divine wrath on them.

206. i.e., swift destruction of a people after the forced departure of their prophet.

207. (O Prophet! and O reader!).

208. (from the meridian). This includes the two afternoon prayers, Zuhr in the early, and 'Asr in the late afternoon.

209. This covers the two evening prayers: Maghrib, immediately after the sunset, and 'Isha, after the full darkness of the night has set in.

210. This makes a total number of five obligatory prayers. Early Christianity had also 'five stated times of prayer.' (DCA. I. P. 794) The word ʿajl in the text means prayer, 'because it comprises recitation of the words of the Kur'ān. (LL).

211. (by the angelic host). The morning prayer is singled out and emphasized perhaps because of its special importance and because of the holiness of the hour. It is related in the Hadith that the guardian angels who are relieved at dawn bear special testimony to the observer of the morning prayer.

212. (O Prophet!).

213. (in the Hereafter). This 'praised station' or 'place of praise' is according to the Hadith the post of intercession on behalf of others assigned to the holy Prophet.

214. (at every stage of life, and when entering death).

215. (at every stage of life, and when rising at the Resurrection).

216. i.e., endowed with Thy succour.

217. (over the infidels).

218. (and is come to stay; has triumphed).

219. The triumphant progress of Islam not only exterminated idolatry from its hotbed, and banished Judaism from its stronghold, but its reactions on Christianity also have been far-reaching and profound. 'From its most glorious seats Christianity was for ever expelled: from Palestine, the scene of its most sacred recollections; from Asia Minor, that of its first churches; from Egypt, whence issued the great doctrine of Trinitarian orthodoxy; from Carthage, who imposed her belief on Europe.' (Draper, Intellectual Development of Europe, I, p. 332).

220. i.e., a cure for every moral, social and spiritual disease of man.

221. (who accept its rule and act upon it).

222. (since they oppose it and grow more and more obstinate in opposition).

223. (making his life comfortable and pleasant).

224. (from Us, ungratefully).

225. (failing to realize that every blessing comes from God).

226. (again failing to realize that God is man's sure and sole refuge).
84. Say thou: everyone works after his disposition,\textsuperscript{227} and your Lord is the Best Knower of him who is best guided on the path.\textsuperscript{228}

SECTION 10

85. And they\textsuperscript{229} ask thee regarding the spirit.\textsuperscript{228} Say thou: it is only the Command of my Lord,\textsuperscript{231} and of knowledge you have been given only a little.\textsuperscript{232}

86. And if We willed, We could surely take away what We have revealed to thee,\textsuperscript{233} then thou wilt not find against Us any protector.\textsuperscript{234}

87. Except as a mercy from the Lord, verily His grace unto thee is ever great.\textsuperscript{235}

88. Say thou: if the mankind and the jinn leagued together that they might produce the like of this Qur’ān, they could not produce its like,\textsuperscript{236} though one to the other were a backer.

89. And assuredly We have variously propounded all manner of similitudes\textsuperscript{237} in this Qur’ān for the mankind, yet most men have refused everything except disbelief.

90. And they\textsuperscript{238} say: we will by no means believe in thee until thou causest a fountain to gush forth for us from the earth;

\textsuperscript{227} i.e., according to the bent of his mind and his natural constitution.

\textsuperscript{228} (and also of him who is not so guided).

\textsuperscript{229} i.e., pagans prompted by the Jews.

\textsuperscript{230} i.e., that soul of man.

soul; so also is matter. (ERE, II. P. 60) The Greeks, and as their disciples, the early Christian Fathers, also shared the belief in the uncreated nature of the soul. Belief in the pre-existence of the soul prevailed widely among the Greeks from an early date, and at a later time became a theory of their philosophers. The influence of Greek thought in this respect was strongly felt in the early Christian Church, and is still apparent to some extent throughout the whole of Western civilization (ERE. II. X. p. 236).

232. (O mankind!) 'Little' as compared with Divine Knowledge. Man is endowed with as much knowledge only as he is capable of understanding and utilizing; and a knowledge of the nature of soul does not lie within his purview. Even the physical nature of life is not quite easy for modern science to explain, and this is admitted by the leading biologists themselves. See J. A. Thomson's Science of Life, p. 83. And a materialist philosopher has been led to confess:—'The more we learn about nature, the more do we become aware of our own ignorance. Every problem that is solved, opens up a fresh series of problems not hitherto thought of. The sphere of the Unknown is infinite: the sphere of the Known may be expanding but is always finite. We are no nearer to ultimate solutions than Thales or Pythagoras; the quest for ultimate solutions is merely the symptom of a disordered mind.' (UHW. VIII. P. 5012).

233. (by erasing it both from memories and from written copies).

234. (to plead on thy behalf with Us, O Prophet)!

235. (so there is no fear of the possibility above set forth ever becoming a fact).

236. i. e., no code of law and ethics, no system of sociology could ever be a match to the Holy Qur'ān. See p. I, 99.

237. (that they may be admonished by these wise precepts of the Qur'ān). 'For the unbelievers the warnings as well as the arguments were repeated day after day, and through logic, parable and history every facet of the great Eternal Truth was presented before their eyes. For the Muslims the fragments that were revealed from time to time were so many messages from their Maker who was watching their daily and hourly growth with more loving care and vigilance than the most anxious parent, and helped them every now and then with a word of courage or of caution.' (MA p. 85).

238. i. e., the Makkian pagans.
91. or there be for thee a garden of palms and vines and thou causest rivers to gush forth in their midst;
92. or thou causest the sky to fall upon us, as thou assertest, in pieces.\(^{289}\) or thoubringest Allah and the angels\(^{240}\) face to face with us:
93. or there be for thee a house of God, or thou mountest to the sky, and we will by no means believe even in thy mounting until thou causest a book\(^{241}\) to be sent down to us which we may read. Say thou: Hallowed by my Lord\(^{242}\) I am naught but a human being sent as a messenger.\(^{243}\)

SECTION 11

94. (وَمَا رَسُولُ) And naught has prevented men from believing when the guidance came to them except that they said: has Allah sent forth a human being as messenger?\(^{244}\)
95. (فَلَيۡسُ الَّذِي رَسُولُ) Say thou: were there on the earth angels\(^{245}\) walking about contentedly.\(^{246}\) We would certainly have sent down to them an angel from the heaven as a messenger.\(^{247}\)
96. (فَلَيۡسُ الَّذِي صَبِرُ) Say thou: Allah suffices as a witness between me and you; verily He is in respect of His creatures ever the Aware, the Beholder.

239. The allusion may be to Surah Saba, verse 9, and other similar passages.
240. (before us).
241. (bearing witness of thee).
242. (who alone is Omnipotent).
243. (and what has the Message I am charged with to do with all such wonders?).
244. The humanity of the prophet has always proved a stumbling-block to the polytheists believing in Divine "Incarnation."
245. (instead of men).
246. (as the familiar denizens thereof).
247. (the principle being that an apostle is sent to a people, who is of their own kind).
And whom Allah guides he is the rightly-guided, and whom He sends astray—for such thou wilt by no means find friends beside Him. And We shall muster them on the Day of Judgment lying prone, 248 blind, deaf and dumb, their abode being Hell. As soon as it grows dull, We will increase the Flame for them. 249

This shall be their meed because they disbelieved in Our signs and said: when once we have become bones and fragments,250 shall we in sooth be raised up a new creation?

Do they251 not see that Allah who created the heavens and the earth252 is Able to create their likes?253 And He has appointed for them a term of which there is no doubt; yet the ungodly have rejected everything except infidelity.

Say thou: if it were you who owned the treasurers of the mercy of my Lord,254 you would surely refrain from spending for fear; 255 and man is ever miserly.

SECTION 12

And assuredly We gave Mūsā nine manifest signs256—ask thou the Children of Israil—so when he came to them,257 Fir'awn said to him: I imagine thee to be enchanted, 258 O Mūsā!

248. (lying on their faces).
249. i.e., add fresh vigour too.
250. (in our graves)
251. i.e., those who deny the possibility of Resurrection.
252. —— the old and original Creator whose power of Creation has not diminished——
253. (by reviving the old souls and bodies).
254. i.e., if the highest Divine gifts were in your power, O infidels!
255. (lest they may be exhausted).
256. See P. IX. nn. 103, 104 ff.
257. i.e., the Egyptians.
258. For sorcery of the ancient times see P. I, n. 449.
102. Musâ said: assuredly thou knowest that none has sent down these things save the Lord of the heavens and the earth as an enlightenment, and verily I imagine thee doomed. O Fir'awn.

103. Therefore We drowned him and those with him, all together.

104. And after him We said to the Children of Israil: dwell on the earth; then when comes the promise of the Hereafter, We shall assemble you all together.

105. And with truth We have sent down the Qur'ân, and with truth it has come down, and We have not sent thee but as a bringer of glad tidings and a warner.

106. And this is a Recitation which We have made distinct that thou may recite it to mankind with slow deliberation, and We have revealed it at intervals.

107. Say thou: whether you believe it or believe it not, verily those who were given knowledge before it, when it is recited to them, fall down on their chins, prostrating.

108. And they say: Hallowed be our Lord! the promise of our Lord was ever to have been fulfilled.

109. And they fall down on their chins weeping, and it adds to their humility.

259. (well in thy heart).

260. Moses here directly charges the Pharaoh not with ignorance but wilful opposition to God's authority. Cf. the Bible:—"Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron and said, Entreat the Lord, that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people; and I will let the people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the Lord . . . . But when Pharaoh saw that there was respite, he hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them; as the Lord had said." (Ex. 8:8, 15) The mention of God as 'the Lord of the heavens and the earth' in the Quranic answer of Moses has a special significance, since Seb (the earth-god) and Nut (the sky-god) formed principal gods of the Egyptian pantheon. 'The earliest deities were the personifications of the sky and the earth.' (Petrie, Religious Life in Ancient Egypt, p. 2)
See also Sayce's Religion of Ancient Egypt, p. 129

261. (to destruction). ژو is 'destruction from which there is no rising again.'

262. i. e., the Children of Israel.

264. See P. I. n. 213.

265. i. e., after his destruction.

266. (gathered out of various nations). This clearly, though only incidentally, foretells the dispersal of the Jews.

267. i. e., in absolute purity; with no shadow of doubt.

268. i. e. 'with no corruption, distortion or 'redaction' whatsoever. Or 'at the most opportune moment' when the world longed and thirsted for this Guidance.

269. (O Prophet!).

270. 'By ییج is meant. We have made it distinct, and rendered it free from defect, and explained the ordinances there.' (LL).

271. (so that the listeners may have better chances of comprehending it).

272. (as occasion required). 'His commandments were not promulgated in the humdrum manner of the laws enacted by human legislators, indifferently received by those that were required to obey them. They descended as occasion required on a people waiting and watching anxiously to conform to them.' 'When the commandments were being revealed piecemeal, they engraved, as it were, on the tablets of the Muslims' memories because of the incidents connected with their revelation . . . . As for the infidels, unrelaxing repetition and reiteration wore down their prejudice and hostility, and truth at last triumphed and falsehood finally vanished from Arabia.' (MA, pp. 86-87).

273. The allusion is to the fair-minded Jews who eventually embraced Islam.

274. (and so it has come to be fulfilled in the Qur'an and in the person of the holy Prophet).
110. (ق) Say thou: call upon Allah²⁷⁵ or call upon Rahmân,²⁷⁶ by whichever name you call, His are the excellent names.²⁷⁷ And shout not thy prayer,²⁷⁸ nor speak it low,²⁷⁹ but seek a midway.²⁸⁰

111. (ق) And say thou: all praise is to Allah who has not taken a son,²⁸¹ and whose is no associate in the dominion,²⁸² nor has He a protector through weakness,²⁸³ and magnify Him with all magnificence.²⁸⁴

²⁷⁵ —— His personal name.
²⁷⁶ —— His chief attributive name emphasizing the attribute of mercy and compassion. The Makkans hearing the Prophet call ‘O Allah!’, and sometimes also ‘O Rahman!’ in their crass ignorance imagined that he thus preached the worship of two gods! This ludicrous misconception occasioned the passage.
²⁷⁷ (each one bringing into clear light some particular aspect of His all-round Perfection).
²⁷⁸ (while performing thy prayers, O Prophet! so that the pagans may overhear thee and take occasion to blaspheme and scoff).
²⁷⁹ (so as not to be heard by thy own adherents).
²⁸⁰ (combining warmth and fervour with humility and gentleness).
²⁸¹ (by adoption). This repudiates the Christian doctrine of Adoptionism.
See P. I. n. 523.
²⁸² (as co-partner or sub-deity). This repudiates all Christian and pagan doctrines of polytheism.
²⁸³ (as imagined by many polytheistic communities).
²⁸⁴ i. e., glorify Him to the exclusion of all false deities and all unworthy notions attributed to Him.
Sūrat-ul-Kahf

The Cave. XVIII

(Makkah, 12 Sections and 110 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (الحمدلله... عوجا)  All praise to Allah who has sent down to His bondman the Book, and allowed no crookedness therein.

2. (قيام... حناء)  Straightforward, that it may warn of a severe violence from before Him, and bring glad tidings to the believers who work righteous works that theirs shall be a goodly wage.

3. (ما كتب... ابدا)  They will abide there for ever.

4. (وذر... ولاء)  And that it may warn those who say: God has taken a son.

5. (ما لم... كنبا)  No knowledge they have of it, nor had their fathers. Odious is the word that comes from their mouths; they utter not but a lie.

285 i.e., the holy Prophet. See P. I. n. 98.

286. The religion of Islam, says an eminent Christian writer, ‘is pre-eminently a practical one, reflecting the practical and efficient mind of its originator. It offers no unattainable ideal, no theological complications and perplexities, no mystical sacraments and no priestly hierarchy involving ordination, consecration and apostolic succession.’ (Hitti, op. cit., p. 129).

287. (in itself, and also serving as a norm). The word qualifies ‘the Book.’

288. (the ungodly).

289. i.e., the Paradise.

290. (in particular).
291. The reference is clearly to the Christians, specially the Adoptionists, 'who held that Christ was a mere man, miraculously conceived indeed, but adopted as the Son of God only by the supreme degree in which he had been filled with the divine wisdom and power.' (EMK. IV. p. 1998) See also P. I. n. 523.

292. (who invented such blasphemies).

293. (opposed not only to fact but also to reason). 'For the men of the first and second centuries there was nothing incredible in the idea of the divinity of Jesus Christ. The world was full of gods and demons, impersonations of, or emanations from, the Ultimate Being. Nor did it seem improbable that these should assume human form . . . . Even intellectual pagans, as time went on, were willing to include Christ in their pantheon; they resented only the Christian claim to his exclusive deification.' (EMK. IV. p. 1997).
6. (الملك) Thou art, as-if going to kill thyself over their footsteps out of sorrow for they do not believe in this discourse.

7. (الآلة علا) We have made whatever is on the earth as an adornment of it, that We test them—which of them is best in work.

8. (و انا جرنا) And We are going to make whatsoever is on it a bare soil.

9. (اعما) Dost thou think that the people of the cave and the inscription were of Our signs a marvel?

10. (اذ اده) Re-call when the youths took themselves to the cave and said: O our Lord! grant to us mercy from before Thee and prepare for us in our affair a right course.

11. (فضرينا عهدا) Therefore We put a covering over their ears in the cave for a number of years.

12. (ثم اما) Thereafter We raised them up that We might know which of the two parties was best at reckoning the time that they had tarried.

SECTION 2

13. (نحن هدى) We recount to thee their tidings with truth. They were certain youths who believed in their Lord, and We increased them in guidance.

294. i.e., in thy extreme solicitude and earnest zeal for their conversion.

295. i.e., in the Qur’an promulgating the doctrine of perfect Unity.

296. i.e., mankind.

297. (on the Last Day).

298. i.e., bereft of all life and activity.

299. (O Prophet!).

300. Who were they? The Holy Qur’an, as usual, lays stress on the moral lessons of the story, and not on the identification of the persons concerned. General opinion among the Muslim doctors favours the view that they were Christian—'Christian' in the original, pre-Paulin sense of the word—youths of a good family in Ephesus, who, to avoid the cruel and relentless persecution of the Roman emperor Decius (250, C.E.), shut themselves up in a cave, and remained there asleep for over three centuries. 'Two Christians, Theodore and Rufinus, write the story of the young martyrs on metal plates, which they place under the stones closing the cave.' (ERE. XI. p. 428) For the Christian version of the narrative, see EBr. XX. p. 383. Ephesus, now Ayasoluk and about 36 miles from Smyrna on the railroad to Aidin, was Greek city in Asia Minor, and about 6 miles from the sea, near the island of Samos. The city is mentioned several times in the NT. ש洮 means 'a tablet of lead, whereon were inscribed, or engraved, the names of the People of the Cave, commonly called the Seven Sleepers, and their ancestry, and their story, and their religion, and what it was from which they fled; . . . and which was put upon the entrance of the cave.' (LL).

301. (so that they slept undisturbed). Cf. the Christian account:—'When the emperor Decius persecuted the Christians, seven noble youths of Ephesus concealed themselves in a spacious cavern in the side of an adjacent mountain; where they were doomed to perish by the tyrant, who gave orders that the entrance should be firmly secured with a pile of huge stones. They immediately fell into a deep slumber, which was miraculously prolonged, without injuring the powers of life, during a period of one hundred and eighty-seven years.' (GRE. III. p. 413) According to another and a fuller Christian account:—The Seven Sleepers of Ephesus were Constantine, Dionysius, John, Maximian, Malchus, Martinian, and Serapion—seven young men, converts to Christianity, who during the persecution of Christians under the Emperor Decius, A. D. 250, refused to bow before an idol set up by the Emperor at Ephesus. The story goes that they fled to a cave in Mount Celion, and that Decius, in his rage, ordered all caves in that mountain to be sealed. Nothing was heard of them for 230 years, when they were discovered by some workmen who were digging foundations. Awakened from their long sleep, they offered coins of such antiquity that the attention of the authorities was attracted. They did not long survive, and their bodies were taken for burial in a large stone coffin to St. Victor's Church, Marseilles.

302 (of the sleepers). 'At the end of that time, the slaves of Adolius, to whom the inheritance of the mountain had descended, removed the stones, to supply materials for some rustic edifice; the light of the sun darted into the cavern, and the seven sleepers were permitted to awake.' (GRE. III. p. 413).

303. (in the cave).

304. (as people even in the holy Prophet's time had greatly differed therein). Although it is almost certainly 'a Christian tale', yet 'the Jews of Makka regarded the legend as their own property.' (Torrey, op. cit., pp. 120, 35).
14. We braced their hearts when they stood forth\textsuperscript{305} and said: our Lord is the Lord of the heavens and the earth; never we shall call upon a god beside Him, for then we shall be saying an abomination.\textsuperscript{306}

15. These, our people, have taken for themselves gods beside Him\textsuperscript{307}—why then do they\textsuperscript{308} not bring for them a clear authority\textsuperscript{309}—\textbf{who does a greater wrong than he, who fabricates a lie against Allah.}

16. And now when you\textsuperscript{310} have withdrawn yourselves from them\textsuperscript{311} and what they worship, except God, take yourselves to the cave; your Lord will unfold for you some of His mercy, and will prepare an easy arrangement\textsuperscript{312} of your affair for you.

17. And thou\textsuperscript{313} wouldst see the rising sun veering away from their cave on the right, and the setting sun passing them on the left,\textsuperscript{314} while they were in the spacious part of the cave,\textsuperscript{315} that\textsuperscript{316} is of the signs of Allah. Whom Allah guides, he is the guided \textit{indeed}, and whom He sends astray, for him thou wilt never find a directing friend.

\textsuperscript{305} (firm and resolute before the persecuting tyrant and their own people).

\textsuperscript{306} The Decian persecution (249-251 C. E.) was most vigorous, ‘systematic and thorough’, sparing neither women nor boys, and ‘produced more apostates than even the latter persecution.’ (ERE. IX, p. 746).

\textsuperscript{307} All this shows that the persecuted youths were monotheists and true followers of the prophet Jesus, and not Christ-worshippers of the Pauline variety.

\textsuperscript{308} \textit{i.e.}, our polytheistic people.
309. (justifying their godhead). The pronoun μοι refers to the Roman gods.

310. (O our brethren-in-faith!) Now they are taking counsel among themselves.

311. (at the risk of your lives).

312. كـا literally is ‘a thing by which one profits, or gains advantage or benefit,’ (LL).

313. (O Reader!).

314. ‘In the latitude of Ephesus, 38° north, i. e., well above the sun’s northern declination, a cave opening to north would never have the heat of the sun within it, as the sunny side would be to the south. If the youths lay with their faces to the north i. e., towards the entrance of the cave, the sun would rise on their right side, declining to the south, and set on their left side, leaving them cool and comfortable.’ (AYA).

315. (where they were inconvenienced neither by the heat of the sun nor the closeness of the cave). Τεξεπιστάμενος means ‘an intervening space, or an intermediate wide space between two things.’

316. i. e., the whole of the foregoing affair.

18. And thou wouldst have deemed them awake\textsuperscript{317} whereas they were asleep, and We turned them over on the right and the left, while their dog\textsuperscript{318} stretched forth his two fore-legs on the threshold. Hadst thou lookedst at them thou wouldst have surely turned away from them in fright and wouldst have been filled with awe of them.

19. Likewise\textsuperscript{319} We raised them up that they might question among themselves. There spoke a speaker from amongst them: how long have you stayed? They said: we have stayed a day or part of a day. They said: your Lord knows best how long you have stayed; now send one of you with this your money\textsuperscript{320} in the city, and let him find which food is the cleaner there,\textsuperscript{321} and let him bring you a provision for that, and let him be circumspect,\textsuperscript{322} and let him by no means discover you to anyone.\textsuperscript{323}

20. Verily they, if they come to know of you, would stone you\textsuperscript{324} or make you revert to their faith,\textsuperscript{325} and lo! then you shall never fare well.

\textsuperscript{317} (perhaps from the freshness of their appearance and the beaming radiance of their faces, O reader!).

\textsuperscript{318} (who had loyally followed them as they passed by him when fleeing to the cave). An animal noted for its watchfulness and loyalty and devotion to man. ‘Dogs were among the first animals domesticated, appearing in Egyptian inscriptions of 3000 B. C. and in many earlier records.’ (C.E. III. p. 643).

\textsuperscript{319} i.e., as miraculously as We had sent them to sleep.

\textsuperscript{320} (which obviously was the coin current in the time of their flight to the cave).

\textsuperscript{321} i.e., undefiled by its dedication to the Roman gods. ‘After a slumber, as they thought, of a few hours, they were pressed by the calls of hunger; and resolved that Jamblichus, one of their number, should secretly return to the city, to purchase bread for the use of his companions.’ (GRE. III. p. 413).
322. (in his behaviour, so as not to arouse suspicion in any quarter).
323. (lest the persecuting tyrant may come up and besiege us).
324. (to death). The ferocity of the Decian persecution knew no bounds. 'It would be difficult to find language too strong to paint its horrors.' (Lecky, op. cit., I. p. 110).
325. (like too many of our people). 'The defection was very large. The pagans marked with triumphant ridicule, and the fathers with a burning indignation, the thousands who thronged to the altars at the first commencement of persecution.' (Lecky, op. cit..) Gibbon also speaks of 'great numbers of unworthy Christians, who publicly disowned or renounced the faith which they had professed.'
21. And likewise\(^{326}\) We caused their affair to be lit upon that they\(^{327}\) might realise\(^{328}\) that Allah's promise is true, and that the Hour! there is no doubt about it.\(^{329}\) Re-call when they\(^{330}\) were disputing among themselves regarding their affair,\(^{331}\) and then they said: build over them a building— their Lord is the Best Knower about them— then those who prevailed in their affair said: surely we shall raise over them a place of worship.\(^{332}\)

22. Presently they\(^{333}\) will say: they were three, the fourth being their dog. And they will say: they were five, the sixth being their dog— guessing at the unknown—and they will say: they were seven, the eighth being their dog. Say thou: my Lord is the Best knower of their number; none knows that except only a few; so debate not thou regarding their number except an outward debating,\(^{334}\) and ask not anyone regarding them.

23. And never say thou\(^{335}\) of a thing: I am going to do that on the morning;

24. except with this reservation that Allah so will.\(^{336}\) And remember thy Lord\(^{337}\) when thou forgettest,\(^{338}\) and say thou: perchance my Lord will guide me to something nearer to right\(^{339}\) direction than this.\(^{340}\)

25. And they\(^{341}\) stayed in their cave three hundred years and added nine.\(^{342}\)

326. i. e., in the same miraculous manner.
327. i. e., the inhabitants of the city, who were Christians by now.
328. (with the greater certainty). The astonishingly long sleep of these youths, and their waking after so long a time is clearly reminiscent of the state of the dead being raised to life.
329. This happened precisely at a time when the Christians, seized by a new heresy, had begun to doubt and deny the fact of resurrection. ‘After 307 years, in the reign of the emperor Theodosius II, a heresy breaks out, led by a bishop Theodore, denying the resurrection of the dead, and the emperor is greatly perturbed. Then God suggests to Adolius, the proprietor of the field where the cave is to build a sheepfold for his flock; for this purpose the workmen use stones which close the entrance of the cave, and thus the cave is reopened. God awakens the youths, who think that they have slept only one night... Theodosius is informed of what has happened and comes to Ephesus to the cave. One of the youths... tells him that in order to demonstrate the truth of the resurrection, God had caused them to fall asleep and then resuscitated them before the Judgment-Day.' (ERE. XI. p. 428).

330. i. e., the people of the city.
331. (as to what sort of building should be erected over them).
332. There still stands 'on the eastern side of Mount Pion, overhanging the road that leads from the temple of Diana to the Magnesian Gate of the city,... a rock-hewn church, close to a cave in which the “Seven Sleepers of Ephesus” were, according to the legend, saved from the Roman persecution by a slumber of some centuries’ duration (DB. I. p. 725).
333. i. e., some of those to whom thou wouldst relate the story.
334. (and this outward debating is no other than the true recital of the revealed facts).
335. (O Prophet!).
336. When the pagans as instigated by the Jews put three questions to the Prophet regarding the nature of soul, the sleepers of the cave, and Zul-Qarnain, he bid them come to him the next day to receive the answer, but forgot to add 'if it please God', for which omission he had to wait for about a fortnight before any Revelation was vouchsafed him relating to these matters.
337. (in every matter and on every fresh resolve).
338. (at the first moment of thy recovery from accidental lapse).
339. The purport is: my Lord is likely to support me with yet greater and brighter proofs of my Prophethood than the answering of these posers suggested by the Jews.
340. (answering the question about the sleepers of the cave).
341. i. e., the sleepers.
342. (years thereto). Perhaps 300 years according to the solar calendar, and 309 according to the lunar. In the ancient Christian versions of the story the number of years given is 307 in the text, and 353, etc., as variants (ERE. XI, p. 428, f.n.). See Appendix I at the end of this surah.
26. Say thou: Allah knows best how long they stayed; His alone is the hidden knowledge of the heavens and the earth. How well He sees and hears! They have no patron beside Him, nor in His rule He associates anyone.

27. And recite thou what has been Revealed to thee of the Book of thy Lord; and none may alter His words, and never wilt thou find beside Him a covert.

28. And endure thyself in the company of those who call upon their Lord in the morning and evening seeking His countenance, and let not thine eyes rove from them seeking the adornment of the life of this world, and obey thou not him whose heart We have made to neglect of Our remembrance, and who follows his lust, and whose affair is exceeding the bound.

29. Say thou: the truth is from thy Lord, let him therefore believe who will and let him disbelieve who will. Verily We have prepared for the wrong-doers a Fire the awnings of which shall encompass them; and if they cry for relief they shall be relieved with water like the dregs of oil scalding their faces. Ill the drink, and vile the resort!

343. (and it is His computation that is given here).
344. i.e., the scoffers.
345. (and with that recitation thy duty ends).
346. (of promise) i.e., none can stand between Him and His will.
347. --poor and lowly as they are—
348. (in thy solicitude for the conversion of the rich and well-to-do).
349. The meaning is: do not think that the conversion of the rich and the powerful raises the dignity of Islam; it is the moral and spiritual grandeur of the poor and meek that should be cared for.
350. (in consequence of his own foolhardiness). The allusion is to certain pagans who had advised the holy Prophet to discard his indigent companions out of regard for the proud and conceited Quraish chiefs.

351. 'Thus the element of guidance and directive control in the ego's activity clearly shows that the ego is a free, personal, causality. He shares in the life and freedom of the Ultimate Ego who, by permitting the emergence of a finite ego, capable of private initiative, has limited this freedom of His own free-will.' (Iqbal, op. cit., page 151).

352. (Compound of flame and smoke).

353. So unpleasant to look at.

354. (With its burning heat).
30. (إن ... عما) Verily those who believe and work the righteous works -- We do not waste the wage of him who does well in regard to his work.

31. (إواك ... مرنفا) These! for them are the Gardens Everlasting with running streams. Bedecked they shall be therein with bracelets of gold and wear they shall green robes of satin and brocade, reclining therein on the couches. Excellent the reward, and goodly the resort!

SECTION 5

32. (واضرب ... زعا) Proclaim thou to them the similitude of two men.\textsuperscript{355} We made for one of them two gardens of vines and hedged both with palms, and We placed tillage in-between.

33. (كلنا ... نوبا) Each of the two gardens brought forth the produce,\textsuperscript{356} and stinted not aught thereof, and We made a stream to gush forth in the midst of the two.

34. (وكان ... نضا) And he had property.\textsuperscript{357} Then he\textsuperscript{358} said to his companion\textsuperscript{359} as he spoke to him: I am better than you in substance and mightier in respect of retinue.\textsuperscript{360}

35. (ودخل ... ابدا) And he entered his garden,\textsuperscript{361} while he was a wrong-doer in respect of his own soul. \textit{And} he said:\textsuperscript{362} I do not consider that it will ever perish;

\textsuperscript{355} (to illustrate the utter worthlessness of the life of this world divorced from religion).
\textsuperscript{356} (plentifully).
\textsuperscript{357} (other than the two gardens). \textit{ثمر} is not only 'fruit' but also signifies, 'property, or wealth, increased and multiplied; or various kinds of property, or wealth, increased and multiplied, and gained, or acquired, for oneself.' (I.L).
\textsuperscript{358} —an infidel—
\textsuperscript{359} —a believer—
\textsuperscript{360} (which means that all is well with me, and God is not at all ill-disposed towards me).
\textsuperscript{361} (taking his companion with him with a view to mortifying him).
\textsuperscript{362} (confining his view to the immediate, material causes).
nor I consider that the Hour is going to happen; and if I am brought back to my Lord, surely I shall find something better than this as a retreat.

His companion said to him: as he spoke to him: art thou a disbeliever in Him who created thee of dust; then of a sperm, and formed thee a man?

But He is Allah, my Lord, and with my Lord I do not join anyone.

Why then thou saidst not when thou enterest thy garden: whatever Allah may will, there is no power save in Allah; if thou seest then I am inferior to thee in substance and offspring:

then perchance my Lord will give me something better than thy garden and send on it a bolt from the heaven so that it become a slippery plane; or the water thereof become deep-sunken, so that thou canst make a search therefor.

(at all, assuming the possibility of resurrection).

The man fondly imagined that his affluence was solely due to his merit and not to any beneficence on the part of God.

(by thus denying the fact of resurrection).

(as for me).

(either in this world or the Next).

i.e., on thy garden which has made thee so arrogant and presumptuous.

(or some other sudden calamity unforeseen by thee).

(into the earth).
42. And his property was encompassed, and lo! he was wringing the palms of his hands over what he had spent on it, so it lay fallen down on its trellises, saying: Oh I would that I had not joined anyone with my Lord!

43. And there could be no party helping him as against Allah, nor he could be an avenger himself.

44. Herein is all protection from Allah the True; excellent is He as to the reward and excellent to the final end!

SECTION 6

45. Propound thou to them the similitude of the life of this world. It is as water which We send down from the heaven, then there mingles with it the vegetation of the earth, and lo! it becomes dry stubble which the winds scatter. And Allah is Potent over everything.

46. Riches and sons are the adornment of the life of the world and the righteous works that last are excellent with thy Lord in respect of reward and excellent in respect of hope.

47. And beware of a Day when We will cause the mountains to pass away, and thou wilt see the earth plain, and We will gather them, and We will leave of them not one.

48. And they shall be sent before thy Lord in ranks. Now you are come to Us as We had created you the first time. Aye! you fancied that We had appointed for you no tryst.

371. (with complete ruin, after he had received without effect this forewarning and admonition by his believing companion). For see n. 357 above.

372. (in extreme anguish).

373. (in this world). The words are intended both to comfort the poor believers and to rebuke the vainglorious infidels.

374. (in the Hereafter).
375. (in respect of its fleeting luxuriance).
376. (after it has been green and flourishing). Cf. a simile of the Bible:—
‘In the morning they are like grass which groweth up. In the morning it flouri-sheth, and groweth up; in the evening it is cut down, and withereth.’ (Ps. 90: 5, 6).
377. (which is so transitory).
378. بالاقات — السالمات means, ‘acts of obedience, or good works, of which the fruit remains for ever.’ (LL).
379. i. e., best as the foundation of hopes for still greater rewards—far beyond our merits.
380. (reduced as they shall be to stones).
381. (and bare of all eminences, O reader!).
382. i. e., mankind.
383. i. e., alone and unclothed. Thus will be the rejectors of the Resurrection addressed.
384. (to appear before Us).
49. And the Book shall be placed, and thou wilt see the culprits alarmed at what is therein, and they will say: Ah! woe to us! what ails this Book that it leaves not any misdeed, small or great, but it has comprehended it! And they shall find present all that they had wrought; and thy Lord wrongs not any one.

SECTION 7

50. And re-call when We said to the angels: make obeisance to Adam, and they made obeisance, but Iblis did not. He was of the jinn, so he trespassed the command of his Lord. Would you then take him and his progeny as patrons instead of Me, whereas they are unto you an enemy? Ill is for the wrong-doers this exchange.

51. I made them not present at the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor at the creation of themselves; nor was I to take the seducers as supporters.

385. (of deeds, wherein one's actions are recorded).
386. (in everyone's hand).
387. (so there is no possibility of any omission or a wrong entry in that Book of deeds).
388. (As also to other creatures).
389. See p. 1. nn. 151, 152.
390. This categorically denies the myth of Satan's being an 'angel' fallen or otherwise. The genii are made of fire, not of light as are angels, and like human beings, can freely choose for themselves the path of right or wrong.
391. (O mankind!).
392. (always wishing ill of you).
393. i.e., this choice of the devil and his band as patrons and protectors—a dreadful choice is this!
394. i.e., Satan and his progeny.
395. (for help and advice). اشهد also signifies, 'He caused him to be present.' (LL).
396. So the very conception is absurd.عدد though singular in form is plural in meaning.
52. And beware a Day whereon I shall say,\(^{397}\) cry unto My associates\(^{398}\) whom you fancied.\(^{399}\) So they will call upon them and they will answer them not. We shall place between them\(^{400}\) a barrier.\(^{401}\)

53. And the culprits will see the Fire and imagine they are about to fall therein: and they shall not find therefrom a way of escape.

SECTION 8

54. And assuredly We have set forth all manner of parables in this Qur’ān for mankind, but man is of all things the most contending.\(^{402}\)

55. And nothing prevents mankind from believing now when the guidance has come to them and from asking forgiveness of their Lord, except that there may come to them the dispensation of the ancients\(^{403}\) or that the chastisement may come to them face to face.

56. And We do not send messengers save as bringers of glad tidings and warners,\(^{404}\) and those who disbelieve\(^{405}\) dispute with falsehood that they may rebut thereby the truth; and they take My signs and what they are warned of as a mockery.

397. (to the polytheists).
398. (to protect you).
399. (to be My co-partners, and whose aid and support you presumed).
400. \textit{i.e.}, the polytheists and their ‘gods’.
401. (which will make the polytheists entirely despair of the help of their ‘gods’).
402. The phrase is equivalent with \textit{ان جدل الإنسان أكثر من جدل كل شى} (Zm).
403. \textit{i.e.}, judgment in this world.
404. (so that the message they deliver is to be judged on its merits, and its truth does not depend on such extraneous facts as miracles or visitations of Divine judgment in this world).
405. (perversely ignoring the merits of the Message).
57. And who does greater wrong than he who is admonished with the signs of his Lord and yet turns away from them and forgets what his hands had sent forth? We have set up veils over their hearts lest they should understand it, and in their ears a heaviness; and if thou callest them to the guidance, lo! they will not let themselves be ever guided.

58. (درک . . . مولا) And thy Lord is the Forgiver, Owner of Mercy. Were He to call them to account for what they have earned, He would have hastened torment for them, but for them there is a tryst, and beside it they cannot find a place to take themselves to.

59. (وَلَكَ . . . موعد) And these cities! We destroyed them when they did wrong, and We had appointed a tryst for their destruction.

SECTION 9

60. (وَاذْقَالَ . . . حَنْبَا) And re-call when Mūsā said to his page: I shall not cease journeying until I reach the confluence of the two seas, or I shall go on for ages.

61. (نَلَّا . . . سُرَى) And when the two reached the confluence of the two, they forgot their fish, and it found its way into the sea freely.

62. (نَلَّا . . . نَصَب) And when the two had passed by, he said to his page: bring to us our breakfast; we have indeed got toil from this journey of ours.

406. (Of sins and misdeeds).
407. i. e., the truth; the Qurʾān. See p. I, n. 47; P. 15, n. 122 above.
408. (O Prophet!).
409. (so He will forgive them if even now they embrace Islam).
410. (so He is giving them full respite in the world).
411. (here and now).
412. (so they can yet escape).
413. (to the inhabitants of which was meted out exemplary punishment in former times).
414. (similarly the present-day infidels also have a fixed time for their doom).

415. (Who was instructed by God to go in search of a particular servant of God, who would impart to him such knowledge as even he did not then possess).

416. i.e., Joshua, who was Moses' attendant and was to become his successor. In the Bible (Nu. 11:28) he is, according to various interpreters, described as 'the servant of Moses, one of his young men.' (AV) 'the minister of Moses, and chosen out of many' (DV), and 'attendant of Moses, and one of his young men.' (EBI. c. 2599) The servants and other dependants of a Hebrew have formed no unimportant element . . . . Hebrew servants shared in the family sacrifices and festivals . . . . Besides bond-servants, a Hebrew house-holder was likely to have a number of hired servants.' (NSBD, pp. 260, 261).

417. (from marching on).

418. (where that particular servant of God was to be found). 'The most probable geographical location . . . . is where the two arms of the Red Sea join together, viz., the Gulf of Aqabah and the Gulf of Su ez. They enclose the Sinai Peninsula, in which Moses and the Israelites spent many years in their wanderings. (AYA).

419. i.e., the cooked fish which they had with them for food.

420. (and this was an indication of the spot where Moses was to find that holy man).

421. (that particular place, and were proceeding on).

422. Fish, salted thoroughly and exposed to the sun 'was much in vogue in ancient Egypt' and 'in great demand for provisions for the journey.' (EBI. c. 1529).
63. He said: look here! as we were proceeding to the rock I became unmindful of the fish, and naught but Satan made me forget to mention it to thee, and it took marvellously its way into the sea.

64. Mūsā said: that is exactly what we have been seeking. Then they turned back on their footsteps, retracing.

65. Then the two found a bondman from Our own bondmen, on him We had bestowed a mercy from before Us and him We had taught a knowledge from Our presence.

66. Mūsā said to him: shall I follow thee that thou mayest teach me of what thou hast been taught a directive knowledge.

67. He said: verily thou wilt not be able to have patience with me;

68. and how canst thou have patience over that which thy knowledge does not encompass?

69. Mūsā said: thou wilt find me, if Allah will, patient, and I shall not disobey thee in any affair.

423. i. e., that was precisely the place to which we had been directed.

424. The Qurʾān does not mention this servant of God by name. In Hadith, he is called Khidhr or Khadhir, and is reported to have a life of hundreds of years.

425. He was certainly a saint, possibly a prophet.

426. This special knowledge consisted mainly of a pre-vision of the events of this world, and was different from the Knowledge of Divine truths imparted to Moses, though by no means superior to it.

427. i. e. over things of a mysterious nature, which will certainly appear to them as opposed to the Laws of God.
70. (قال... ذكر) He said: well, if thou wouldst follow me, then do not question me of anything, until I begin to mention it myself. 428

SECTION 10

71. (فاطلقا... ارما) Then the two 429 journeyed together until when they embarked in a boat, he scuttled it. 430 Mūsā said: hast thou scuttled it that thou mayest drown the people thereof? assuredly thou hast committed a thing grievous.

72. (قال... ميرم) He said: did I not tell thee that thou wouldst not be able to have patience with me?

73. (قال... عسر) Mūsā said: do not take me to task for what I forgot and do not impose hardship on my affair. 431

74. (فاطلقا... نكر) Then the two journeyed 432 till when they met a boy, 433 and he killed him. Mūsā said: hast thou killed an innocent 434 person not in return for a person? 435 assuredly thou has committed a thing formidable.

428. (and to interpret its meaning).
429. i.e., Moses and his instructor.
430. (by pulling out a plank or two by means of a small axe which he had with him).
431. (by taking me to task for a mere lapse of memory).
432. (on the land).
433. (who had not yet reached the age of majority).
434. (for being a minor he could not be slain even as a matter of retaliation).
435. (which fact makes the crime all the more horrible).
PART XVI

75. (قال ... صبرا) He said: did I not tell thee thou wouldst not be able to have patience with me?

76. (قال ... عذرا) Müsä said: if I question thee regarding anything after this, abandon me; surely there has reached thee an excuse from my side.¹

77. (قال ... اجراء) Then the two departed, until when they came to the people of a city, they begged food from the citizens;² but they refused to entertain the two.³ Then they, found therein a wall about to collapse and he set it upright.⁴ Müsä said: hadst thou wished thou couldst have taken a wage therefor.⁵

78. (قال ... صبرا) He said: this shall be the parting between me and thee.⁶ Now I shall declare to thee interpretation of that over which thou couldst have no patience.

79. (أما ... غصبا) As for the boat, it belonged to poor men working in the sea.⁷ I wanted to damage it, as there was before them a prince confiscating every boat.⁸

¹ (for parting with me).
² Note that unlike modern towns, this ancient city had no hotels or restaurants, and its inhabitants were bound, according to the moral notions prevalent at the time, to act as hosts to all outside visitors and to offer them full hospitality.
³ Which was a great offence in the social code of the day, and liable to be judged very severely. Cf. Jn. 19: 15.
⁴ (by stroking it with his hand).
⁵ (like hired labourers, and thus apart from supplying ourselves with much-needed provision, wouldst have conveyed to these rude people at least our disapprobation of their conduct).
⁶ (as previously arranged).
⁷ (and earning their living thereby).
⁸ —— who could see what the boatmen themselves could not——
⁹ —— (so I did this in the boatmen's own interest, and in order to save them from dire want).
80. (واما ... كفرنا) And as for the boy, his parents were believers, and we apprehended that he might impose upon them exorbitance and infidelity; so we intended that their Lord should change for them one better than he in piety and closer in affection.

81. (فارتقا ... رحما) so we intended that their Lord should change for them one better than he in piety and closer in affection.

82. (واما ... ميتا) And as for the wall, it belonged to two orphan boys in the town and underneath it was a treasure belonging to them, and their father was righteous. So thy Lord intended that the twain should attain their maturity and bring forth for themselves their treasure as a mercy from their Lord; and I did it not of my own bidding. That is the interpretation of what thou couldst not bear patiently.

SECTION 11

83. (ويسكنوك ... دكرا) And they question thee of Zul Qurnain. Say thou: I shall recite to you some mention of him.

84. (إننا ... سببا) Verily We! We established him in the earth, and gave him the means of everything.

85. (فانع ... سببا) Thereafter he followed a way.

10. (and the boy would have grown as an infidel).
11. The change from the ordinary singular ‘I’ to the majestic plural ‘we’ indicates full deliberation and strength of conviction on the part of the speaker.
12. خبث sometimes, as here, is synonymous with علم.
13. (by their excessive fondness for him).
14. (by putting an end to the boy’s life).
15. (towards them).
16. (buried in the ground).
17. (as heritage from their father but unknown to them).
18. i.e., all that you have not seen.
19. (but as directed by God).
20. i. e., the pagans as instigated by the Jews.

21. (O Prophet!)

22. Literally 'the two-horned'; identified by the majority of the commentators with Alexander the Great; so named from his expeditions to the East and West. He was actually represented on his coins with two horns. Horn in the Bible is 'a symbol of strength', and 'is frequently mentioned to signify power and glory.' (CD. p. 457) In Hebrew usage 'raising the horn of a people or an individual' signifies victory or pride, 'breaking' signifies 'defeat.' (ERE. VI. p. 792) Even Moses (Peace be on him!) was represented with horns. 'It has become a widespread belief that Moses, when he came down from Mount Sinai with the tables of the Law, had two horns on his forehead.' (JE. VI. p. 463). Also EBi. c. 2111. See Appendix II.

23. (as Revealed by God).

24. (to attain anything he desired). 'Alexander overawes the imagination more than any other personage of antiquity, by the matchless development of all that constitutes effective force. (Grote, History of Greece, VII. p. 468). 'By no contemporary man had any such power ever been known or conceived. With the turn of imagination then prevalent, many were doubtless disposed to take him for a god on earth.' (pp. 465-66) 'He never lost a battle, and he never retreated in face of the enemy. If we consider the range of his operations no general of the ancient world, not even Caesar, and none of the modern world, not even Napoleon, can be compared with him. All other commanders drew plans on a smaller scale. While they played with fragments of continents, he played with continents'. (UHW. III. p.1423) 'He had fired the imagination of the ancient world to such a degree that after his death there was an Alexander cult and on coins his likeness displaced the likeness of the gods.' (p. 1448). See also EMK. II. p. 911.

25. (to the west of his country). The first notable campaigns of Alexander were in northern and western directions.
86. (حتى ... حنا) until when he reached the setting-place of the sun, he perceived it setting in a miry spring, and he found a nation nearby it. We said: O Zul-Qarnain! either chastise them or take the way of kindness in respect of them.

87. (قال ... كرا) He said: as for him who does wrong prevently we shall chastise him, and then he shall be brought back to his Lord, and He shall torment him with a formidable torment.

88. (واما ... بسرا) And as for him who believes and works righteously, for him will be a goodly wage, and anon we shall speak to him something easy of our affair.

89. (ثم ... سبا) Thereafter he followed a way.

90. (حتى ... سترا) until when he reached the rising-place of the sun, he perceived it rising upon a nation for whom We had not set a veil against it.

91. (كذلك ... خيرا) Thus it was. And surely We have encompassed in knowlege all that was with him.

92. (ثم ... سبا) Thereafter he followed a way.

93. (حتى ... قول) until when he arrived between the two mountains, he found beside them a people who almost did not understand a word.

94. (قالوا ... سدا) They said: O Zul-Qarnain! Ya'jūj and Mājūj are doing mischief in the land; should we then pay thee tribute so that thou place between us and them a barrier?

95. (قال ... ردا) He said: better than your tribute is that wherein my Lord has established me; so help me with your labour and I shall place between you and them a rampart.

26. (to the western point where the expedition terminated. المغرب and both signify the West. (LL).

27. (وجد has two distinct meanings; one, ‘he found it, lighted on it, attained it,’ having an objectivity, a correspondence with fact; the other is the perceived it, became sensible of it,' having only a subjective import. Here it is used in the latter sense, and the phrase means, 'it appeared to him that the sun was setting.'

28. (of infidels). The reference may well be to Lake Ochrida to the west of the town of the same name in south Serbia (Yugoslavia). It is about 50 miles west of Monastia, 2260 ft. above sea-level, in a mountainous limestone region. 'Its waters are supplied by subterranean streams. Its chief outlet is the river Black Drin, on the north.' (EBR. XIX, p. 989, 11th Ed.) 'The water is so dark that the river which forms the outlet of the lake to the north is called the Black Drin. Looking at the sunset from the town, the observer would see the sun set in a pool of murky water.' (AYA).

29. (by inspiration).

30. (and unite them to the true faith). The choice between the two alternatives rested with the invader-king.

31. (after preaching and warning).

32. That the King Zul-Qarnain was a man of God is implied all through his story in the Qur'ān; and if his identification with Alexander the Great be correct, the fact accords well with a reference in the Bible. (Dn. 11: 3) 'It is supposed that the Book of Daniel alludes to Alexander when it refers to a mighty king that 'shall stand up, that shall rule with greater dominion' whose kingdom shall be destroyed after his death.' (JE. I. p. 341) Jews, the only monotheistic people of his time, were even ready to recognise him as the promised Messiah. 'The Jewish contemporaries of Alexander the Great, dazzled by his glorious achievements, hailed him as the divinely appointed deliverer, the inaugurator of the period of universal peace promised by the Prophets. (VIII. p. 507) Josephus has described in some detail Alexander's visit to Jerusalem, and the trend of his remarks shows that Alexander was a monotheist. 'When he went up into the temple, he offered sacrifice to God, according to the high priest's direction: and magnificently treated both the high priest and the priests. And when the Book of Daniel was showed him, wherein Daniel declared that one of the Greeks should destroy the empire of the Persians, he supposed that he himself was the person intended.' ("Ant." XI, 8: 5).

33. (this time to the east of his country).

34. i.e., an eastern region.

35. Perhaps they were a people without clothes and without houses.

36. (so Ours is the only true, infallible narrative).

37. This time there is no indication of the direction; probably it was, as guessed by AYA, a continuation of the eastward campaigns.

38. — is both 'a barrier' and a 'mountain.' Here it means the latter.

39. (of Zul-Qarnain and his companions): i.e., so unlike was their language. Now where to locate their country? The question has raised a medley of answers. But the place most likely seems to be the eastern portion of Central Asia, where there was a defile known as 'Iron-Gate' or 'Bab-UL-Hadid' (in Arabic), near Derbend in Hisar district, not to be confused with another Pass of Derbend which is in the region of the Caucasus, and which is identified by Marco Polo as 'Sudd-i-Iskander' or Alexander's rampart. (Yule, The Book of Marco Polo, I. p. 50) AYA, who has made a special study of the subject, favours the view here adopted, and his observations are worthy of careful perusal. After rejecting alternative suggestions he proceeds:—'We now come to the Iron Gate which corresponds exactly to the Quranic description, and has the best claim to be connected with Alexander's story. It is near Derbend in Central Asia, Hisar district, about 150 miles south-east of Bukhara. A very narrow defile, with overhanging rocks, occurs on the main route between Turkistan and India; latitude 38° N, longitude 67° E. It is now called in Turki Buzghol Khana (Goat-house), but was formerly known as the Iron Gate. There is no iron gate there now, but there was one in the seventh century, when the Chinese traveller Hsuen Tsiang saw it on his journey to India. He saw two folding gates cased with iron and hung with bells. Nearby is a lake named Iskander Kul, connecting the locality with Alexander the Great'. See for confirmation of the main descriptive facts EBr. XIII, p. 526, 11th Ed.

40. (by plunder and ruin when they make depredations into our land). 'They were the Mongol tribes on the other side of the Barrier, while the industrious men who did not understand Zul Qarnain's language were the Turks, with their agglutinative language, so different from the language of Western Asia.' (AYA) These turbulent tribes were descendants of Japhet, the son of Noah. Of the Biblical Magog only this much seems to be certain that he was a son of Japhet, all else being mere conjecture. The expression 'of the land of Gog' is used in ancient inscriptions as a synonym for 'barbarian' country. (See EB1. c. 1747; EBr. XII. p. 190, 11th Ed).

41. (and I do not need any monetary help or subsidy from you). Note that Zul-Qarnain ascribed all his glory to God, and not to his own skill and ability.

42. i. e., with manual labour.

104. (الدين... صمّا) They are those whose effort is wasted in the life of the world, and they imagine that they are doing well in action.

105. (أولئك... وزنا) They are those who disbelieve in the signs of their Lord and in their meeting with Him, vain shall be made all their works, and We will not allow them any weight on the Day of Judgement.

106. (ذلك... هرّوا) That shall be their meed: Hell; for they disbelieved and held My signs and My messengers in mockery.

107. (إن الدّين... نّبّأ) Verily those who believe and do righteous works, theirs shall be Gardens of Paradise for an entertainment;

108. (خلدين... حولِّا) abiding therein, they shall not seek any removal out of them.

109. (قل... مددّا) Say thou: were the oceans to become ink for the words of my Lord, the ocean would surely exhaust before the words of my Lord exhausted, even though We brought another ocean for support.

110. (قل... أحادث) Say thou: I am but a human being like yourselves; revealed unto me is that your God is One God. Whoso then hopes the meeting with his Lord, let him do righteous deed, and let him not join anyone in the worship of his Lord.

65. (as all these works, even seemingly meritorious, have been divorced from true faith).

66. (for ever).

67. i.e., the whole of the watery portion of the world. 'The surface of the globe', says an authority, 'is really almost covered by one huge ocean, upon which the continents float like islands. In fact, 79 per cent of the earth's area is ocean, and only 21 per cent is land. The volume of the ocean is eleven times the volume of all the land above sea level. If the mountains of the earth and the deeps of the ocean were smoothed out, the whole globe would be covered to a depth of one mile.

68. (to write them out therewith). By 'words of my Lord' are meant words denoting His excellence, His attributes, and His perfection.

69. So interminable and inexhaustible are the words of God!

70. (and neither a 'Lord' nor an 'Incarnation'—the two chief props of Christianity). Even the holiest of the prophets is no more than a mere mortal.

71. Which is quintessence and central truth of Islam as opposed to polytheism, trinitarianism, and dualism.

72. A righteous work is a work according to the dictates of God.

73. So it is not a mere belief in monotheism that matters; all forms of worship and adoration also are due to Him alone.
APPENDIX I

Seven Sleepers
(PERIOD OF SLUMBER)

By S. Abul Hasan Ali Nadvi

The story is extant in a number of versions: Greek, Syriac, Latin, Coptic, Arabic, Armenian, Ethiopic and Georgian and there is also no reason to doubt the authenticity of the ancient texts. Edward Gibbon, who normally gives little credence to the miraculous and outlandish stories, writes of this legend:

"The origin of this marvellous fable cannot be ascribed to the pious fraud and credulity of the Modern Greeks, since the authentic tradition may be traced within half a century of the supposed miracle. James of Sarug,¹ a Syrian bishop, who was born only two years after the death of younger Theodosius, has devoted one of his two hundred and thirty homilies to the praise of the young men of Ephesus. Their legend before the end of the sixth century was translated, from the Syriac into the Latin language, by the care of Gregory of Tours. The hostile communions of the East preserve their memory with equal reverence; and their names are honourably inscribed in the Roman, the Abyssinian, and the Russian calendar. Nor has their reputation been confined to the Christian world.²"

The duration of the time spent by the companions of the Cave in deep slumber has been variously given in different versions. Some Christian writers reckon it to be as much as 353 or 373 years but the general consensus of opinion is that the youths slept for a period ranging from 300 to 307 years. In round numbers, 300 years in their solar calendar would come to 309 in the lunar calendar.

Ibn Kathîr is of the view that the number of years spent in the cave, from the time the youths miraculously fell into sleep to the time they were awakened, was made known to the Prophet of Islam through revelation. The period given by Ibn Kathîr, too, is 300 years according to the solar calendar, and 309 according to the lunar calendar. He further says that since every hundred solar years are equal to one hundred and three of the lunar calendar, the Quran says: "and added nine" after "three hundred years".

1. James, one of the orthodox fathers of the Syrian Church was born A.D. 452; he began to compose his sermons, A.D. 474; was made bishop of Batnæ, in the Distt. of Sarug, and province of Mesopotamia, A.D. 519; and died A.D. 521 (Assemani, tom. i, pp. 288, 289). For the homily de Pueris Ephesinis, see pp. 335, 339.

2. Edward Gibbon: The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire; London (1908); Vol. III, pp. 413-414.
Most of the Christian sources as well as Gibbon and other Muslim writers hold the view that the youths concealed themselves in the cave during the persecution by Decius (A.D. 250), known by the name of Daqīūnūs to the Arab historians. Decius is known to have instituted an organised persecution of the Christians throughout the Roman empire. The second sovereign mentioned in the traditions is Theodosius II (408-450 A.D.) in whose reign the youths are reported to have been awakened. Taking 250 A.D. and 450 A.D. we get an interval of 200 years. Gibbon relies on the traditions which give this period as one hundred and eighty-seven years and, taking his stand upon it, exercises his wit to ridicule the period mentioned in the Qur'ān. Some of the earliest as well as recent commentators of the Qur'ān, for instance, Jamāluddīn Qasīmī and Abū ʿAla Maudūdī have, therefore, tried to explain away this apparent contradiction by putting forth the view that the words “three hundred years and add nine”, mentioned in the Qur'ān, simply repeat the then current traditional view instead of indicating any definite period of the deep slumber of the youths. They argue that the above-mentioned passage is to be read in the context of the preceding verses: “(Some) will say: They were three, their dog the fourth . . . .” This view is attributed to Qatādah and Mutrīf Ibn ʿAbdullāh. The commentators who prefer this interpretation also point out the succeeding verse which says: “Allah is Best Aware how long they tarried”. Their contention is that if God had revealed the exact period, He would not have drawn attention towards His own perfect knowledge immediately after the verse in question. This exegesis is ascribed to Ibn ʿAbbās but Alūsī, another commentator, points out that since Ibn ʿAbbās gives the number of the Companions of the Cave as seven, he ought to have placed reliance on the period too. For, both the verses mentioning the number of the companions and the period of slumber are followed by a similar warning about the true knowledge being with God alone.¹

There are, however, several other eminent commentators of the Qur'ān who do not agree with this explanation. They hold the view that it is not correct to put a construction on any verse which is not explicitly clear. Similarly, no interpretation should be acceptable unless it can be reliably explained with the help of elaborate details. Imām Rāzī, a commentator of note, says in the Tafsīr Kābīr:

“The verses intervening between the revelation: ‘(Some) will say: They were three, their dog the fourth . . . .’ and the verse giving out the number of years show that the two are entirely unconnected. On the other hand, the passages ‘So contend not concerning them except with an outward contending’, and ‘Say: Allah is Best Aware how long they tarried’, do not refer to any tradition or fable mentioned earlier. These can, therefore, only mean that instead of relying on what others (Jews and Christians) say, one should pin one’s faith in the revealed truth.”

Shaikh-ul-Islam Ibn Taimiyah says: “The view taken by certain commentators, on the basis of the words: “Say, Allah is Best Aware”, that the Qur’an quotes the traditions (in regard to the period of sleep) current among the Jews and Christians, is erroneous. The period indicated is not repetition of what others say: it is a revelation from God.”

It has to be remembered that the so-called discrepancy pointed out by Gibbon in the period of sleep mentioned in the Qur’an, proceeds from the assumption that the youths concealed themselves in the cavern during the Decian persecution. Decius was proclaimed Emperor in September 249 A.D. and died in June, 251 A.D. It seems most probable that Decius was assigned the role of a villain in this tragic drama, by the later scribes, owing to his atrocious cruelty in the persecution of those Christians who disobeyed his edict to perform a pagan religious sacrifice in the presence of duly appointed commissioners, who were to issue a certificate (libellus) that they had done so. This imperial edict is reported to have been issued in June, 250, and then early in 251, but a few months before the death of Decius, the Commissioners seem to have ceased their activities. Decius, who ruled for less than two years, had to spend the greater part of his brief rule amidst the cares of war, first against the Emperor Philip and then against the Goths. His final engagement took place on a swampy ground in the Dobruja in June 251 and ended in the defeat and death of Decius. He perhaps never got the time to visit his far off eastern dominions: at least the accounts of his rule given by the historians are silent about any such excursion by him.

The ecclesiastical writers of the fourth or fifth centuries seem to have exaggerated the earlier martyrdoms owing to the implacable and unrelenting zeal which filled their own breasts against the idolaters of their own times. Gibbon says, on the authority of Origin, that the number of early martyrs was very inconsiderable and that, under the rigorous persecution of Decius; only ten men and seven women suffered for the profession of the Christian faith. These accounts are, however, silent about any persecution of the Christians in or around Ephesus under the orders of Decius.

1. Tafth-i-Kabir, Vol. III.
3. See Encyclopaedia Britannica (1968), Vol. I, p. 157, Art. Decius. It was, however, not under the reign of Decius, but much earlier, under Trajan (98-117 A.D.) that those accused of Christianity were first directed to offer sacrifice to the heathen gods. Those who refused to do so were to be punished for a crime exposed to capital punishment. Under Trajan were martyred Symeon, Bishop of Jerusalem, and Ignatius, Bishop of Antioch. (George H. Dyer: History of the Christian Church, New York-1896, Vol. I, pp. 65-66).
It seems that the concealment of the Christian youths was a local affair of minor significance to attract the attention of the historians. On the other hand, their miraculous awakening after the prolonged sleep, their dramatic appearance in the city and their presentation before the authorities must have been a memorable affair raising a tumultuous commotion in the entire Christendom. The story of the Seven Sleepers, with its reminiscences of classical mythology, must have captured the imagination of the clergy and the laity, the poets and the historians, making it one of the most enchanting fables of the day. The point of the story does not, therefore, lie in the name of any given Emperor mentioned by the later scribes but in the fact that the beginning of the period of slumber coincided with the reign of an Emperor who persecuted the Christians. Viewed from this angle, it seems highly probable that the Seven Sleepers hid themselves in the reign of Hadrian (P. Ælius Hadrianus) who donned the imperial purple for a fairly long time from 117 to 138. In April of A.D. 129 Hadrian undertook a long journey to the eastern provinces of the empire, from which he did not return to take up his residence on the Tiber until the year 134. It is not necessary that the persecution of the Christians of Ephesus should have taken place in the presence of Hadrian or even under his orders. In the extensive dominions of the Roman Empire, any magistrate who exercised in the provinces the authority of the Emperor, or of the senate,

1. “Hadrian learnt on August 11, 117 in Syria, of Trajan’s death and assumed the government. For 12 of his 20 years as emperor Hadrian was absent from Rome, which was perhaps the most notable feature of this principate. In 121 Hadrian left Rome on one of his first travels. He toured first to the West and then to the East; traversing Asia Minor he returned by way of Sicily to Rome by the end of 126. The next year was spent at Rome, and, after a visit to Africa, he set out on his second great journey in September 128. He travelled by way of Athens. In the spring of 129, he again visited Asia Minor and Syria, where he invited the kings and princes of the East to a meeting at Samosata. Having passed the winter at Antioch, he set out for the South in 130. He ordered Jerusalem to be rebuilt under the name of Aelia Capitolina, to be peopled with gentle Roman citizens, and then made his way through Arabia to Egypt. Hadrian returned through Syria to Europe, but was obliged to hurry back to Palestine to deal with the Jewish revolt that broke out in 132. For a while, he commanded in the field himself, then in 134, leaving the conduct of affairs in the hands of Julius Severus he returned to Rome. He died at Baiae on June 10, 138.

Palestine blazed with the last and the most desperate of its rebellions, for three years, during the reign of Hadrian. When the end came in 135, Jerusalem was a ruined and largely depopulated city. The holy city was henceforth prohibited to the Jews.

Hadrian was “proud and vainglorious, envious and destructive, hasty and revengeful, inquisitive into other man’s affairs, and often induced by sycophants to acts of cruelty and injustice. He permitted the revival of the persecution against the Christians, and showed many instances of a bad disposition, which it was the whole study of his life to correct or to conceal.” [The Historians' History of the World: (London-1908), Vol. VI, p. 281].

and to whose hands alone the jurisdiction of life and death of the subjects was entrusted, could have behaved as a remorseless tyrant. It is not improbable that some such functionaries of the State, stimulated by motives of avarice or of personal resentment, might have been more zealous in enforcing the royal edict. This is no mere assumption, for we can find analogous examples in every age. We can thus reasonably conclude that the Companions of the Cave concealed themselves during the reign of Hadrian, who visited Ephesus, and they were raised from their deep slumber in the time of the younger Theodosius. This, if agreed, would not only bring the Christian traditions in conformity with the period indicated in the Qur‘ān, but also sap the very foundation which provided Gibbon with an opportunity to deride the Divine revelation. And this appears to be all the more reasonable because no extant source is definite about the beginning or even the end of the prolonged sleep of the youths. There is also a wide variation between the periods reckoned on the basis of various sources by different authorities. The Syriac sources, for example, claim that the Seven Sleepers woke up in 425 or 437 A.D. while Greek traditions fix the incident in 446 A.D. or the thirty-eighth year of the reign of Theodosius II.

It is our unalterable faith that the Qur‘ān, being the custodian of the revealed truth and earlier scriptures, is much more trustworthy than all those ancient texts which were always open to changes and amendments.

The persecution of the Christians, falsely charged with burning the Roman capital, and punished with the most horrid tortures, had been initiated by Nero as early as in 64 A.D. and it continued unabated under Trajan, Hadrian and Marcus Aurelius. There were occasional periods of peace in between long years of persecution till Constantine embraced Christianity in the beginning of the fourth century. The perplexity produced by the scant and discordant historical material about the early years of Christianity is another reason for not placing reliance, as did Gibbon, on any particular tradition or an ancient text in regard to the exact period and dates of the prolonged sleep of the Seven Sleepers. After all, the hiding of a small band of unknown persons in a far off province of the empire, would have been a minor incident of no significance. Their awakening, on the other hand, during the reign of an Emperor who professed the faith of the persecuted fugitives, must have stirred the imagination of the people.

The real significance of the story can, however, be realised in the context of the then raging controversy about the resurrection of the body and retribution in the Hereafter. An irrefutable evidence, an overwhelming demonstration of the life after death was then required to revive the belief in resurrection, and the event did happen to proclaim this eternal truth, which soon became the most popular and widely circulated story throughout the Roman empire. As it could be hoped, in such circumstances, the story circulating from mouth to mouth would necessarily have become somewhat vague in regard to its details and the dates before it was reduced to writing.
APPENDIX II

Identification of Zul-Qarnain

By S. Abul Hasan Ali Nadvi

The commentators of the Qur'an hold divergent opinions about Zul-Qarnain. A large number of them suppose the person to be Alexander the Great. Imam Razi is of the same view along with the majority of commentators, but actually there is no valid reason to accept this opinion. Alexander the Great lacked most of those characteristics and achievements of Zul-Qarnain which have been expressly mentioned in the Qur'an, as, e.g., faith in the One and Only God, piety, just treatment to the conquered people and the erection of an iron rampart. Perhaps the identification of Zul-Qarnain with Alexander the Great was due to imperfect details of his character and exploits being available to the earlier commentators of the Qur'an.

There are, however, other doctors of faith who identify Zul-Qarnain with the Iranian Emperor Cyrus who was known to the Jews as the Redeemer of Israel, and to the Arabs by the name of Kai Khusroo. This is the view put forth in some detail by Maulana Abul Kalam Azad in Volume II of the Tarjumānul Qur'an, wherein he has adduced numerous references from historical treatises and Jewish religious records in support of his thesis. A summary of it is given here.

A remarkable personality came to the fore in a dramatic manner in 559 B.C. and soon attracted the attention of the whole world. Persia was then divided into two kingdoms: the southern part was known as Persia and the north-western portion was called Media (Arabs called it Mahat). Cyrus welded the Persian tribes into a single nation by defeating Astyages of Media at Pasargadah. Thereafter began the conquests of Cyrus, which were marked not by sanguine battles and cruelties but by humanity and mildness to the vanquished inhabitants and honour to the defeated monarchs. Within 12 years all the lands from Black Sea to Bactria had been reduced to the position of Persian dependencies.

In the spring of 546 B.C. Croesus of Lydia attacked Persia, Cyrus flung himself upon him, beat him at Pteria in Cappadocia and pursued him to Lydia, the North-Western part of Asia Minor, which was then the centre of Hellenistic civilization in Asia.

A second victory followed on the banks of Pactolus: by the autumn of 546, Sardis had already fallen, and the Persian forces advanced to the bounds of Mediterranean. During the next few years, the Greek littoral towns were reduced,
In 539 B.C. Nabonidus was defeated and Babylon occupied, which, with the Chaldean empire, Syria and Palestine also became Persian.

When Cyrus would have advanced beyond Sardis he must have turned back from the coast of Αgean Sea, near Smyrna. Here he would have seen the sea taking the shape of a lake and the sun setting in the murky water: "he found it setting in a muddy spring," as the Qur’ān puts it (xviii: 87).

In his eastward expedition, Cyrus conquered the lands up to Makran and Balkh. In this region he subdued the uncivilized nomadic tribes, which have also been referred to in the Qur’ān: "he found it (sun) raising on a people for whom we had appointed no shelter therefrom" (xviii: 91). After reducing Babylon, Cyrus rescued the Jews from the tyranny of Nabonidus, as predicted in the Jewish Scriptures. He permitted the Jews in Babylon to return and rebuild Jerusalem.

The last campaign of Cyrus was in the direction of the lands despoiled by the people called Gog and Magog. Cyrus advanced towards Caucasus, leaving Caspian Sea to his right, where he came across a mountain pass between two steep hills rising like walls. Here he constructed the iron rampart to check the ingress of Gog and Magag.

Cyrus met his end in 529 B.C. A marble statue with two horns on his head, signifying the unified kingdoms of Persia and Media, was recovered from the ruins of Pasargade in 1938. The unification of these two kingdoms gave Cyrus the title of Zul-Qarnain. Cyrus has been rightly praised by most of the modern historians for his conquests as well as for his just and mild treatment of the conquered people (For further details see Universal History of the World, Vol. II, by J. A. Hammerton).

But the view expressed by Saiyid Qutub in Fi Zalā’il il Qur’ān, which is being reproduced here, appears to us more logical than the explanations given by other commentators.

"The Qur’ān does not specify the identity or the time and place of Zul-Qarnain. This is a style of narration peculiar to the stories mentioned in the Qur’ān, for its aim is not to historicise the events but to draw out the moral and lesson of the story. The purpose can very often be achieved without determining the location and chronology of the events mentioned in the Qur’ān.

"Our recorded history does mention an emperor by the name of Alexander Zul-Qarnain but it is certain that he was not the personality meant by the Qur’ān. Alexander the great was a polytheist and an idol worshipper while the sovereign mentioned in the Qur’ān was a man of God, a unitarian, having faith in the Day of Judgment, Resurrection, etc.

"In his book entitled Al-Athār-ul-Baqiyah an-al-Quroon il-Khidliyah Abū Raihān

1. Literally "The two-horned" one al-Bairūnī writes that Zul-Qarnain spoken of in the Qur’ān belonged to Hymar,¹ as the name itself indicates. The kings of Hymar had Zū as an essential part of their names as, e.g. Zū-Nuwās, Zū-Yazān. The proper name of Zul-Qarnain was Abū Bakr Ibn Afriqash. He subdued all the lands on the coast of Mediterranean Sea, including Tunis and Morocco, and founded a city called Afriqiah which gave its name to the entire continent. He was called by the name of Zul-Qarnain as he was believed to have reached the lands of rising and setting sun.

"This view might be correct but we have no means to verify it. The extant records of history hardly contain anything about him, and the description of his character and conquests given in the Qur’ān is too general like that of the peoples of Noah, Hūd, Sālih, etc. Actually the records preserved by our history constitute only a fraction of our life-story on this earth. We have no record of the events that took place before history began to list them. Its verdict is thus not at all reliable.

"If only the Old Testament could have been preserved in its pristine purity without interpolations and additions, it could have served as a valuable source of history. But, unfortunately, numerous legends have been introduced and interwoven with the revelation contained in this Scripture with the result that the historical events mentioned in it cannot be relied upon.

"The Qur’ān being free from all additions, alterations and mutilations can, undoubtedly, be a trustworthy source of the events narrated by it, but its version cannot, obviously, be verified from the historical records. This is so because of two reasons; first, the history does not account for innumerable happenings; and, secondly, the Qur’ān unfolds some of those events of the olden times which have not been recorded at all.

"There is another reason too. Recorded history, even if it contains the details of any particular happening, is, after all, a human endeavour always likely to commit mistakes or misrepresent the event in question. With all the facilities of communications, means of transmitting news and techniques of their verification in the modern times, we sometimes come across different versions of one and the same story. The same event is not often interpreted differently, viewed from different angles and widely differing conclusions are drawn therefrom. This is, in truth, the basic material which serves as the source of history: it is, however, an entirely different matter that we have devised elaborate norms for post-scrutiny and verification of the authenticity of the material thus collected.

Therefore, it is against the accepted principles of literary criticism as well as Quranic exegesis to seek historical evidence for the verification of events related by the Qur’ān. Moreover, this procedure is also not in accord with the conviction which claims to profess the Qur’ān as eternal, unchangeable word of God. Absolute reliance cannot, obviously, be placed on the data thus collected by history

1. An ancient South Arabian people either by one having faith in the revelatory nature of the Qurʾān or by an impartial literary critic. Historical data is, at best, no more than a collection of our impressions, estimates and ideas about the past happenings.

"The Prophet had been asked about Zul-Qarnain. Thereupon God revealed certain salient characteristics of the monarch known by that name. Now, the Qurʾān being the only source of knowledge about him, the verification of its historicity or otherwise is beyond our means. The commentaries on the Qurʾān present differing views in the matter and, therefore, reliance cannot be placed on them. If any particular view is endorsed by any commentator, he ought to be extremely cautious for numerous traditions of yore and Israelite legends have found their way into some of the old commentaries."¹

It hardly makes any difference to a student of the Qurʾān whether he is able to identify Zul-Qarnain with any sovereign in the light of available historical records or not. It should be sufficient for him that the Qurʾān has indicated the dominant characteristics of Zul-Qarnain. We know that he was endowed with political and military power, manifold resources, courage, large-heartedness and nobility of character.

"Verily We! We established him in the earth, and vouchsafed unto him of everything a way (to attain anything he desired).

"Then he followed a way."

And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless, (Lk. 1: 5—6). 'An old man at the close of the reign of Herod the Great (B.C. 4) ... Even in that evil time of wickedness in high places in Church and State, there lived in Palestine no inconsiderable number of just and devout persons both among priests and people. Of such was Zacharias. ... He chose for wife one of the sacerdotal house, a daughter of Aaron, named after Aaron's wife as pious as himself. They were righteous not only in the sight of men but of God, and blameless is their case to observe all His commandments and ordinances.' (Hastings, op. cit., II, p. 844) See also P. III, n. 376.

77. The prayer was made in private through the fear of his relatives. Of course he could not complain of his relatives in public or aloud. خفيا — literally, is 'a low tone of voice'.

78. i. e., my prayers have always been granted; so this time I am about to beg of Thee a gift that, looking to my age and health, might seem unusual. 'And they had no child, because that Elisabeth was barren, and they both were now well stricken in years,' (Lk. 1: 7).

79. (and fellow-priests of the Temple).

80. (that they instead of instructing the people in the true faith would themselves turn to irreligion and impiety).

81. (which negatives the possibility of a child in the ordinary course of nature).

82. (as a matter of Thy special grace).

83. Which heritage consisted of true religion and piety.

84. (to Thyself, by his virtue and piety).

85. Cf. the NT:—'The angel said unto him, Fear not, Zacharias: for thy prayer is heard; and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John.' (Lk. 1: 13).

86. 'And it came to pass, that on the eighth day they came to circumcise the child; and they called him Zacharias, after the name of his father. And his mother answered and said, Not so; but he shall be called John. And they said unto her, There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name.' (Lk. 1: 59-61).
8. (قَالَ... عَنْهَا) He said: Lord! in what wise shall there be a boy for me? My wife has been barren, and I have reached the extreme age.

9. (قَالَ... سَبَباً) Allah said: even so! Thy Lord says: it is to Me easy.

10. (قَالَ... سَوْى) Surely I have created thee before, when thou wast not anything.

11. (غَضَبَ... عَشْرًا) He said Lord! appoint me a sign. Allah said: thy sign is that thou shalt not speak to mankind for three nights, while sound.

12. (لَيْتِي... مَبْنِيَ) Then he came forth to his people from the sanctuary and he beckoned to them: hallow your Lord morning and evening.

13. (وَضَحَّاهَا... فِيَامًا) O Ya’yi hold fast the Book. And We granted him wisdom, while yet a child.

14. (دِيرَا... عَمِداً) and tenderness from Our presence and purity, and he was pious.

15. (دِيَّر... حِباً) and dutiful to his parents, and was not a high-handed rebel.

16. (مَاذَكَرَ... شَرِيفًا) And peace be to him on the day of his birth and death, and on the day he will be raised up.

SECTION 2

16. (مَاذَكَرَ... شَرِيفًا) And mention thou in the Book Maryam, when she retired from her people to a place eastward.

87. i.e., shall I marry a second wife, or shall we, husband and wife, be made young once more? The expression is not of wonder, much less of incredulity, but it is a request for further elucidation.

88. ‘And they had no child, because that Elisabeth was barren, and they both were now well stricken in years.’ (Lk. 1:7) Also 1:18.

89. i.e., it would happen in the existing circumstances, without the restoration of youth or any other abnormal means.

90. —this birth of a child in old age.

91. —a thing of far greater wonder.
92. (whereby I may know that my wife is with child, and in order that I may perform some special offering to Thee).

93. (and days, and yet shalt glorify and hallow God).

94. i. e., while physically quite fit, and uneffected by any disease of the tongue. The epithet ָּלָּשַׁר is added to correct an inaccuracy of the Bible that Zacharias was struck ‘dumb’ and ‘unable to speak.’ (Lk. 1:20).

95. (after the son was conceived and Zacharias could not speak). ‘And when he came out, he could not speak unto them. . . . He beckoned unto them and remained speechless.’ (Lk. 1:21, 22).

96. John ‘the Baptist’ (on him be peace!) on coming of age receives Revelation of God. According to the Christian conception, he was ‘the greatest of the prophets, yea and more than a prophet.’ (Dummmelow; op. cit., p. 737).

97. (of Moses), i. e., study and observe it. ‘The rise of Christianity was preceded by a long period of four hundred years, during which prophecy was silent, and the religious guidance of the nation passed to the rabbis and the scribes, who made void the Law of God by their traditions. The advent of Christ was heralded by a great revival of prophecy . . . as in the cases of Zacharias, Joseph . . . . and in particular, John the Baptist.’ (Dummmelow; op. cit., p. 737).

98. See P. III, n. 387, 388.

99. ‘He was a prophet, the last and greatest of the prophetic succession under the old dispensation. His personal righteousness and integrity were unquestioned.’ (NSBD, p. 462) See also P. III, n. 389. ָּיָּרָּז is here in the sense of ָּיָּרָּז (LL).

100. This is put in to refute the false accusation of sedition and rebellion brought against John by the state under Herod.

101. (O Prophet!).

102. (to wash herself or to pray).
Then she took beside them a curtain. Then We sent unto her Our spirit and he appeared to her in the form of a sound human being.

She said: verily I take refuge with the Compassionate from thee if thou art God-fearing.

He said: I am but an envoy of thy Lord and have come to bestow on thee a boy, faultless.

She said: how can there be a boy unto me, whereas no human being has touched me, nor have I been a harlot?

He said: even so! Thy Lord says: easy it is with Me, and it is in order that We make him a sign to mankind and it is a mercy from Us and it is an affair decreed.

Then she conceived him and she retired with him to a place far off.

Then the birth-pangs drove her to the trunk of a palm-tree. She said: would that I had died before this and had become forgotten, lost in oblivion.

Then one called from underneath her:

(to screen herself).

i.e. the angel Gabriel.

(and perfect, to solace her).

Naturally frightened at the appearance of a stranger in her privacy, she beseeches him, in the name of God, to withdraw from her.

(and His angel).

(miraculously).
109. (and sinless, like any other prophet of God).
110. (by way of marital intercourse).
111. (or unchaste). This is to refute the most vulgar charge of the Jews that she led an immoral life. See Schonfield's According to the Hebrews, p. 35.
112. i.e., this miracle of virgin birth.
113. (of Our omnipotence, by this miraculous manner of his birth).
114. (through his preaching).
115. (after the angel had blown his breath into the bosom of her shirt).
116. (in her womb).
117. (from her family). This may refer to her shifting from her native place Nazareth to the generally accepted birth-place of Jesus, Bethlehem, which is at a distance of 7 miles. Even if not this famous Bethlehem, but an obscure village of the same name near Nazareth be accepted as his birth-place (see EBi. c. 3362) then that place also is 7 miles north-west of West Nazareth.
118. (that she might lean on it in her travail). 'The tree was very plentiful in Palestine in ancient times.' (J.E. IX, p. 505) 'Several names in the Bible give evidence of the plentifulness of the palm'. (p. 506) The tree has generally been termed the prince of the vegetable kingdom.
119. (overcome with shame and pain).
120. i.e., from below the place where she was. This crier was the angel Gabriel.
121. (so that thou shalt not suffer from thirst).
122. (so that thou shalt not suffer from hunger). 'The date-palm was put to many uses. The fruit was used for food... The qualities of the date-palm are referred to quite frequently in a figurative sense in the poetical books of the Bible.' (JE. IX, p. 505) Regarding this fruit, W. G. Palgrave remarked: 'Those who, like most Europeans at home, only know the date from the dried specimens of that fruit shown beneath a label in shop-windows, can hardly imagine how delicious it is when eaten fresh,'... The dried fruit used for dessert in European countries contains more than half of its weight of sugar, about 6% of albumen, and 12% of gummy matter.' (EBr. VII, p. 69, XI Ed.)
26. (تكذب ... إنسا) so eat and drink thou, and cool thine eyes,\textsuperscript{123} and if thou seest of humans anyone\textsuperscript{124} say\textsuperscript{125} thou: verily I have vowed to the Compassionate a fast,\textsuperscript{126} so I shall not speak to anyone today.

27. (قات ... نرويا) Then she brought the baby to her people carrying him.\textsuperscript{127} They said: O Maryam! thou hast brought a thing unheard of;\textsuperscript{128} O sister of Hāru:n:\textsuperscript{129} thy father was not a man of evil, nor was thy mother unchaste.\textsuperscript{130}

29. (فاعترض ... صيا) Then she pointed to him.\textsuperscript{131} They said: how can we speak to one who is in the cradle, a mere child?\textsuperscript{132} He said: verily I am a bondman of Allah.\textsuperscript{133} He has given me the Book and made me a prophet,\textsuperscript{134} and He has made me blessed wherever I may be and enjoined on me prayer and purity as long as I am alive;\textsuperscript{135} and dutiful to my mother,\textsuperscript{135a} and not made me high-handed and unblest;\textsuperscript{136}

33. (والسلام ... حيا) and peace be on me the day I was born and the day I die and the day I am raised up.\textsuperscript{137}

34. (ذلك ... يتركون) Such is Isā, son of Maryam; this is the word of truth, wherein they\textsuperscript{138} are doubting.

35. (ماكان ... يكون) Allah is not one to take to Himself a son.\textsuperscript{140} Hallowed be He\textsuperscript{141} Whosoever He decrees an affair, He only say to it: be, and it becomes.\textsuperscript{142}

\textsuperscript{123} (with the sight of the child).

\textsuperscript{124} (and he is inclined to accost her regarding the child.)

\textsuperscript{125} (by signs and gestures).

\textsuperscript{126} (involving abstinence from speech).

\textsuperscript{127} (in her arms).

\textsuperscript{128} حري في: literally is ‘a thing forged or fabricated’, and hence ‘unknown, or unheard of.’ (LL).
129. i.e., like him in piety, or comparable to him in virtue, اخت is not necessarily a sister; and as the feminine of اخ is signifies a friend a companion, an associate, or a fellow. اخت means, ‘conformity, or similarity; and combination, agreement, or unison in action’; and اخت بين كبيرين signifies ‘I united the things as fellows, or pairs.’ (LL) The phrase النوم اخ الموت means ‘sleep is the like of death’, and رمء الله بخت لا اخت لها signifies, ‘God afflicted him with a night having none like to it.’ (LL) In surah Zakhruf*, verse 47, it is clearly used in the sense of ‘like’. Here the epithet is all the more apt, since Mary was a descendant of Aaron and through him belonged to the tribe of Levi, noted for virtue and piety. (IQ) يمين أخت في الملاح لا في النوبة. See Appendix III at the end of Surah.

130. (so how shameful of thee to have gone wrong and to have brought disgrace to thy illustrious family).

131. (for the answer).

132. See P. III, n. 423.

133. (and not a Son or Incarnation of God). A refutation of the Christian position.

134. (and not a charlatan or magician). A refutation of the Jewish position.

135. ‘I am Jesus, son of Mary, of the seed of David, a man that is mortal and feareth God, and I seek that to God be given honour and glory.’ (GB, p 221).

135-A. This refutes and contradicts the position implied in various passages of the NT that the attitude of Jesus towards his mother was cold and indifferent. See Mt. 12: 46-50; Mk. 3: 31-35; Lk, 8: 19-21.

136. ‘I am meek and lowly in heart.’ (Mt. 11: 29) It is one of the matchless beauties of the Holy Qur’án that in a few, select words, it demolishes an entire edifice of falsehoods and untruths. By the use of the two words جبار and شن it denies exactly the two charges of sedition and blasphemy brought against Jesus by the Jews. ‘The charges were two in number, one sedition, the other blasphemy.’ (Rosadi, Trial of Jesus, p. 178).

137. (like all mortals). All these facts of birth, death and resurrection serve to emphasize the absurdity of the Godhead of Jesus. See P. III, n. 469.

138. i.e., the Jews and the Christians and their various sects.

139. (and wrangling among themselves).

140. i.e., it is not at all in keeping with the nature of Divinity.

141. (from all such derogatory imputations).

142. (so in his way He brought Jesus also into being). See P. III, n. 489.
36. And verily Allah is my Lord and your Lord, so worship Him, and this is a way straight.

37. Then the sects have differed among themselves. Woe to those who deny the witness of a mighty Day.

38. How wonderful in their hearing and in their sight will they be the Day they come to Us! But to-day the wrong-doers are in manifest error.

39. And warn thou them of the Day of Sighing when the affair shall have been decreed, while yet they are heedless and are not believing.

40. Verily We I We shall inherit the earth and whatever is thereon; and unto Us they shall be returned.

SECTION 3

41. And mention thou in the Book Ibrāhim. He was a man of truth, a prophet.

42. Recall when he said to his father: father! why dost thou worship that which neither sees nor hears, nor yet avails thee at all?

43. Father! verily there has come to me of knowledge what has not come to thee; so follow me, and I shall guide thee to an even path.

44. Father! serve not Satan; surely Satan has been a rebel against the Compassionate.

143. —say thou, O Prophet!—
144. (alone, O Christians and men of other faiths!)
145. (of the Jews, Christians and polytheists).
146. (turning away from the basic principle of Unity and inventing so many doctrines of their own).
147. (O Prophet!).
148. (and their fate sealed).
149. i.e., God alone shall survive when all creatures will be dead and annihilated.
150. (O Prophet!).
151. (and veracity). صَدِيق is the intensive form of صَدِيق ‘the truthful’, and implies an invariable habit of veracity and imperishable love of truth. The epithet is brought in, perhaps, to correct the Biblical imputation to him of falsehood twice (vide Ge. 12:13; 20:2).
152. The historicity of Abraham has now at long last come to be recognized even by the ‘critical’ and ‘sceptical’ Europe. ‘The Old Testament evidence, supported by the independent testimony of secular literature, justifies us in holding that there was such a person,……that he lived originally at Ur in Mesopotamia, that he and his people moved thence into northern Syria and subsequently into Palestine, and that he lived in about the twentieth century before Christ.’ (Woolley, Abraham, p. 50) See also P. I, n. 559.
153. ‘The religion of Ur was a polytheism of the grossest type. Written texts preserve for us the names of about five thousand Sumerian gods, great and small,’ (Woolley, Abraham, p. 192) See P. VII, nn. 526, 527.
154. i.e., the Divine Revelation which is the only infallible knowledge.
155. To obey the devil in worshipping the idols is in effect to worship the devil himself.
156. To remind that the rebellion directed against the fountain-head of all Compassion and Mercy is to make that rebellion all the more heinous and disgraceful.
45. Father! verily I fear there may touch thee a torment from the Compassionate, 157 as that thou become a companion to Satan. 158

46. He said: Ibrahim! art thou averse to my gods? 159 If thou desist not, 160 surely I will stone thee, 161 and depart thou from me for ever so long.

47. (Ibrahim) said: peace be on thee, 162 presently I shall ask forgiveness for thee 163 from my Lord; verily He is unto me ever Solicitous. 164

48. and I renounce you and all that you serve besides Allah. 165 and I shall call unto my Lord, 166 and I hope in calling unto my Lord I shall not be unblest. 167

49. Then when he had renounced them and all that they served besides Allah, 168 We bestowed on him Is-hāq and Yāqūb 169 and each one We made a prophet.

50. And We bestowed on them of Our mercy, 170 and We made for them a lofty renown. 170.4

SECTION 4

51. And mention thou 171 in the Book Mūsā; he was single-hearted, 172 and was a messenger, prophet. 173

52. And We cried unto him from the right side of the mount, 174 and We drew him nigh for whispering. 175

53. We bestowed on him, out of Our mercy, his brother Hārūn, a prophet. 176

157. (in this very world).

158. (in the Hell-fire). Woe to my father and to this evil generation; woe to those who incline their hearts to vanity and worship senseless images without the power to smell or eat, to see or hear. Mouths they have, but sounds they cannot utter; eyes they have, but lack all power to see; they have ears that cannot hear, hands that cannot move, and feet that cannot walk. Senseless as they are the men who wrought them, senseless all who trust in them and bow before them. ... Then why serve senseless, powerless gods—gods who can neither help thee in thy need nor hear thy supplications? Evil it is of thee and those who unite with thee to serve images of stone and wood, forgetting the Lord God who made the heaven and the earth and all that is therein. Ye bring guilt upon your souls, the same guilt for which your ancestors were punished by waters of the flood. Cease, oh, my father, to serve such gods, lest evil fall upon thy souls and the souls of all thy family.' (Polano, op. cit., pp. 35, 36).

159. i.e., the family gods, the tribal gods, the state gods.
160. and persist in flouting my authority.

161. Which procedure would not have been very peculiar or novel according to the laws of the land. 'The son was not a free instrument during his father's life, for by Sumerian law the head of the family held absolute authority.' (Woolley, Abraham, p. 239).

162. Contrast the placidity of Abraham with the arrogant haughtiness of his father.

163. by bestowing on thee true guidance.
164. i.e., considerate and regardful of me; showering benevolence and affection on me; always answering my prayer when I pray to Him.

165. departing from you and your gods physically as I have always held aloof from you and them mentally.

166. praying that you may yet be shown the path of truth.

167. as you are in calling upon your lifeless and inert gods.

168. and had departed from his ancestral home in Chaldea to Syria and thence to Palestine.

169. as a son and a grandson, after his first-born Ismail.

170. i.e., gifts both material and spiritual.

170-A. یٰ لَهِئَ (IQ).

171. (O Prophet!)

172. in his devotion to God, and free from all moral taint.

173. A یٰ in Islam is not a mere 'foreteller'; he is a direct recipient of the Revelation of God and is charged with the duty of acquainting others respecting God and things Beyond. A یٰ is one who has a message; a messenger, an envoy, Angels also are یٰ in this sense.

174. See P. XX, n. 189, 190.
175. i.e., for having a private discourse with Us.

176. See P. XIX, nn. 155, 156.
54. (وذكر) And mention thou in the Book Ismā'īl, he was true in promise, and was a messenger, a prophet.

55. (كان) And he was wont to bid his household to prayer and purity, and he was with his Lord an approved one.

56. (وذكر) And mention thou in the Book Idrīs. He was a man of truth, a prophet.

57. (ورفعه) And We exalted him to a lofty position.

58. (أركان ...) These are they whom Allah has favoured from among the prophets, of the progeny of Adam and of them whom We bore with Nūh, and of the progeny of Ibrāhīm and Isrāfīl, and of them whom We have guided and chosen. Whenever the Revelations of the Compassionate were rehearsed to them, they fell down prostrating themselves and weeping.

59. (وأطلق) Then there succeeded them a posterity who neglected prayers and followed lusts; so they shall meet presently with the perdition, excepting those who may repent and believe and work righteousness. These shall enter the Garden and shall not be wronged at all——

177. Whose mother was ‘no woman of the tents, but Hagar the Egyptian; she was at least a civilized creature, sprung from the second great centre of culture in the ancient world.’ (Woolley, op. cit., p. 144). See also P. I. n. 570.

178. (besides his other virtues).

179. ‘And God was with the lad......And his mother took him a wife out of the land of Egypt.’ (Ge. 21: 20, 21).

180. (and not a rejected one, as his traducers, the Jews and the Christians, would have it).

181. Probably Enoch of the Bible. He was the son of Jared, and lived for 365 years, (Ge. 5: 18, 22) Seventh in descent from Adam, he was the father of Methuselah. According to the Jewish tradition he was the first author, and the inventor of letters, arithmetic and astronomy.
182. (and veracity). This is perhaps to refute the opinion held by a section of the Jews that Enoch was ‘inconsistent in his piety’ (JE. V. p. 178), or that he was ‘light-minded and inclined to sin again.’ (Rashi, On Genesis p. 93).

183. ‘And Enoch walked with God’ (Ge. 5:22, 24).

184. it may be ‘a place’ as well as ‘a position.’ So the words of the Holy Qur’ān do not necessarily support the Jewish and the Christian view that Enoch was translated alive to the heaven. Cf. the Bible and its commentaries. ‘And he was not; for God took him.’ (Ge. 5:24). The meaning of the expression “he was not; for God took him,” is, no doubt, correctly given by the writer of Heb, as that Enoch never died, but he was translated to heaven, like Elijah, as a reward for the holiness of his life. (Dummelow, op. cit., p. 13) ‘By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him’ (He. 11:5) ‘Enoch was a pious worshipper of the true God, and was removed from among the dwellers on earth to heaven......Enoch is one of those that passed into Garden of Eden without tasting the pangs of death.’ (JE. V. p. 178).

185. (on the ark).

186. So all of them were meek and lowly in spirit, and obedient servants and devout worshippers of God.

187. i.e., in the Hereafter.
61. Gardens everlasting which the Compassionate has promised to His bondmen, though yet unseen;\(^{188}\) Verily His promise is ever to be fulfilled.

62. They shall not hear therein any vain word, but they shall hear only peace;\(^{189}\) and they shall have therein their provision morning and evening.\(^{190}\)

63. Such is the Garden which We shall cause Our bondmen to inherit who have been God-fearing.

64. And we,\(^{191}\) the angels, do not descend, except by the command of thy Lord. His is whatever is before us and whatsoever is behind us and whatsoever is in-between;\(^{192}\) and the Lord is never forgetful\(^{193}\) —

65. Lord of the heavens and the earth and what is in-between; so Him worship thou, and endure patiently in His worship; dost thou know any one as His compeer?\(^{194}\)

SECTION 5

66. And man says:\(^{195}\) when I am dead, shall I be raised alive?

67. Does not man remember that We created him before he was anything?\(^{196}\)

68. By thy Lord, then, We will surely gather them and the devils;\(^{197}\) thereafter We will surely bring them round Hell, kneeling.\(^{198}\)

69. Then, We will surely draw aside from each sect those who were most rebellious\(^{199}\) against the Compassionate.

188. i. e., ‘in reward for their secret faith.’

189. i. e., words of peace and comfort. The Paradise will be pre-eminently a place of tranquillity, free from evils, vices and blemishes of any kind.

190. i. e., at all times. ‘Morning and evening’ are only used in a relative sense, so as to be comprehended by us, as there will be no actual sunset in the Paradise.
191. The whole phrase is on behalf of the angel Gabriel to whom the holy Prophet in his eagerness for incessant Divine communion had complained of long intervals between the revelations.

192. (in space and in time). This demonstrates once more the absolute dependence of angels on God’s will.

193. (as imagined by misguided communities, but is ever Vigilant and Cognizant of all purposes).

194. (O reader ! (is not only a namesake, but also one co-equal) (Rgh).

195. (denying and ridiculing the fact of Resurrection).

196. (and We are the same old Creator, having lost or forgotten nothing of Our Creative Ability).

197. Every infidel shall appear on the Judgement-Day chained to the devil who seduced him.

198. (seized with extreme terror).

199. (to consign them to the lowest depth of Hell and the greatest degrees of torment).
201. (O mankind!),
202. (Their Lord and believed in Him. Compare a teaching of Jesus, unrecorded in the canonised gospels—Every one be he who he may must go into the torturings),
203. (O mankind!), (so there will be no need of any long and laborious enquiry at the time).

Then surely it is We who know best as to which of them were the worthiest of being roasted therein.

70. (لَا يَدْعُونَ، بَلْ يَدْعُونَ وَلَدَوْنَ. وَمَا الْجِنَّ وَالْجَانَّةُ إِلَّا أَرْضَانِيَّةٌ مُّرَبَّةٌ) Then surely it is We who know best as to which of them were the worthiest of being roasted therein.

71. (إِنَّ الْجَنَّةَ أَمْدَادًا نَكْرُونَ) Then We will deliver them who have feared God and will leave the wrong-doers kneading therein.

72. (لَا يَدْعُونَ. وَمَا الْجِنَّ وَالْجَانَّةُ إِلَّا أَرْضَانِيَّةٌ مُّرَبَّةٌ) And there is not one of you but shall pass over and will leave the wrong-doers kneading therein.

73. (فَإِنَّ الْجَنَّةَ أَمْدَادًا نَكْرُونَ) And when Our clear Revelations are rehearsed to them, the inattendis say to the faithful: which of the two portions is better in respect of reward and in respect of return.

74. (وَمَا الْجِنَّ وَالْجَانَّةُ إِلَّا أَرْضَانِيَّةٌ مُّرَبَّةٌ) Say thou: (O Prophet! whoever is in error—surely unto him Allah increases in guidance those who let themselves be guided; and with thy Lord the righteous works that last are excellent in station and goodlier in company.)

75. (وَمَا الْجِنَّ وَالْجَانَّةُ إِلَّا أَرْضَانِيَّةٌ مُّرَبَّةٌ) Allah increases in guidance those who let themselves be guided; and with thy Lord the righteous works that last are excellent in station and goodlier in company. And how many a generation We have destroyed before them, who were goodlier in goods and outward appearance.

76. (وَمَا الْجِنَّ وَالْجَانَّةُ إِلَّا أَرْضَانِيَّةٌ مُّرَبَّةٌ) And when they were threatened, either the torment of the Hour, then they shall have to know whosever is worse in position and weaker in hosts.

77. (وَمَا الْجِنَّ وَالْجَانَّةُ إِلَّا أَرْضَانِيَّةٌ مُّرَبَّةٌ) And when they were threatened, either the torment of the Hour, then they shall have to know whosever is worse in position and weaker in hosts.

78. (وَمَا الْجِنَّ وَالْجَانَّةُ إِلَّا أَرْضَانِيَّةٌ مُّرَبَّةٌ) And when they were threatened, either the torment of the Hour, then they shall have to know whosever is worse in position and weaker in hosts.
204. (in derision and arrogance).
205. i.e., which of us, the believers and the rejecters, is better off in worldly position and affluence?
206. (boasting of their worldly pomp and materialistic civilization).
207. (O Prophet! to those intoxicated with the wealth, power and position of the world).
208. He giveth them the rope, as the English idiom has it.
209. (in this world).
210. (as contrasted with unrighteous deeds of essentially ephemeral nature).
211. (O Prophet!).
212. The allusion is to a particularly virulent pagan of Makka, ‘Aās ibn Wā'il, who on a certain occasion had exclaimed by way of ridicule to one of his creditors: ‘What! shall I be raised to life after death! Well, if that is going to happen, come to me at that time, and as I shall have abundance of riches and children, I shall pay you then and there.’
78. (اصلح ... عهد) Has he looked unto the Unseen, or has he taken a covenant with the Compassionate? 213

79. (لا ...) مادي By no means! We will write down what he says; and We will prolong for him the torment a length.

80. (ومنه ...) فدا And We will inherit from him 214 that of which he spoke 215 and he shall come to Us alone. 216

81. (وأعدوا ...) عرب And they 217 have taken gods besides Allah that they 218 might be a glory for them. 219

82. (لا ...) مادي By no means! presently they will deny their worship, and become an adversary unto them. 220

SECTION 6

83. (ألم ...) أنا Dost thou not see that 221 We have set 222 the devils 223 upon infidel 224 inciting them by an incitement. 225

84. (لا ...) عدا So hasten thou not against them; We are only counting against them a counting. 226

85. (ومدنا ...) فدا On the day whereon We shall gather the pious unto the Compassionate as an embassy. 227

86. (ومنون ...) وودا and shall drive the culprits to Hell as a herd. 228

87. (لا ...) ملكن (لا ...) عدم They shall not own intercession, 229 excepting those who have taken with the Compassionate a covenant. 229

88. (ووقا ...) وودا And they 231 say: the Compassionate has taken a son. 232

89. (لقد ...) إنا Assuredly you have brought a thing monstrous. 233

90. (تكاد ...) هدا The heavens are well-nigh rent thereat and the earth cleft and the mountains well-nigh fell down; 234

91. (أن ...) وودا that they should ascribe to the Compassionate a son. 235

213. (that is shall be so).

214. (at his death).
215. i. e., riches and children.
216. (bereft of offspring and property).
217. i. e., the polytheists.
218. i. e., these gods.
219. (before God, and might intercede with Him on their behalf). ‘Glory’ in the context means a source of strength and glory.
220. i. e., instead of being helpful to their worshippers, these gods shall renounce and denounce them.
221. (O Prophet!).
222. (in Our universal Plan).
223. (who can only suggest sin and infidelity with no power to enforce their will).
224. (who of their own will capitulate to the viles of the devil).
225. (by artifice). ٖل signifies, ‘inciting a man to do a thing by artifice, or cunning or gentleness.’
226. i. e., We have allowed to them a certain period of respite.
227. ٝ is a company honoured.
228. (of thirsty cattle).
229. i. e., they will have no power of intercession.
230. Or ‘permission.’ There is no special Mediator in Islam. The God of Islam has not been estranged from mankind, and no special Mediator is needed to effect reconciliation.
231. i. e., the polytheists in general Here the Christians are meant in particular.
232. ‘God the Son is the Second Person of the Blessed Trinity. He is the onlybegotten and eternal Son of the Father. He is consubstantial with the Father.’ (CD p. 912).
233. (O Christians!)
234. So staggering is the blasphemy you utter! Compare a saying of Jesus himself, recorded in the ‘canonical’ gospels. ‘The crowded drew nigh, and when they knew him they began to cry out; Welcome to thee, O our God! and they began to do him reverence, as unto God. Whereupon Jesus gave a great groan, and said: Get ye from before me, O mad men, for I fear lest the earth should open and devour me with you for abominable words.’ (GB. p. 213).
235. Even to the early Christians ‘the doctrine of the Trinity appeared inconsistent with the unity of God which is emphasized in the Scriptures. They therefore denied it, and accepted Jesus Christ, not as incarnate God, but as God’s highest creature by whom all else was created, or as the perfect man who taught the true doctrine of God.’ (EBr. V, p. 634)
92. (و ما ...) it behoves not the Compassionate that He should take a son.

93. (أن ...) None there is in the heavens and the earth but must come to the Compassionate as a bondman.

94. (لقد ...) Assuredly He has comprehended them and counted them a full counting.

95. (و كلم ... فردًا ...) And every one of them is to come to Him on the Day of Judgement alone.

96. (إن التنين ... وردًا ...) Verily those who believe and do righteous works, the Compassionate will assign for them affection.

97. (فأنا ... لآ) So We have made it easy in thy tongue in order that thou mayest thereby give glad tidings to the pious and warn thereby a people contentious.

98. (و كرر ...) And how many a generation We destroyed before them But canst thou perceive anyone of them or hear of them even a whisper !

236. 'He hath no father nor mother; he hath no sons, no brethren, nor companions.' (GB. p. 31).

242. (in this very world, apart from their reward in the Future).

243. (i. e., His own love, and esteem of mankind. This was well illustrated in the life of the holy Prophet himself; who was surrounded 'by a warm and self-sacrificing love.' (Muir, op. cit., p. 513), and who possessed 'a still greater gift of attaching men to himself.' (Macdonald, Aspects of Islam, p. 74).

APPENDIX III

SISTER OF AARON OF THE OLD TESTAMENT

AND

UKHT-U-HARUN OF THE QURAN

(XIX. Surah Maryam, Verse 29, No. 129)

'Sher Mohammad Syed

1. INTRODUCTION:

There have been two famous Marys in world religious history. Each of them has been described as Ukht-u-Harun i.e., the sister of Harun (Aaron).

2. SISTER OF AARON OF THE OLD TESTAMENT:

The first was the sister of Moses and Aaron (Harun) and has been described as follows in verse no. 20 of Chapter XV of the book of Exodus of the Old Testament:

“And Miriam the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances”.

N. B Mary, Miriam, Maria and Miryam are variants of the name. The italicized portion of the above quotation appears as مريم النبيَّة أخت هَرُون in the Arabic version of the Bible published by the Bible Societies. It should be borne in mind that “the sister of Aaron” is a pure and simple instance of a possessive case but is neither a divine title nor an appellation exclusively reserved for Miriam or Mary, the sister of Aaron (and Moses), but would be applicable to any sister of a person named Aaron (Ar Harun). Her mention also appears in verses 1 of Chapter XII, and verse 1 of Chapter XX of the Book of Numbers of the Old Testament, the second of which describes her death and burial at Kadesh. Verse 59 of Chapter XXVI of the Book of Numbers describes her as daughter of Amram and sister of Aaron and Moses. Without being named, she has been mentioned in verses 4 and 7 of Exodus II, when she kept from afar a watch on the ark containing her baby brother Moses as it floated down the Nile to the palace of the Pharaoh where it was picked up by Pharaoh’s queen (who in fact was his daughter. The Pharaohs used to marry their own daughters and sisters also) and suggested to her that she could get her a wet nurse to suckle the baby Moses. No mention of her virginity or chastity or religious virtues appears in the Old Testament.
3. "YA UKHTA HARUN" OF THE QURAN:

The second Mary (also written as Maryam or Maria) was the Virgin Mother of Jesus Christ. Her chastity and purity of character have been praised in Verses 42, Ale-Imran, (III.) and 12. At-Tahrim, (LXVI.) of the Quran and she has been called Siddiqah in verse 75, Al-Maidah (V), of the Quran. Surah At-Tahrim describes her as the "daughter of Imran (Heb. Amram)" while Surah Ale-Imran Verse 35 describes her mother as wife of Imran (Heb. Amram).

She has been mentioned in verses numbered 27 and 28 of Surah Maryam (XIX.) of the Quran which have been translated by Pickthall as follows:-

Verse No 27:—"Then she brought him (Jesus) to her own (Jewish) folk, carrying him. They said: O Mary! Thou hast come with an amazing thing." Please note that the words within brackets have been added by us.

Verse No 28:—"Oh sister of Aaron! Thy father was not a wicked man nor was thy mother a harlot".

The italicized portion of Verse No. 28 appears as ﺃخت‌هُرُون in the Quran.

4. NON-IDENTICALITY OF THE TWO MARYS:

Although Moses has been mentioned as many as 136 times in the Quran and Maryam 34 times, yet it is significant to mention that the immediate and real family relationship between the two has not been mentioned anywhere because no such relationship existed between them. Nor did any such relationship exist between Maryam and Harun, the brother of Moses.

It is also clear that each of the Marys (Miriam and Maryam) had a brother and father bearing the same names (Aaron or Harun, and Amram or Imran). From this it does not follow that both the ladies could be regarded as one identical person as alleged by Orientalists.

5. CRITICISM OF THE CHRISTIANS OF NAJRAN:

It was during the life-time of the Prophet Muhammad (P. B. U. H.) that the Christians of Najran criticized the Quran in this respect as reported by three authors of books of authentic traditions i.e., by Muslim in his Sahih by Tirmizi in his Jami, and by Ahmed in his Musnad.

We reproduce hereunder English version of the criticism reported in the relevant tradition as it appears in chapter entitled Kitab-ul-Adab of the first mentioned book. Before its reproduction we may also mention that Sir William Muir without giving any valid reason has criticized its validity.

"You read (in the Quran) Ya Ukht-a-Harun in spite of the (well known) fact that Moses preceded Jesus/Christ by a long span of time." This criticism was voiced by the Christians to Mughira Bin Shu'ba who on his return from his mission (to Najran) related it to the Prophet who thereupon said, "Why didn't you tell them that the Israelites used to adopt the names of their past prophets and noble ancestors (while naming their children)?" It should be noted that this observation of the Prophet (P. B. U. H.) was precise as well as concise and it did imply that Maryam was named after Miriam, the sister of Aaron (and Musa). In the same way a brother of Maryam was named Harun after the name of Aaron and her father was named Imran (Heb. Amram) after the name of the father of Moses and Aaron. It is, moreover, quite clear that Muhammad (P. B. U. H.) did know that there was a long interval between the eras of Moses and Jesus Christ. This is evidenced by the wording of the criticism of the residents of Najran read carefully with its rebuttal by the Prophet.

6. A. CRITICISM OF THE ORIENTALISTS:

In spite of what has been stated above, the Orientalists, Jewish and Christian, have been criticizing the Quran and the Prophet Muhammad down the ages upto the present times as will be clear from the critical remarks of a few prominent amongst them which we cite below before rebutting them; the main points of their criticism being: (i) confusion between two Marys, and (ii) the error of chronology.

(a) Reverend Ludovico Marraccio, Confessor of Pope Innocent XI, in his Latin Translation (with Arabic Text) of the Coran published from Padua in Italy in 1698 recorded the refutation as follows:

"Just as Mahomet first called Maria, the divine Maria, the daughter of Amram, he calls her here the sister of Aaron. He wrongly takes her for Maria who really was the daughter of Amram and sister of Aaron. The Muhametans accept such a blunder, and try to justify it, but in vain and with inapt arguments. Maria was not even from the root of Aaron but of that of Juda and she could not have a saintly brother by the name of Aaron. She was the first born, and the only child of sterile parents. Even if we presume that after her, the fictitious Aaron was born, he surely was at that time very young. It is thus inappropriate to call her the sister of Aaron on account of similarities with Aaron, brother of Moses, because in his youth Aaron had no such privilege. It would have been more reasonable to call her sister of a woman eminent for her chastity such as Judith or Maria, the sister of Aaron, or at least of some man excelling in the same virtue, such as Joseph, the son of Jacob or Elias."

(b) Rev. W. St. Clair Tisdall recorded the following criticism at pages 150-151 of his "The Sources of Islam":
"In Surah XIX Maryam, Verses 28, 29 (should be 27 and 28), we are told that when she came to her folk after the birth of our Lord, they said to her, 'Oh Mary, truly thou hast done a strange thing. O sister of Aaron, thy father was not a man of wickedness, and thy mother was not rebellious'. From these words, it is evident that in Muhammad's opinion Mary was identical with Miriam, the sister of Moses and Aaron. This is made still more clear by Surah LXVI At-Tahirim 12, where Mary is styled as the daughter of Imran, the latter being the Arabic form of Amram, who in the Pentateuch is called the father of Aaron, Moses, and Miriam in (the Book of) Numbers XXVI, 59. The title, sister of Aaron, is given to Miriam in Exdous XV, 20 and it must be from this passage that Muhammad borrowed the expression. The reason of the mistake which identified the mother of our Saviour with a woman who lived about one thousand five hundred and seventy five years before His birth is evidently due to the fact that in Arabic both names Mary and Miriam are one and the same in form, Maryam. The chronological difficulty of the identification does not seem to have occurred to Mohammadan commentators who in vain attempted to disprove this charge of inaccuracy. . . . . If it is necessary to adduce any other explanation of Mohammad's blunder it has been suggested that it may be found in the Jewish tradition which asserts regarding Miriam that the angel of death did not exercise dominion over her; but on the contrary she died with a divine kiss, and worms and insects did not exercise dominion over her. But even so, the Jews never ventured to assert that Miriam remained alive until the time of Christ, nor to identify her with the Virgin Mary".2

(c) At pp. 261-282 of Vol. II of The Life of Mahomet' Sir William Muir writes: 'In Surah 3 she (Mary) is likewise called the daughter of Imran; and it is, therefore, concluded by some that Mahomet confounded Mary (Maryam) with the sister of Moses. The confusion of names is the more suspicious as it is not favoured by Christian authority of any description the traditional names of Mary's parents being Joachim and Anna. Gerock (in his Christologie des Koran, p. 24)3 combats this idea at some length, showing that Imran is never named in the Koran as the father of Moses nor Mary as his sister and that Mahomet is seen else where to be well aware of the interval between Jesus and Moses'. The latter fact cannot, of course, be doubted. Mahomet could never have imagined that Mary, the mother of Jesus was the sister of Moses and Aaron. But it is extremely probable that the confusion of this misnomination originated in the notion of Jewish informants, amongst whom the only notorious Mary was the daughter of Imran, and sister of Moses, and they would ordinarily give the name of Miriam those accompaniments, that is, they would speak of Mary, the daughter of Imran. Mahomet adopted the phraseology, for his informants were mainly, if not solely, Jews probably through inadvertence and without perceiving the anachronism it involved."1
(d) Prof. Montgomery Watt in 'Companion to The Quran' states at p. 49: "Mary: Arabic Maryam. There is apparent confusion with Miriam, sister of Moses.

Muslim commentators explain this in various ways, e.g., by holding that two person were called Imran. It is possible the confusion was present in the mind of the Arabs of Medina, and that it was not part of the purpose of the Quran to correct this confusion". Again at p. 143 the Prof. writes: "European scholars usually explain this as due to confusion with Miriam, the sister of Moses and Aaron. Both Mary and Miriam would be Maryam in Arabic. This confusion is not absolutely necessary, however, and Muslim scholars have given many possible explanation, e.g., that Mary had really a brother called Aaron, that she was sister of Aaron as being of Levitical stock etc. Perhaps one might say this was a misconception current among the Arabs which the Quran did not find it necessary to correct". The Prof. has taken the same stand at p.63 of his Islam and Christianity Today and at p. 15 of his Islamic Fundamentalism and Modernity.

(e) Prof. Dr. Torrey at p. 58 of his The Jewish Foundation of Islam states: "Muhammad’s informant seems to have been one who was interested in the story of Zachariah and the birth of John the Baptist, but not at all in the birth of Jesus. Instead of gleaning any incidents from the 2nd chapter of Luke, Muhammad is now in the story of Mary and Jesus (verses 16-34) thrown entirely on his own imagination of which he makes characteristic use. The said blunder in verse 28, indentifying Mary with the sister of Aaron, continued in 3.30 ff and 66.12, is the result of his own ignorant combination, not what any other had told him. It is a fair conjecture that each and all these three bits of Gospel traditions were delivered to him by his Jewish teacher. There is no difficulty in the supposition and no other seems quite plausible". At p. 70 ibid he adds: "He(Muhammad) associated Moses with Jesus evidently believing that very soon after the Hebrew lawgiver had followed the similar revelation which had produced the Christians and their sacred book. This appears in his identification of Mary, the mother of Jesus, with Miriam, the sister of Moses and Aaron, plainly stated in more than one place. In all this, there is nothing surprising when it is remembered how the prophet received his information".

6. B. MISCELLANEOUS CRITICS:

We have given above in the preceding paragraph verbatim criticism of a few important critics. We give hereunder a list of some more critics who have likewise alleged that the Quran has confused the two Marys:

(The critical notes in these two are based mainly on Noldeke and Schwally’s article on the Koran that appeared in the 1911 edition of this Encyclopaedia.)

4. Palmer’s Translation of The Quran, 1930, p. 45.10
8. History of the Arabs: p. 125; Prof. P. K. Hitti.14
9. Judaism and Islam: Rabbi Geiger, pp. 135-136.15
10. Religions in Four Dimensions, p. 164, 1976, New York, Prof. Dr. Kaufmann.16

7. ANALYSIS OF THE CRITICISM

(a) The main points that emerge from the persistent and longstanding criticism of the Jewish and Christian scholars are as follows:

1. The names of the two famous religious ladies are the same namely Mary, Miriam, or Maryam.

2. The names of the fathers of both are the same namely Imram or Amram, and

3. First has been described by the Jews as sister of Aaron (Ar. Ukht-u-Harun) in the Book of Exodus and the second in the Quran in Surah Maryam (XIX). It has, therefore, been alleged by the critics that the Quran (or Muhammad) has confounded the two into one identical person who gave birth to Jesus!

(b) The Quran or the Prophet of Islam has committed the blunder of chronology and has ignored the long interval between the ages of the two Marys and consequently between the eras of the two Prophets viz., Moses and Jesus Christ.

8. REBUTTAL OF CRITICISM

We have already quoted in paragraph 5 ante, an authentic tradition of Prophet Muhammad (P B.U.H.) to prove that the two Marys were two separate individuals who lived in widely separated ages. This is finally settled by the seal set upon the controversy by the internal corroborative evidence of the Quran which we set down below:—
Appendix III

(A) Verse No. 87 of Surah Al-Baqarah (II) states:

“And verily We gave unto Moses the Scripture and We caused a train of messengers to follow after him, and We gave unto Jesus, son of Mary, clear proofs (of Allah’s Sovereignty), and We supported him with the holy spirit. Is it ever so, that, when there cometh unto you a messenger (from Allah) with that which ye yourselves desire not, ye grow arrogant, and some ye disbelieve and some ye slay?”

(B) Verse No. 46 Surah Al-Maidah (V) corroborates the above evidence. It reaffirms as follows:

“And We caused Jesus, son of Mary, to follow in their footsteps (of numerous prophets) confirming that which was (revealed) before him, and We bestowed on him the Gospel which is guidance and a light confirming that which was (revealed) before it in the Torah . . . . . . . a guidance and an admonition unto those who ward off (evil).”

(C) Verses No. 26 and 27 of Surah Al-Hadid (LVII) reaffirm the same.

(D) Not only that: The Quran which was revealed by the Omniscient Allah to the unlettered Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H.) has primarily in Meccan Surahs, also made mention of numerous prophets namely Elisha, Elias, Zulkifl, Jonah, David, Solomon, Zachariah and John the Baptist who appeared in the long interval spreading over many centuries between Moses and Aaron (and their sister Miriam) on the one hand and Jesus Christ son of Maryam, on the other. It follows that the Harun (Aaron) mentioned by the Jewish folk in the phrase Ya Ukht-a-Harun in Verse No. 28 of Surah Maryam (XIX) was not the brother of Moses and son of Amram of the Old Testament of the distant past but was their contemporary. Our critics, moreover, did not care to notice that Surah Maryam was revealed at Mecca in the fifth year of the advent of Muhammad as Prophet, (P. B. U. H.) that is, before the emigrat on of the early Muslims to Ethiopia while history make no mention of any contacts between any Jewish scholar (teacher) with Prophet Muhammad (P. B. U. H.) as quite wrongly alleged by non-Muslim critics.

There are a few honourable exceptions among the critics who are gifted with a discerning and impartial judgment and have occasionally voiced it. For instance, George Sale and Prof. Gerock and even Sir William Muir have asserted that the length of the time interval between the appearance of the prophets Moses and Aaron on the one hand and of Jesus Christ on the other was very well-known to the Prophet of Islam (P. B. U. H.). The first two inter alia also combated the charge of anachronism brought by Dr. Torrey, Marraccio, Roland, Prideaux, Wahl Hottinger, Neldeke etc. In fact, as reaffirmed by George Sale, Prof. Gerock and Sir William Muir, Muhammad very well knew and asserted that Moses preceded Jesus Christ by several ages and he could not have mistaken Maryam for Miriam. George Sale has, moreover, asserted that it does not follow that because two persons (vix: the two Marys) had each the same name and each had a father and a brother who respectively bore the same names viz: Imran (Heb. Amram) and Haron (Heb. Aaron) they must, therefore, be the same person (i.e., be considered identical) as wrongly assumed by the learned Orientalists.

9. THE CUSTOM OF NAMING AMONG THE JEWS AND CHRISTIANS:

Let us now look at the practice of the Jews and Christians relating to the naming of their children. It is stated at p. 146 of Vol. IX of Encyclopaedia of Religion and Ethics that the early Christians struck out a more distinctive nomenclature of their own, viz, by adopting Old Testament names and by appropriating the names of apostolic saints. This is also borne out by a perusal of page 480 of Vol.III of the Dictionary Of The Bible edited by Dr. Hastings that the custom of naming after (illustrious) ancestors was prevalent inter alia among the Jews. These statements made in modern books of reference of the Jews and Christians are no doubt echoes of what the unlettered Prophet of Islam (P.B.U.H.) stated to Mughira Bin Shu’ba about fourteen centuries ago. Surely there were no Jewish or Christian teachers to teach him about these ancient customs.

Reading between the lines Verses 27 and 28 of Surah Maryam would lead a discerning student to the conclusion that the Harun spoken of by the Jewish folk was well-known, as also her parents, all three being of good reputation among their contemporaries. They were aghast to see Maryam, the Virgin, carrying her son, Jesus Christ, and by way of contempt they addressed her as Yə Uḵt-ə-Harun instead of by her personal name. Such a mode of address in such woeful and reprehensible circumstances was customary among them as will be clear from a perusal of pages 480-481 of Vol.III of Dictionary Of The Bible edited by Dr. Hastings where the analogy of the ‘Son of Remaliah’ occurring in verse No.4 of Chapter VII of the Book of Isaiah of the Old Testament has been cited to indicate ‘contempt’ by the use of an eponymous expression.

10. BROAD DEFINITIONS OF BROTHER

(AR. ٌخٍٓ أٌختٍ أٌخٍٓ )

Let it moreover, be borne in mind that the words “أخي” (Heb.ah) and “أخيف (Heb.ahot) embrace not only children born of same parents but even a very wide field of relationships including members of the same family, of the same tribe, same people, descended from the same ancestor or having a religious or spiritual bond as defined at p.60 of Dictionary Of Biblical Theology. The words also cover things and persons bearing affinity and similarity as in verses No. 38 & 48 of Surahs Aar‘af and Zukhruf.
11. FURTHER REBUTTAL OF CRITICISM:

Let us examine this question of the identity of the Harun occurring in the phrase 'Oh sister of Aaron' from another angle. Harun, the prophet brother and Vazir of Moses (Musa) has been mentioned at nineteen places of the Quran particularized below:—

1. Al-Baqarah (II), 248: "And a remnant of that which the house of Moses and the house of Aaron left behind."

2. Al-Nisa (IV), 163: "Lo! We inspire thee as We inspired.... Aaron and Solomon."

3. Al-An'am (VI), 85: "And Noah did We guide aforetime; and of his seed (We guided) David and Solomon and Job and Joseph and Moses and Aaron."

4. Al-Ar'af (VII), 122: "The Lord of Moses and Aaron."

5. Al-Ar'af (VII), 142: "And Moses said unto his brother: Take my place among the people. Do right and follow not the way of mischief-makers."

6. Yunus (X), 76: "We sent Moses and Aaron unto Pharaoh and his chiefs with our revelations."

7. Maryam (XIX), 53: "And We bestowed upon him of Our mercy his brother Aaron, a Prophet."

8. Ta Ha (XX), 25-30: "(Moses) said —— Appoint for me a henchman from my folk, Aaron, my brother."

9. Ta Ha (XX), 70: "—— the Lord of Aaron and Moses."

10. Ta Ha (XX), 90: "And Aaron indeed had told them beforehand: O my people! Ye are being seduced therewith."

11. Ta Ha (XX), 92: "He (Moses) said: O Aaron! what held the back when thou didst see them gone astray?"

12. Al-Anbiya (XXI), 48: "And We verily gave Moses and Aaron the criterion (of right and wrong)."

13. Al-Muminin (XXIII), 45: "And We sent Moses and his brother Aaron with Our tokens and a clear warrant."

14. Al-Furqan (XXV), 35: "We verily gave Moses the Scripture and placed with him his brother Aaron as henchman."

15. Al-Shu'ara (XXVI), 13: "And I shall be embarrassed and my tongue will not speak plainly, therefore send for Aaron (to help me)."
16. Al-Shu'ars (XXVI), 48 : "The Lord of Moses and Aaron."

17. Al-Qasas (XXVIII), 33-34: "He (Moses) said ——My brother Aaron is mere eloquent than me in speech."

18. Al-Saffat (XXXVII), 114 : "And We verily gave grace unto Moses and Aaron."

19. Al-Saffat (XXXVII), 120 : "Peace be unto Moses and Aaron!"

The context of the abovementioned verses and their texts show beyond the least shadow of doubt that the Harun mentioned therein is only Harun, the prophet brother of Moses and no other Harun.

But Verse No. 28 of Surah Maryam read carefully would lead any impartial and fair minded reader to the conclusion that in this verse the Harun was a well-known contemporary of the Jews who obviously caluminated Maryam, the Virgin, having given birth to her child (Jesus) whom they regarded as an illegitimate child born as a result of illicit sexual relationship with a soldier named Pandera or Stada as indicated in Col.2968 of Encyclopaedia Biblica-11. This gross calumny relating to adultery is referred to as لِإِنَّا نَعْلَمُ مَا كَانَ آمَنُوْنَ in verse No. 156 of Surah An-Nisa (IV). Of course, no Jews would calumniate their own haloed Miriam, the prophetess who, of course, did not and could not give birth to Jesus. This is another proof that the Quran regarded the two Marys as separate famous ladies whose qualities of head and heart, of character and nature, and whose accomplishments were also quite different. The Quran has not described Maryam as a prophetess while Miriam was a prophetess according to the Torah.

Rev. Marraccio's statement that Mary was the only child of sterile parents who did not or could not have any more children is quite untenable in the face of the facts that:

(i) Abraham and Sarah were both sterile but initially Abraham was blessed not only with Ismail by Hagar (Hajra) and had later Isaac by Sarah, but also had children by Katurah as borne out by the Old Testament, and (ii) Zachariah and Elizabeth were similarly sterile but the prayer of the former for a successor was answered with the birth of John the Baptist. After all, Mary was also born of sterile parents. There is thus no ground to believe that they could not be blessed with a son who would be a real brother of Mary. Even if we suppose that there is some truth in the statement of the Rev. Marraccio one can assert that Mary had a male relative who would be covered by the broad definition of 'brother' and that being so, he would have been given the name of Harun in accordance with the prevailing custom. This Harun as we have already proved was, of course, not the prophet Harun, the brother of Miriam and Moses and could under no circumstances be confused with the latter by the Quran.
As for the name of the father of Maryam (Mary), there is no reason to suppose that there was any confusion whatsoever in this behalf as has been suggested by Prof. Montgomery Watt. If any of the Christian Gospels had given some other as its correct name, that could provide a ground for some doubt. But Sir Hall Caine at page 1235 of his Life of Jesus has asserted: "Of Mary we know little from Scripture. We do not know who she was, who her parents were, where she was born, or to what condition of life she belonged".

Again Karl Rahner has positively stated at page 16 of his Mary, Mother of The Lord, "We do not know the names of Mary's father and mother". This is reaffirmed at pp 551-552 of the Dictionary of The Bible by John L. Mckenzie who states: "The names of her (Mary's) parents are not mentioned in the New Testament". He adds "The positive reticence of the primitive preaching not only about Mary, but also about the entire life of Jesus and their village connections seems to suggest a movement against any such attempt to make kinship the basis of special claim. A by-product of this reticence is our total lack of genuine information concerning the life and person of Mary".

Sir William Muir has given Joachim and Anna as the traditional names of Mary's parents but one is at a loss to understand why a scholar of his standing failed to mention that these names were drawn from an apocryphal Gospel having no historical value in the Christian World. If the Christian World could prove what the correct name of Mary's father was and it happened to be different, then one could think that the name of her father as given in the Quran might be incorrect. This argument applies mutatis mutandis to her brother's name i.e., Harun as mentioned in the Quran. One would have expected a critic of the standing of Prof. Montgomery Watt to have given concrete and convincing evidence to support his contention regarding the possibility of confusion in the mind of the Arabs of Medina or of the chance of a misconception current among the Arabs. We have given adequate grounds to establish verity of the names of Mary's brother and father being "Harun" (Heb. Aaron) and "Imran" (Heb. Amram). Dr. Torrey's conjectures and suppositions that Gospel traditions were delivered to him (Muhammad) by his Jewish teacher lack any basis. He has failed to name the supposed "Jewish teacher". Moreover, all Jews being notorious enemies and calumniators of Maryam and Jesus Christ would never teach Muhammad (P.B.U.H.) to shower high praises on them with which the Quran abounds. Such superlative eulogies of Maryam are not found even in any of the Christian canonical gospels! The possibility of any Jewish or Christian informant or mentor of Muhammad is thus completely ruled out.

There was, moreover, no indigenous pre-Islamic tradition in this behalf which could be drawn upon by Muhammad (P.B.U.H.) otherwise Prof. Montgomery Watt would no doubt have quoted it chapter and verse instead of making vague and unfounded dubious remarks in this behalf suggesting the currency of errors relating to Imran and Harun being names of the father and brother of Maryam "which the Quran did not find it necessary to correct." If the learned Professor could produce historically correct names of Maryam's father, and brother, then, the Christian world would have a sure criterion to adjudge the accuracy of the Quran in this respect.

As for Dr. Torrey, his suppositions, conjectures and prejudgments are obviously unfounded. He does not seem to have cared even to know that Surah Maryam was revealed to the unlettered Prophet Muhammad (P.B.U.H.) at Mecca in the fifth year of his advent as prophet when there is known to have been no Jewish teacher there to deliver to him the supposed "Gospel Traditions"! He has, moreover, not read in the Quran clear proofs of the long interval between the eras of Moses and Jesus!

12. DILEMMAS RELATING TO MARY AND JESUS CHRIST

It is a great pity that Christian Gospels have been conspicuous by their complete silence about the parentage and other essential details about Maryam and Jesus Christ. Not only that, Matthew (I-16) and Luke (III, 23-38) give the genealogies of Jesus Christ expressly through his so-called legal father Joseph, which have been adjudged by Christian authorities as irreconcilable, mutually contradictory, incomplete etc. Again, the Gospels of Matthew (XIII, 55-56) and Mark (VI,3 and III, 31-32) speak of the brothers and sisters of the Lord Jesus, but none of the Christian scholars have to this day been able to establish for certain whether they were the real children of the Virgin Mary born after her 'first born,' Jesus Christ, or were her step children. The Virgin is, moreover, reported to have had a sister also named Mary, but Christian scholars are divided as to her identity, though some (e.g. St. John XIX, 25) have named her as Mary Cleophas. If Maryam had a sister from sterile parents why could not she have a brother named Harun as mentioned in the Quran. The worst is that even the genealogy of Mary is not known for certain. For instance, at p.380, Westminster Dictionary of the Bible has suggested that Luke (III, 23-38) gives the genealogy of Jesus Christ through his Virgin mother Mary, his only earthly parent, in which case Mary's father is supposed to have been Heli or Eli. All these facts about the Christian Canonical Gospels constitute standing dilemmas.

13. CONCLUSIONS

On the basis of irrefutable corroborative evidence, we hope, we have proved that the criticism of our learned Jewish and Christian scholars on the subject is groundless on all counts. They mainly suggested unreliability of the Quranic statements in this behalf and some blandly suggested that the Quran is not a revealed book, but the work of Muhammad who was tutored by an un-named Jewish teacher. They have, of course, miserably failed in their designs and have only exposed the undefendable unreliability of their own Gospels which were the works of human authors, because they lost their respective original revealed books or altered some of the texts. In fact the canonical Christian Gospels are at best comparable only to the Muslim books of traditions as is clear from their very introductory titles like 'The Gospel according to St. Matthew', or 'The Gospel according to St. Mark' etc. Moreover, in many respects they are mutually contradictory relating to same events or topics.

We have regarded the remaining issues raised by Marraccio etc. as irrelevant and of no consequence and have, therefore, not dealt with them.

Mary was, of course, a descendant of the prophet Aaron, the brother of Moses. Being an Aaronite, she was of Levitical origin and so the explanations of Muslim commentators are well-founded though we have differed from them and have given straightforward proofs to rebut the criticism of the Christians and Jews.

Before we conclude, we must state that though Miriam, the sister of Moses has not been mentioned directly by name in the Quran even once (compare verses 4-7 of Exodus II), she is reported in Verse No. 11 of Surah Al-Qasas (XXVIII) as "his sister" أخته and "your sister" أختك in Verse No. 40 of Surah Ta-Ha (XX) (both revealed at Mecca). These verses relate that at the instance of her mother she (Miriam) kept a watch on the ark of bulrushes as it floated down the river Nile to the palace of the Pharaoh and later she suggested to the queen (who had indeed been the Pharaoh's daughter) that she could procure a wet nurse to suckle the baby Moses. There can be no denying the fact that Moses was brought up in the Pharaoh's palace (Verses 18-19 of Ash-Shura, XXVI) and the said Pharaoh who was a contemporary of Moses and also of Miriam indubitably lived many centuries earlier than Maryam and her son Jesus Christ. There could thus be no question whatsoever of any confusion or mistake in the Quran with regard to: (i) chronology, and (ii) identities of the two Marys i.e. Miriam and Maryam. One wonders why Rabbi Geiger and others of his like turned a blind eye to these facts related in the Quran and rushed to make unwarranted and baseless allegations against the Quran and Muhammad (P.B.U.H.), the Prophet of the Universal religion, Al-Islam, to whom the Omniscient Allah revealed all that in the Quran. By way of illustration, we quote here translation of verse No. 44 of Surah Al-Imran, (III) in this behalf: "This is the hidden secret which We have revealed to you (Muhammad)."

It is high time that scholars like Prof. Montgomery Watt shed their age old prejudices which resulted from the crusade syndrome, face hard facts and stern historical realitics and refrain from unwarranted criticism. How truly has the Quran affirmed in Verses 41-42 of Surah Ha Mim As-Sajdah (XLI) "And surely it is an unassailable scripture. Falsehood cannot come at it from before it or behind it. It is a revelation from the All-Wise, the All-Praiseworthy".

Note No. 1:

Sir William Muir obviously blows hot and cold with the same breath. He has clearly agreed with Prof. Gerock that Muhammad was well aware of the interval between Moses and Jesus and has emphasized that “Mahomet could never have imagined that Mary, the mother of Jesus, was the sister of Moses and Aaron”. Obviously there is then no question of confusion or of anachronism about which this scholar seeks refuge behind some other Christian authority of any description without any valid reason.

Note No. 2:

By way of digression we may add that verse No. 5 of chapter 1 of Luke’s Gospel states that Elizabeth, the wife Zachariah, was “of the daughters of Aaron”. Since Mary was the first cousin of Elizabeth, we may aver that the former too was “of the daughters of Aaron” (Ar. من بنت هورن i.e. a descendant of Harun) but not his sister (Ar. أخت). This is another sure proof of the fact that the Harun mentioned in the phrase با ناب هورن was a contemporary of Maryam and Jesus but was not the prophet brother of Moses of the distant past.

Note No. 3:

In para 1 at p.2 ante we have stated that it was the wife of Pharaoh who rescued the baby Moses. But according to verses 5 and 6 of Chapter III of Exodus, the rescuer was the daughter of the Pharaoh in question. Considering the latter as a gospel truth, the Orientalists have been charging the Quran for a misstatement. But a perusal of page 517 of ‘Egyptian Antiquities in the Nile Valley’ by Father James Baikie shows that Ramses II who is now-a-days believed to have been the Pharaoh of Oppression and Exodus of the Israelites, had inter alia married three of his own daughters named BANT ANAT. MERITAMUN and NEMBTUI thereby establishing veracity of the Quranic statement and defeating the charge of the Orientalists. It was the custom of some Pharaohs of ancient Egypt inter alia to marry their own daughters and sisters besides other women as mentioned at p.88 of Sir Wallis Budge's Dwellers in the Nile Valley.

Note No. 4:

It will not be out of place to mention that Prof. Lammens woefully admitted that the editors of the qirawa mashhura, or textus receptus worked under the domination of a servile scrupulousness for tradition and resisted the temptation to improve the text (of the Quran) or to cut out (from it) the most glaring anachronisms, e.g. the confusion between two Marys. The Quranic Vulgate has respected all this, and left everything exactly as the editors found it.' This is proof positive inter alia of the Quranic text having remained in its pristine purity.

Note No. 5:

The critical remarks of the Jewish and Christian critics have been mutually contradictory in minor details e.g., in respect of the Jewish tradition relating to the unnatural longevity and death of Miriam which apart from being contrary to the express relevant statement in the Book of Numbers runs counter to the basic Quranic teachings. One wonders how critics of both these religious groups have imputed that Prophet Muhammad had heard this tradition from some unnamed Jewish informant and believed it with the result that he confused the two Marys though in reality their own minds, befogged with prejudice, had created the confusion.

Note further that he does not essentially dispute Moses' claim on behalf of the Israelites. His main objection is against the interposition of God. He knows of no god except himself. He takes stand upon his own rights, hitherto unquestioned and to him unquestionable, and says in effect: who is this foreign God? What authority has he over me! he is nothing to me.
50. Mūsā said: our Lord is He who gave everything its existence, then guided it.

51. He said: then what did happen to the former generations?

52. Mūsā said: that knowledge is with my Lord in the Book; my Lord neither errs nor forgets.

53. Who has appointed for you the earth as a bed, and has opened for you the pathways in it, and has sent down from the sky water, and thereby We have brought forth all manner of plants.

54. Eat and pasture your cattle; therein are signs for men of sagacity.

55. Of it We created you and to it We return you and from it We bring you forth once again.

56. And assuredly We showed him Our signs, all of them, but he denied and rejected.

57. He said: art thou come to us that thou mayest drive us out of our land by thy magic, O Mūsā?

58. So we shall confront thee with a like magic; So make between us and thee an appointment in an open space, which we shall not fail, neither thou.

316. i.e., the Universal Lord. The answer recorded in the Bible is hardly an answer at all. (Ex. 5: 3).

317. (who had a creed different from that of Moses) i.e., where are they after death—in happiness or in misery?

318. (of records).

318-A. (as you imagine regarding your own gods).

319. (fertilizing your land directly and by means of the Nile floods).
320. (therewith).
321. (of His providence).
322. i.e., out of the earth.
323. (O mankind!). The law is universal and immutable. This life is only a prelude to eternity, where we are to face a new life and a new state of things. This verse is publicly recited as a Muslim is lowered into his grave. Note that the Bible verse 'dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return' makes no mention of resurrection.
324. i.e., Pharaoh.
325. i.e., wonders and miracles which We had empowered Moses to perform.
326. (those signs).
327. (to believe).
328. Himself steeped deep in the arts of black magic, Pharaoh was incapable of attributing the wonders at the hands of Moses to anything other than sorcery and magic. 'The monuments depict him as neither a soldier nor an administrator, but as one whose mind was turned almost exclusively towards the chimeras of sorcery and magic, which he regarded as of the utmost importance'. (Rawlinson, Ancient Egypt, p. 254).
329. i.e., so we, the Egyptian government will surely meet thee with the like enchantments.
59. (قَالَ...ضَحِيٌّ) Mūsā said: your appointment is the gala day, and that the people be gathered in the forenoon.

60. (تَفْنِيرًا...اِلْهَيْلِ) Then Fir‘awn turned away, devised his stratagem and then he came.

61. (قَالُوا...مَكُونَ) Mūsā said to them: woe unto you! fabricate not a lie against Allah, lest He extirpate you with a torment and surely he who fabricates loses.

62. (خَناَءَوْا...الدِّيْرِ) Then they wrangled about their affair among themselves and kept secret their private counsel.

63. (قَالُوا...مَلِيَّ) They said: verily these two are magicians, intending to drive you forth from your land by their magic and to do away with your superior way.

64. (فَاحْمُوا...إِسْتَطِعُ) Therefore devise your stratagem and then come in a row. Fortunate to-day is he who overcomes.

65. (قَالُوا...الْقُطُّ) They said: either thou cast or we shall be the first to cast.

66. (قَالُوا...تَنِعُّ) He said: nay, cast you down. And lo! their ropes and their staves, by the magic, made to appear to him as though they were running.

67. (فَأَجُسِّ...مُوَسَّ) Then a sort of fear in his mind Mūsā felt.

230. Which was sure to attract large concourse of people. The Egyptians have long been noted for the gaiety of their fairs and festivals. 'They gave themselves up to pleasures of every kind, they sang, they drank, they danced. . . . Herodotus tells us how gaily the Egyptians kept their festivals, thousands of the common people—men, women, and children together—crowding into the boats, which at such times covered the Nile, the men piping, and the women clapping their hands, . . . stopping at the various landing places, and challenging the inhabitants to a contest of good-humoured billingsgate.' (Rawlinson, Ancient Egypt, p. 28). There were two great annual festivals of the Egyptians when thousand of people gathered, one of 20 days in March, and another of 27 days in August. (See ERE. V. p. 238) And there was a yet greater festival named after Sef held on the occasion of the king being deified as Osiris, in connection with which festival 'there is the record of 400,000 oxen, 1,422,000 goats, and 120,000 captives' (p. 239) showing the national character of the ceremony where they were dedicated or sacrificed. 'After his 30th year Rameses II repeated it every third year.' (ib.) The reference may be to any of those national festivities of the Egyptians.

331. 'Then Pharaoh also called the wise men and the sorcerers.' (Ex. 7: 11).
332. i. e., the magicians.
333. (by opposing that the miracles performed by God's authority and in His name were the effects of magic).
334. (immediately).
335. (in the long run).
336. (thy rod).
337. (our rods).
338. (like live serpents). 'Now the magicians of Egypt, they also did in like manner with their enchantments. For they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents.' (Ex. 7: 11, 12) Note that the Qur'an is very definite in holding, as against the Bible, that the magicians' 'miracle' was only apparent, not real. See P. IX, n. 64. 'The Arabic tradition,' says Rawlinson, 'preserved to us in the Koran, is to the effect, that the rods were pieces of rope, to which the magicians contrived to impart motion by artificial means, so that they seemed to be alive, and to wriggle like snakes, one twisting over another. (Moses: His Life and Times, p. 93).
339. (lest the populace may be taken in by the apparent similarity of his miracle and the handiwork of the magicians) كتابه خفیه as with تکرر signifies a little fear or a sort of fear التفسیر للتنقیل .
340. (in his anxiety to keep the standard of the truth high and flowing).
68. (فنا ... الإله) We said: have no fear; verily thou, thou shalt be the superior. —

69. (ناق ... ان) and cast thou down what is in thy right hand; it shall swallow up what they have wrought. They have only wrought a magician's stratagem, and the magician does not prosper wherever he comes.

70. (قال ... موسى) Then the magicians were cast down prostrate. They said: now we believe in the Lord of Mūsā and Hārūn.

71. (قال ... رابعی) Fir'awn said: what! did you believe in Him ere I gave you leave? Surely he is your chief who taught you magic. So I will surely cut off your hands and feet on the opposite sides; and will surely crucify you on the trunks of the palm-trees, and you will surely know which of us is sterner in torment and more lasting.

72. (قالوا ... الدنيا) They said: we shall by no means prefer thee over what has come to us of the evidences, and over Him who has created us. So do decree thou whatever thou shalt decree; thou canst decree only in respect of the life of this world.

73. (آم ... رابعی) Verily we have believed in our Lord, that He may forgive us our affairs, and also that to which thou hast constrained us in the way of magic. And Allah is the Best and most Lasting.

341. (O Moses! and We shall not allow falsehood to prevail over truth).
342. i. e., the seeming serpents.
343. (which can at most have only a passing momentary effect).
344. (face to face with God's miracle performed at the hands of His apostle).
345. (at the sight of the miracle performed by Moses).
346. (to the magicians, overwhelmed as he was now with anger and chagrin).
347. See P. IX, n. 79.
348. i. e., me and the Lord of Mūsā.
349. i.e., which of us can award you a more severe and a more lasting punishment.

350. (as befitted true and valiant martyrs).

351. Note the immediate moral change brought about in the magicians by their conversion to the true faith. A firm hold upon religious reality has immediately transformed a worldly, materialistic self into consciously right, superior and blissful self, utterly heedless of the consequences of the imperial wrath.

352. The magicians had come to the contest not at their own instance but only at the command of Pharaoh.

353. (in His nature and attributes).

354. (in respect to His rewards and penalties).
74. (إِنَّهُمْ يُحَرِّكُونَ فيْهَا وَلا يُخْلِقُونَﷺ وَمِنْ بَعْدِ هَذَا مَا جَاءَ مَعَهُمْ يَدَمُّونَّ كَأَيْضًا لَّكُمْ لَهُمُ الْكَرِهَةَ ْبَالَاتٍ ﴿۰٤﴾ ﷺ)

Verily he who comes to his Lord as a culprit,\(^{355}\) for him is Hell, in which he shall neither die\(^{356}\) nor live.\(^{357}\)

75. (وَمَّنِ الْآخِرَةِ) And he who comes to Him as a believer, and has done righteous deeds: then for them are high ranks—

76. (جَنًّا) Gardens everlasting with running streams, abiding therein; that is the reward for him who has purified himself.\(^{358}\)

SECTION 4

77. (وَلَمْ نَقْتُ غَيْبَ مُوسَى) And assuredly We revealed to Mūsā\(^{359}\) saying: depart with My bondmen in night, and strike for them in the sea a dry path;\(^{360}\) thou shalt fear neither overtaking\(^{361}\) nor shalt thou be afraid.\(^{362}\)

78. (فَأَنزَلْنَاهُ مُحِيمٍ وَغَيْبَهُ) Then Fir'aun followed them with his hosts, and, there came upon them of the sea what came upon them.\(^{363}\)

79. (وَأَيْضًا... هَدْهُ) And Fir'aun led his nation astray, and guided them not.\(^{364}\)

80. (بِنَى... وَالْخَيْرُ) O Children of Israel! We delivered you from your enemy, and treated with you on the right side of the mount\(^{365}\) and sent down on you manna and quails—\(^{366}\)

---

356. (so that his tortures might be ended).
357. (a life at all comfortable).
358. (of sins and of infidelity, as in the case of the Egyptian sorcerers).
359. (on the eve of the exodus).
360. (by striking the waters with thy rod). ًمِّضْرِب ُهُمْ the phrase is synonymous with اسم (LL). See Ex. 14: 16.
361. (by Pharaoh).
362. (of the sea).
363. (and overwhelmed them). See Ex. 14: 6, 7, 8, 23.
364. (but caused them to perish outright). See Ex. 14: 28.
365. See P. XX. n. 189.
81. saying: eat of the clean things with which We have provided you, and wax not insolent thereabout, lest My wrath may come down upon you; and upon whom My wrath comes down, he surely perishes.

82. And verily I am the Most Forgiving to him who repents and believes and works righteousness and lets himself remain guided.

83. And what has made thee hasten from thy people, O Musa?

84. Musa said: why, they are close on my footsteps, and I hastened to Thee, Lord! that Thou mightest be well-pleased.

85. Allah said: verily We have tempted thy people after thee, and the Sāmirī has led them astray.

86. Therefore Musa returned to his people indignant and sorrowful. He said: O my people! did not My Lord make to you an excellent promise? Did then the promise seem to you too long in coming? Or did you desire that the wrath of your Lord should come upon you, so that you failed to keep my appointment?

367. (by ingratitude, excess of insolent behaviour).

368. The phrase virtually means, َكَفْ بَيْحَمْ يَا. how is it that thou comest before thy party? (LL). The people here referred to were the party of 70 elders of Israel who were accompanying Moses to the Mount, when he in his ecstatic eagerness outwent them, and appeared before God while they lagged behind. See Ex. 24: 9, 13-14.

369. (all the more).

370. (on the ultimate Primal Cause of every event in the world).

372. (by making for them a golden calf for worship). Note once again that it is not the prophet Aaron, but someone else, whom the Holy Qur’ān makes responsible for the abomination, so openly ascribed to him in the Bible. For Samiri see n. 381 infra.

373. (at the end of his forty days' stay on the Mount and after receiving the Law). See P. IX, n. 180 ff.

374. (through me, that He would give you the Law).

375. Lit. lasted then the covenant too long for you?

376. (out of your own vile nature).

377. i. e., your promise to me of worshipping the One and true God alone.
87. (5a la ... nasi'ī) They said: we did not fail to keep thy appointment of our own will, but we were laden with the load of the people's trinket, so we threw them, as did the Samiri into the fire.

88. (farjī ... fanni) And he produced for them a calf, a body with a low. Then they said: this is your god and the god of Mūsā, and him he has forgotten.

89. (anā ... thāmā) Did they not see that it did not return a word to them, and owned for them neither hurt nor profit?

SECTION 5

90. (wadād ... amrī) And assuredly Hārūn had said to them afore. O my people! you are only being tempted with it, and verily your Lord is the Compassionate, so follow me and obey my command.

91. (5a la ... muwāli) They said: we shall by no means cease to be assiduous to it until Mūsā comes back to us.

92. (qa'la ... hasla) Mūsā said: O Hārūn! what prevented thee when thou sawest them going astray;

93. (a'mrī ... ala) that thou followest me not? Hast thou disobeyed my command?

94. (qa'la ... qul) Hārūn said: my own brother! hold me not by my beard nor by my head; really I feared that thou wouldst say thou hast caused a division among the Children of Israil and hast not kept my word.

95. (5a ... yasamri) Mūsā said: what was thy object? O Samiri?

378. i.e., we did not initiate the calf-worship in the first instance.

379. The 'people' here means the Egyptians. 'And they borrowed of the Egyptians jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment.' (Ex. 12: 35).

380. (into the fire).

381. The Israelites' excuse is: we did not initiate the blasphemy; we were only led to it by Samiri. Now who was this Samiri? The word sounds more of an appellation than of a personal name. 'If we look to old Egyptian, we have Shem'er, a stranger, foreigner. As the Israelites had just left Egypt, they might quite well have among them an Egyptianized Hebrew bearing that nickname.' (AYA). And it is recorded by the rabbis that the initiative in the matter of calf-worship was taken not by the Israelites but by the Egyptians who had joined them at the time of the Exodus, and who were the source of a great deal of trouble to Moses and the Israelites.' (JE. III, p. 509).

382. i. e., with an unmeaning cry. Note that the thing was a body, something corporeal, complete with the limbs and members, though without life.
383. i. e., Samiri and his associates.
384. (to worship this Lord of his here, but went up to the Mount). 'And they said, These by thy gods, O Israel, which brought thou up out of the land of Egypt.' (Ex. 32: 4).

385. (in answer).
386. So blind were these idolatrous people! 'I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a stiff-necked people' (Ex. 32: 9).
387. i. e., before the return of Moses.
388. (so resist the temptation vigorously).
389. (and not this bull-god or calf-god).
390. This more than vindicates Aaron's unflinching monotheism against the aspersions of the Bible.

391. i. e., the unruly section of Israel.
392. (after he had reprimanded his people on his return from the Mount).
393. (by taking up arms against the idolaters).
394. (by remaining a passive spectator).
395. In Hebrew usage, 'when precision was necessary, the fact of uterine brotherhood was expressed by such a phrase as "his mother's son".' (EBi. c. 3219) The expression may well have been used by Aaron in the very fullness of his heart, See also P. IX, n. 188.

396. Which Moses did in his burning, moral denunciation and righteous indignation. 'And Moses' anger waxed hot'. (Ex. 32: 19) 'In ancient Israel the beard was a symbol of manhood and age. To pluck, shear or ruffle a man's beard was a form of punishment or a mark of dishonour.' (VJE. p. 77) To hold one by beard was to inflict upon him an insulting disgrace.

397. (if I took up arms against the calf-worshippers).
398. (to the effect that unity was to be maintained amongst them).
399. (in doing what thou hast done).
96. He said: I saw what the people did not see. So I seized a handful of dust from the footstep of the angel, and then I cast it into the fire; thus my mind embelished the affair to me.

97. Mi’Jaâ said: begone thou! verily it shall be thing in life to say: no contact, and verily thine is a tryst which thou shall not fail. And look thou at thy god to which thou hast been devoted; we shall surely burn it, and scatter it in the sea in thy presence.

98. Your God is only Allah, the One; other than Him there is no God. He comprehends everything in knowledge.

99. Thus We recount to thee some tidings of what has preceded; and surely We have given to thee an admonition from before Us.

100. Whosoever turns away from it—verily they shall bear a burden on the Day of Judgement:

101. and they shall abide therein. Vile will it be for them on the Day of Judgement as a load——

102. the Day when the Trumpet will be blown into, and We shall, on that Day, gather the culprits blear-eyed; muttering among themselves: you did not tarry save ten days.

400. (as an adept in occultism).

401. (of dust, which I knew would give a semblance of life to whatever it touched).

402. i.e., the angel Gabriel mounted on a horse.

403. (moulding it into the image of a golden calf). The man was also, perhaps, a skilled metallurgist. 'The metallurgy of the Egyptians was of a very advanced description. It comprised the working in gold, in silver and lead to a small extent.... The metallurgy of the Israelites.... followed closely the Egyptian lines. The metals employed were chiefly, if not solely, gold, silver and bronze.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, pp. 157, 159) Perhaps he performed this trick in response to the pressing demand of the populace who thirsted for ‘gods.’
‘The people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him, Up, make us gods, which shall go before us.’ (Ex. 32:1) It is immaterial for the immediate purpose whether the popular demand was addressed to Aaron or to Samiri.

404. (from our midst).
405. (to those who come near thee).
406. (and thus thou shalt be a lifelong social leper). It is not inconceivable that the Indian curse of ‘untouchability’ might some day be traced to this Samiri.
407. (in the Hereafter).
408. (O mankind!).
409. (O Prophet!).
410. i. e., the Holy Qur‘ān. A true and accurate presentation of ancient and, in many cases, little known facts of history by an unlettered Prophet is in itself a strong evidence of his being aided and taught by the Omniscient.
411. (of heavy guilt).
412. (whereupon the dead will come to life).
413. i. e., those who denied the Resurrection.
414. (with terror). Or ‘blind, because the black of the eye of the blind becomes blue, or grey; . . . . or, with their eyes become blue, or grey, by reason of intense thirst, or blue-eyed, or grey-eyed, because ādyl is the worst of the colours of the eye, and the most hateful thereof to the Arabs.’ (L.L.).
415. (in your graves).
416. i. e., an exceedingly brief period of time. The admission amounts to this: we denied Resurrection altogether, but now we find that it has come so soon after our death!
104. We very well know what they will say when the best of them in judgement will say: you did not tarry save for a day.

SECTION 6

105. And they question thee regarding the mountains. Say thou: my Lord will scatter them with a total scattering.

106. Then He shall leave it a level plain;

107. In which thou shalt not find any crookedness or ruggedness.

108. That Day they shall follow the caller for whom there shall be no crookedness, and voices shall be humbled for the Compassionate; so that thou shalt hear but muttering.

109. That Day intercession will not avail except him for whom the Compassionate gives leave, and of whom He approves the word.

110. He alone knows what is before them and what is behind them, and they cannot encompass it with their knowledge.

111. Downcast will be faces before the Living, the Self-Subsisting, and disappointed will be he who bears a wrong.

112. Whosoever works of the righteous works and is a believer—he will not fear wrong or begrudging.

417. i.e., the most competent among the sinners to realize the true situation.

418. i.e., the Arab pagans.

419. (O Prophet!)

420. (as to what will become of these solid, mighty, bulky rocks on the Last Day).

421. (after reducing them to dust).

422. i.e., the earth.
423. (O reader!) i. e., neither depression or lowness, nor elevation or highness.

424. i. e., the entire universe; all creatures.

425. i. e., the angel who will blow the trumpet.

426. ——even the loudest of them while yet in this world——

427. (low and faint, of their feet as they march).

428. This repudiates root and branch the Christian dogma of Saviourhood. There is no 'saviour' save God; while, according to the Christians, 'the central theme of the apostolic preaching is the proclamation of Jesus as Saviour . . . Jesus is not only Saviour; He is the only Saviour.' (DB. IV, p. 365).

429. i. e., everything that can conceivably be known. His knowledge is not partial or limited but all-comprehensive.

430. i. e., mankind, or created beings.

431. (on his back, unto himself). לְמָס ordinarily means wrong-doing, injustice or iniquity, but here, implying as it does—an antithesis to מַס in the next verse, it is construed by Th. to mean wrong-doing to oneself, or infidelity.

432. i. e., an ascription to himself of any sin not actually committed.

433. (of his reward from God).
113. And thus We have sent it down, an Arabic Recitation, and have propounded variously therein of the threats that haply they may fear God, or that it may, generate in them some admonition.

114. Exalted is Allah, the True King! Hasten thou not with the Qur'an before its Revelation to thee is finished, and say thou: Lord: give me increase in knowledge.

115. And assuredly We covenanted with Adam before, then he forgot. Indeed We did not find steadiness in him.

SECTION 7

116. Recall when We said to the angels: seek obeisance to Adam. They sought obeisance, except Iblis; he refused.

117. Then We said, O Adam! verily he is an enemy to thee and thy spouse, so let him not expel you twain from the Garden lest thou be distressed.

118. It is for thee that thou shalt not hunger here nor go naked.

119. Nor that thou shalt thirst here nor shall suffer from the sun.

120. Then did Satan whisper to him, and said: O Adam! shall I direct thee to a tree of eternity and a dominion that ages not?
created beings; . . . . or acknowledged be His absolute supremacy.' (LL).

440. (and the Author of this Glorious Book).

441. (O Prophet! in repeating it while it is being revealed to thee).

442. (through the angel Gabriel). The holy Prophet in his anxiety not to miss a single word of the Qur'ān, used to repeat it simultaneously with its inspiration by Gabriel.

443. (if thou fearest lest a portion of the Qur'ān might slip from the memory).

444. 'Knowledge' comprehends memory, retentiveness, proper understanding, in short, every means of acquiring and preserving knowledge.

445. (that he would observe a certain commandment of Ours).

446. (to observe that commandment).

447. (in that particular affair). Or 'firmness of resolve or determination.'

448. See P. I, nn. 151, 152.

449. (pointing to Satan).

450. (so beware of his viles and stratagems).

451. i. e., in this Garden of Heaven.

452. (as all thy needs and comforts have already been provided for).

453. (after pretending to be his friend and well-wisher and assuring him of his bona fides on oath). See P. VIII, n. 338.

454. (which shall make thee immortal, and cause thee never to separate from God's Presence).
121. Then the twain ate of that tree, so they beheld their nakedness, and they took to stitching upon themselves with leaves of the Garden. Thus did Adam disobey his Lord, and erred.

122. Thereafter his Lord accepted him and relented toward him and guided him.

123. Allah said: get down you twain herefrom together. Some of you are an enemy to some others. Then if there comes to you guidance from Me, whoever follows My guidance, shall neither go astray nor be distressed.

124. And whoever turns away from My guidance, verily for him will be a shrunken livelihood and We shall raise him up sightless on the Day of Judgment.

125. And he will say: Lord! why hast Thou raised me sightless whereas I have been able to see.

126. Allah will say: in a like way did Our signs come to thee, and thou ignored them, so thou too shalt be ignored this day.

127. We thus require him who transgresses and does not believe in the signs of thy Lord; and surely the torment of the Hereafter is most severe and most lasting.

128. Has it not served as guidance to them how many a generation We have destroyed before them, in whose dwellings they walk. Verily therein are signs for men of reason.

455. i.e., they partook of the fruit of a certain tree.

456. (to conceal their nakedness). This exalts the sense of modesty in human beings, and strikes at the root of phallicism which forms an integral part of pagan art and religion.

457. (by a grave error of judgment;) as the very act of disobedience far from disclosing any normal depravity or turpitude was the outcome of Adam's intense wish to remain eternally in the Divine presence.
458. (in his search for the good-will of his Lord).
459. (out of His grace, on his repentance and showing contrition).
460. (to the right path throughout his life).
461. See P., I, nn. 170, 171
462. (in this very world). Religion being the basic factor of morals, and the fact of all human society, he who is diverted from true religion, is riding a rudderless boat in the ocean, and such a one, all through his life, must be running after illusions and following a false light. Even in modern times, careful investigators have found that religion has a great influence on the suicide rate, and have maintained that those who are earnestly devout to religion furnish very few suicides.
463. (symbolic of his wilful blindness in this world).
464. (in the world below).
465. (and wast wilfully blind to them).
466. (i.e., deprived of Our grace).
467. (the bounds of Law).
468. ایسند and است both here denote the superlative, not the comparative, degree.
469. i.e., the Makkān pagans.
470. (and whose ruins they see with their own eyes). The allusion is primarily to the old nations of Arabia—the ʿĀd and the Thamūd.
471. i.e., reasons for giving ear to the voice of the holy Prophet.
SECTION 8

129. And had not a word gone forth from thy Lord and a term determined, it must necessarily have come.

130. So bear thou patiently with what they say, and hallow the praise of thy Lord before sunrise and before sunset; and hallow Him in parts of the night and the ends of the day, haply Thou wilt be pleased.

131. And do not strain thy eyes after what We have given pairs of them to enjoy: the splendour of the life of this world, that We might try them therein; and the provision of thy Lord is the best and most Lasting.

132. And bid thy household for prayer, and persevere thou therein. We do not ask any provision of thee: it is We who provide thee. The happy end is for piety.

472. (for a respite, in accordance with His universal Plan and Purpose).

473. (for their punishment by God).

474. (here and now; immediately and in this very world).

475. (O Prophet!).

476. (in the way of blasphemy and infidelity).

477. (in prayer).

478. i.e., at the morning (Fajr) prayers.

479. i.e., at the two afternoon prayers, Zuhr, and ‘Asr.

480. i.e., at the two evening prayers, Maghrib and ‘Isha.

481. i.e., at the two extremities of the day; daybreak and sunset; Fajr and Maghrib prayers. The repetition is for the sake of emphasis.

482. (with respect to receiving favours from God).

483. (in the future as thou hast not done in the past, O Prophet!).
484. i. e., the infidels. The purport is: do not covet the pomp and prosperity which We have bestowed on some of the infidels in this world.

485. Temptation of wealth and splendour lurking in ambush to surprise the unguarded believer, dangerous always, assailed the early Muslims, sunk into want and penury as they were, with redoubled force, and therefore merited a special warning.

486. (for them in the Hereafter).

487. (as these are the important things worth attending to).

488. (as We provide for all and sundry).

489. i. e., We do not require of thee that thou shouldst labour to obtain provision for thyself and thy family.
133. (وَقَالَ اٰتَّبَعْهُمْ) And they say: why does he not bring us a sign from his Lord? Has not there come to them the fulfilment of what is in the former Scriptures?

134. (وَلَوْ دَمْثَ مُّهَمَّدًا) And had We destroyed them with a torment before it, they would have said: O our Lord! why did Thou not send us a messenger that we might have followed Thy signs before we were disgraced and humiliated.

135. (قُلْ شُفِّنُمَا اٰتَبَعَكُمْ) Say thou: everyone is on the watch; so watch on, and soon you shall know who are the fellows of the even path and who has let himself be guided.

490. i.e., some of the infidels.
491. i.e., a special miracle such as we demand as the Divine credential for his mission.
492. i.e., the fulfilment of promise made earlier.
493. (as to the advent of the Final Prophet and the Last Book).
494. (for their infidelity).
495. i.e., before the Revelation of the Qur'an.
496. (at the Resurrection; or at the time of their chastisement in the world).
497. (O Prophet!).
498. (demonstrably).
PART XVII

Sūrat-ul-Anbiyā

The Prophets. XXI

(Makkan, 7 Sections and 112 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (اقرب ... مرعون) Their reckoning\(^1\) has approached mankind, while they\(^8\) are turning away unheedingly.\(^3\)

2. (مبايثهم ... لعون) No fresh admonition from their Lord\(^4\) comes to them but they listen to it while they are sporting.

3. (لاهية ... تبعرون) their hearts being in a light mood.\(^5\) The wrongdoers\(^6\) keep secret their whispers\(^7\) among themselves: this\(^8\) is but a mortal like yourselves;\(^9\) what! will you be affected by magic while you know?\(^10\)

4. (قل ... القلم) The prophet said: my Lord knows the word\(^11\) in the heavens and the earth;\(^12\) and He is the Hearer, the Knower.

1. The Day of Reckoning is drawing closer and closer every moment.
2. \(i. e.,\) the infidels.
3. (from the consideration thereof): \(i. e.,\) so steeped are they in recklessness!
4. (through the Qur’ān).
5. The entire lack of interest in other-world conditions, among the pagan Arabs, arising from their sceptical outlook is a well-known fact of history. Reckless, sceptical, materialistic in their outlook, ‘a great majority believed in no future life nor in a reckoning-day of good and evil.’ (LSK. Intro. p. XXXIII). The Prophet’s ‘contemporaries and the generations preceding them were, as a rule, little influenced by their religion.' (ERE. I, p. 659) 'One of the hardest parts' of the Prophet's task was to induce in them that pious attitude of mind towards the Creator, which Islam inculcates equally with Judaism and Christianity' but which was practically unknown to the heathen Arabs. (Arnold, Preaching of Islam, p. 43).

6. (to their own souls) i.e., the pagans.
7. (regarding the holy Prophet).
8. (claimant to prophethood).
9. i.e., distinct from us in no material way; and therefore his claims to Messengership are unworthy of credence. That was the pagan view of the holy Prophet and the prophethood.

10. That was the pagan view of the holy Qur'ān. Its effectiveness they found themselves unable to ignore and could only explain away by calling it an enchanted word.

11. (whether whispered in secret or uttered openly).
12. (and so He knows well the secret plots against Islam and the Prophet, and will punish every culprit accordingly).
5. (بِلِ الدُّلُور) Ayel they say: a medley of dreams; ayel he has fabricated it, aye! he is a poet, so let him bring us a sign, as the ancients were sent with.

6. (ما أنت إلَّا مَفْتَنٌ) Not a town which We destroyed before them came to believe: will these believe?

7. (وَمَا نُفِيلَ عَلَيْهِمْ حَقًا) And We sent not before thee but human beings to whom We revealed; so ask the people of the Admonition if you do not know.

8. (وَمَا نَجْعَلُ لِمَنْ يُبَيِّنُونَ) And We made them not bodies requiring no food, nor were they immortals.

9. (لَا أُعْلَمُ أَنَّهُمْ مَفْتَنُونَ) Then We fulfilled to them the promise, so We delivered them and those whom We willed, and destroyed the extravagant.

10. (لَا أُعْلَمُ أَنَّهُمْ مَفْتَنُونَ) And assuredly We have sent down to you a Book in which is admonition for you; will you then not reflect?

SECTION 2

11. (وَمَا أَنْتُ إلَّا مَفْتَنٌ) How many a town did We overthrow which were doing wrong, and We caused to grow up thereafter another nation!

12. (فَلَا يَكُونُوا ثُمَّ نَذَرْنَاهُمْ) Then when they perceived Our revenge, lo! they were from it fleeing.

13. (لاَ فَلَنَّ دِينَكُمْ) Flee not, and return to that wherein you luxuriated and your dwellings, haply you will be questioned.

13. (of the Holy Qur'an, in their extreme hatred).

14. (not in the artistic sense, a composer of verses in correct meter, but an ecstatic poet who under influences from the Unseen utters magical formulae, admonitions and premonitions).

15. i. e., let him work wonders such as the ancient soothsayers and magicians did.

16. (in the face of portents and miracles).

18. (and not demi-gods, angels, or other superhuman beings). Note the import of the word \( \text{جبر} \). It is always male human beings who have been chosen for the prophetic office, and never any female.

19. (O pagans!) The address is to the pagans, who denied the very possibility of Revelation to a human being. They are asked to refer to the people of the Book (i. e., the Jews) whose advice they highly valued in matters religious. \( \text{القرآن} \) is 'a Book containing an exposition of religion, and an institution of religious laws: any book of the prophets: and specially the Kuran and the \( \text{القرآن} \) (LL).'

20. i. e., unlike angels who require neither food nor drink, the apostles have invariably been mere men, preaching and proclaiming the will of God, standing by His Law, and rebuking evil and promulgating virtue, but strictly subject to the common physical laws of humanity.

21. Lit. abiders

22. (from Our wrath which overtook the rebels roundabout them).

23. (and they were those who submitted to Our messengers).

24. i. e., the trespassers of Our laws.

25. (approaching them, whether in the form of an army of conquest or some other physical calamity).
They said: woe be to us! surely we have been wrong-doers.

And this ceased not to be their cry, until We made them a harvest reaped, extinguished.

And We created not the heavens and the earth and what is in-between in play.

Had We intended that We should choose a sport, surely We would choose it from before Us—if We were going to do that.

Aye! We hurl truth against falsehood, so that it brains it, and lo! it vanishes, and woe to you for what you utter!

His is whosoever is in the heavens and the earth and those near Him are not too proud to pay Him homage nor are they ever weary.

And they hallow Him night and day, they do not flag.

Have they taken gods from the earth, who raise up the dead?

(as Our wrath overtook them).

i.e., dead and extinct, like extinguished ashes.

i.e., the universe is not the outcome of a mere creative sport, but is created with Wisdom and Purpose, and is a serious reality to be reckoned with. This repudiates the Indian doctrine of Māya and its implications.

Religion, whatever else it may be, always implies a serious state of mind, and solemnity is its very breath. 'There must be something solemn, serious, and tender about any attitude which we denominate religious. . . . The word "divine" shall mean for us not merely the primal reality as the individual feels impelled to respond to solemnly and gravely, and neither by a curse nor a jest.' (James, Varieties of Religious Experience, p. 38).

30. i.e., the doctrine of monotheism and Unity.

31. i.e., the dogma of polytheism and Plurality.

32. (implausibly concerning God, and His Person and Attributes, O polytheists!).

33. i.e., angels, ignorantly assumed by pagans to be gods or godlings.

34. i.e., they willingly and perpetually serve the Most High, and have neither will nor capacity to go against Him.

35. All this is aimed at angelolatry.

36. i.e., the pagans.

37. Such as idols, and sacred rivers, trees and animals.
Had there been gods, besides Allah, in-between the twain, surely the twain would have gone to ruin. Hallowed be Allah, the Lord of the Throne, from what they utter!

Questioned He shall not be as to what He does, while they shall be questioned.

Have they taken gods beside Him? Say thou: forth with your proof! This is an admonition to them with me and an admonition to those before me. But most of them know not the truth, so they are averters.

And We did not send any messenger before thee but We revealed to him: there is no god but I, so worship Me.

And they say: the Compassionate has taken a son. Hallowed be He! aye! they are bondmen honoured!

They precede Him not in word, and by His command they work.

He knows whatsoever is before them and whatsoever is behind them, and they intercede not except for him whom He approves. And in awe of Him they are fearful.

And whosoever of them should say: verily I am a god beside Him, such a one We will requite with Hell. Thus We requite the ungodly.

(as imagined by the polytheistic peoples all the world over).

i. e., the heavens on the one hand and the earth on the other.

(by natural fights of such mighty antagonists). The battle of gods is a familiar feature of the mythologies of the world!

i. e., the polytheists.

(so derogatory to His dignity).

The very supposition that the Almighty God should be responsible to some one higher than Himself, or regulate His actions to some higher law, is on the face of it absurd and inconsistent with the reality of the Divine freedom and Omnipotence, yet even such palpable absurdities have passed current in polytheistic systems. In the Greek religion, for instance, the power even ‘of the highest god was limited’, and ‘overruling fate became an inexorable law, before which even he must bow.’ (DB. V. p. 147).

44. i. e., all of His creatures, however exalted they may be.

45. (O Prophet!)

46. i. e., bring any argument you can to support your crude, polytheistic notions.

47. i. e., my contemporaries.

48. i. e., addressed by the old scriptures. The purport is: the great and fundamental doctrine of the unity of God is the common theme both of the Qurʾān and the old Scriptures; where is there any trace in them of the dogma of co-partnership of gods?

49. (since they never care to arrive at the truth).

50. (therefrom) i. e., they are still heedless of the truth.

51. The central Message delivered in every land and clime, through every prophet and apostle.

52. The reference here is not to the Christians but to the Arab pagans.

53. (and thereby they mean some of His angels). This particular blasphemy has been world-wide, the Semitics being no exception. ‘That the angels, as “sons of God,” form part of the old Semitic mythology, is clear from Gen. VI. 2, 4.’ (Robertson Smith, Religion of the Semites, p. 446).

54. (from all such blasphemous superstitions).

55. i. s., no more than God’s devoted servants, very honourable though, and not demi-gods or sons of God in any sense.

56. i. e., respectful servants of God as they are, they cannot be so presumptuous as to say anything until He hath spoken it.

57. (as befits perfectly obedient, loyal and dutiful servants).

58. —— the Omniscient, All-Knowing God——

59. ——powerless creatures as they are——

60. All this required special emphasis in view of the very wide prevalence of angelolatry.

61. i. e., of the angels and other created beings.
SECTION 3

30. (المل . . . يرمن) Have not those who disbelieved considered that the heavens and the earth were closed up,62 then We rent them?63 And We have made of water,64 everything living,65 will they not then believe?66

31. (وجملنا . . . بهدوان) And We have placed in the earth firm mountains lest it should move away with them,67 and We placed therein passages for paths, that haply they may be guided.68

32. (وجملنا . . . مومرون) And We have made the heaven a roof, safe;69 and from the signs thereof70 they are averters.

33. (وهو ... يسرون) And He it is who has created the night and the day, the sun and the moon,71 each in an orb floating.72

34. (وما ... لاالدينون) And We have not, before thee, granted immortality to any human being,73 so if thou diest, are they74 to be immortals?75

35. (كل ... جرمنون) Every one is going to taste of death, and We shall try you76 with evil77 and good78 as a temptation,79 and to Us you will be returned.

62. (so that no rain could descend from above, nor could any plant grow upon the surface of the earth).

63. i.e., the one by rains and the other by plants.

64. The reference is to the rain-water which is the ultimate support, direct or indirect, of all life on the earth. (Th) 'Life of every kind is dependent upon water, and terrestrial life upon rain-water.' (HHW. I, p. 44) 'Of all the thousands of possible liquids other than water, there is not one which would seem to have the faintest prospect of supporting life. Moreover, every tissue of every living organism contains a large percentage of water as an essential ingredient in its composition. We need only try to imagine the place of water being taken by, say, one of the series of alcohols, one of the hydrocarbons, one of the benzene group, etc. etc., and we see how literally impossible any substitution becomes.' (Greenwood, Biology and Christian Belief, p. 180).
65. The reference my well be to protoplasm, translated years ago by Huxley as 'the physical basis of life', the 'one kind of matter which is common to all living beings.' (Huxley, Collected Essays, I. p. 131) It is the essential material of which all living creatures are composed. Now this protoplasm is in its turn almost an aqueous substance, for water is the most abundant single component of proto-plasm.' (EBr. XVIII, p. 617).

66. (in the all-sufficiency of God the Creator).
67. i.e., with mankind. So that it may not shake and move unsteadily.
68. (in their journeys by their means).
69. (and affording security). ١٢٦٥ is so called because of its height, and the tallness of its walls. Thus the word depicts the nature of the heaven more truly and more graphically than any astronomical term ever can.
70. (pointing that they are the workmanship of God).
71. (all of which are created entities, not gods or goddesses to be worshipped or adored).

72. 'All glide or trawl along swiftly, in a firmament, like the swimmer upon the surface of the water, or in the water.' (LL) 'How beautiful it is to contemplate the heavenly bodies swimming through space (or ether) in their rounded courses before our gaze! (AYA).' In the words of a modern astronomer:
'If you watch the heavens for an hour or two, you will find that the stars all move across the sky from east to west, like a column of soldiers on the march, without so much as altering their positions relative to each other. The same sort of thing happens night after night. The moon, too, moves with the stars from east to west. During the day the sun does the same. Of course during the day time we are not able to see the stars: the atmosphere around us diffuses the light of the sun and thus prevents our seeing the stars during the hours the sun is above the horizon. If there was no atmosphere and we were still able to survive, we would see the stars shining all round the sun, and accompanying it in its journey across the heavens.'

73. (O Prophet! so that thy death, whenever it occurs, can be no disproof of thy apostleship). The passage was revealed when the Makken pagans rejoiced at the prospect of the holy Prophet's death.
74. i.e., thy enemies.
75. (so why should they feel jubliant?).
76. (O mankind!).
77. i.e., disagreeable states, such as pain, disease, bereavement, poverty, etc.
78. i.e., agreeable states, such as good health, property, children, etc.
79. i.e., in the way of a trial.
And when the infidels look at thee, they only take thee up for mockery: is this the one who mentions your gods with contempt, while in the mention of the Compassionate they are themselves blasphemers.

Man was created of haste. I shall surely show you My signs, so ask Me not to hasten.

And they say: when is this torment coming, if you say sooth?

If the disbelievers only know of the time when they shall not be able to ward off the Fire from their faces nor from their backs nor shall they be succoured!

Aye! it would come upon them on a sudden and will dumbfound them; they shall not be able to avert it, nor shall they be respited.

And assuredly mocked were the messengers before thee, then there surrounded the scoffers what they had been mocking at.

SECTION 4

Say thou: who guards you from the Compassionate by night and day? And yet they avert themselves from the remembrance of their Lord

(O Prophet!).

The Prophet’s ‘message and his warnings received from them nothing but scoffing and contempt.’ (Arnold, Preaching of Islam, p. 13) ‘They would only point at him slightly as he passed, and say: there goeth the Fellow from among the children of ‘Abd-al-Muttalib, to speak unto the people about the Heavens!’ (Muir, op. cit., p. 63).

(with disrespect and contempt). The verb ُلُكُرُ has also a sense of ‘dispraise, or evil speech.’ (LL) يذَکِرُ iseem (IQ).

(by their associating with Him lesser gods and ascribing to Him attributes unworthy of Him).
84. So hasty and impatient indeed is he! \( \text{He} \) signifies the seeking, and pursuing, or endeavouring after, a thing before its proper time, or season' (LL). The passage denotes the excess of this quality in man.

85. (at the proper time). ‘My signs’ signify the approach of the Hour of the torment.

86. The pagans were pressing on the holy Prophet to bring on the Divine vengeance immediately.

87. (to the Muslims).

88. (and thus they would not have ventured to demand its coming on). The conditional particle \( \text{if} \) implies that what is supposed either does not take place or is not likely to do so. (WGAL. II. p. 347)

89. \text{i.e., the Hour, or Divine vengeance.}

90. (by the scoffers of their day, O Prophet!).

91. (in this world).

92. \text{i.e., the Divine vengeance.}

93. (so take comfort then, O Prophet!).

94. (O Prophet! to the scoffers).

95. \text{i.e., from His wrath which may descend on the rebels at any time.}

96. \text{i.e., from His true worship shorn of all other worships.}
43. Have they gods who defend them against Us? They have no power to succour themselves; and against Us they cannot be kept company with.

44. Ay! We let these people and their fathers enjoy until there grow long upon them the life. Observe they not that We come upon their land, diminishing it by its borders. Will they then triumph?

45. Say thou: I only warn you by the Revelation, and the deaf do not hear the call when they are warned.

46. And if only a breath of the torment of thy Lord were to touch them, they will cry: woe to us! we have been the wrong-doers.

47. And We shall set balances of justice for the Day of Judgement. Then no one will be wronged at all but the weight of a grain of mustard-seed. We shall bring it; and suffice We as reckoners.

48. And assuredly We gave to Mūsā and Hārūn the distinction and illumination and an admonition for the God-fearing ——

49. those who fear their Lord, Unseen, and who are fearful of the Hour.

97. (from the vengeance when it comes).
98. i. e., those false gods.
99. (by solace and comfort).
100. (worldly prosperity).
101. (of ease and enjoyment, and they became conceited and forgetful of their duties).
102. i. e., the Arab pagans.
103. —— as a prelude to their final chastisement——
104. (of Makka and its neighbouring places). Or 'We bring destruction upon.' It is also, 'he destroyed it.' (LL)
105. i.e., curtailing it of its sides or districts, one by one, by the conquest of Islam.

106. i.e., are they still dreaming of their victory?

107. (and it is beyond my function to bring on the vengeance).

108. (so no amount of preaching and warning will avail these wilful rejectors of truth).

109. (from sheer cowardice). 'A breath of torment' means only a small portion of it.

110. ——in accordance with Our perfect justice——

111. (when actions of every soul will be weighed and it will be requited accordingly).

112. (full and perfect justice being meted out to every one).

113. i.e., merit or guilt of any action.

114. i.e., even so small.

115. (even without the aid of balances). This strikes at the root of the pagan conception requiring a special god of knowledge. The Egyptians, for instance, worshipped Thoth as the divine measurer of celestial seasons and earthly years.

116. (primarily and directly).

117. (as his lieutenant).
50. And this\(^{118}\) is an admonition blest, which We have sent down;\(^{119}\) will you then be its rejectors?

SECTION 5

51. And assuredly We gave rectitude to Ibrahim aforetime, and him We had ever known.\(^{120}\)

52. (And Cal. ... Faktuun) Recall when he said to his father\(^{121}\) and his people: what are these images which you are cleaving to?\(^{122}\)

53. (Qala ... Ulleen) They said: we found our fathers their worshippers.\(^{123}\)

54. (Qala ... Meeen) He said: assuredly you, you and your fathers, have been in error manifest.

55. (Qala ... Ulleen) They said: hast thou come to us in seriousness, or art thou among those who sport?\(^{124}\)

56. (Qala ... Alleen) He said: Ayee! your Lord is the Lord of the heavens and the earth. Who created them; and of that I am among the witnesses.

57. (Wanaa ... Mideen) And by Allah, I am surely going to devise a plot against your idols,\(^{126}\) after you have turned your backs.\(^{127}\)

58. (Helleem ... Yir Jeemun) Then he made them fragments,\(^{127}\) all except the big one of them,\(^{128}\) that haply to it they may return.\(^{129}\)

59. (Qala ... Meeen) They said: who has done this to our gods? surely he is of the evil-doers.\(^{131}\)

---

118. (Book, likewise).
119. (from heaven).
120. (to be worthy of it).
121. Who "was a manufacturer of idols and had them for sale." (JE. I. p. 86)——perhaps a distinguished sculptor of his day. See also P. VII. n. 525.
122. (as objects of adoration and worship). Images and idols are looked upon by the idolaters not only as visible symbols and representations of some higher beings but as tenements or veritable 'bodies' of their gods and fraught with divinity.
See also P. VII. nn. 526, 527; P. XVI. nn. 153, 158.

123. (and we have only followed their example). The Sumerians had from the beginning, so far as we can tell, made statues of the deities in their pantheon, and always they represented them in human shape. (Woolley, Abraham, p. 249) Idolatry and image-worship form a very striking feature of the Babylonian religious system. (ERE. VII. p. 117).

124. So unaccustomed to, and so unfamiliar with, the doctrine of monotheism were they.

125. (so that you may more plainly be convinced of your folly in worshipping them).

126. (and have left the temple).

127. (in the people’s absence). ܕܠܐ ܐܠܐ ‘signifies fragments of a thing much broken.’ (LL)

128. (so that it might look as if it had smashed the others). Abraham had left the chief idol intact with an axe hanging on its neck. ‘And seizing an iron implement, he destroyed and broke with it all the images save one, into the hands of which he placed the iron which he had used.’ (Polano, op. cit., p. 36).

129. (and ask it what it had done with the others).

130. (after they had returned to the temple and seen the havoc which had been made).

131. i.e., a blasphemer; a man of great impiety.
60. They said among themselves we heard a youth, called Ibrāhīm speak of them with disrespect.

61. They said: bring him then before the eyes of the people, haply they may bear witness.

62. They said: art thou the one who has done this to our gods, O Ibrāhīm?

63. He said: rather he has done it the big one of them; so question them, if they ever speak.

64. They then turned to themselves and said: you it is who are the evil-doers.

65. Thereafter they were put to utter confusion, saying: certainly thou knowest that they speak not.

66. He said: do you worship them besides Allah what can neither profit you nor hurt you.

67. Fie upon you and upon what you worship besides Allah, Will you not then reflect?

68. They said: burn him and succour your gods, if you will be doing.

69. We said: O Fire! be thou coolness and safety for Ibrāhīm.

132. i. e., some of them.
133. (reproachfully). For َكَفَّارَةَ see n. 82 above.
134. i. e., in the public view, so that he might confess.
135. (against him on the strength of that confession).
136. (after he had been brought before the public assembly).
137. The question was purely formal, as Abraham had already said in the presence of a number of people that he would do something to the idols. Therach . . . who hurried to the apartment, where he found the broken idols and the food which Abram had placed before them. In wrath and indignation he cried out unto his son, saying: "what is this that thou hast done unto my gods?" (Polano, op. cit., p. 36)

138. (continuing his irony, and, pointing to the chief idol).

139. \( \text{٠} \) is a particle of digression; its English equivalents are: Nay, nay rather, not so, on the contrary, but. Here ‘rather’ is preferable.

140. It is obvious that the question of lying or deceit on the part of Abraham rises nowhere in the whole episode. He never intended to deceive, nor did he make a secret of his purpose or his feelings. Cf. the Talmud:—‘And Abraham answered: I brought them savoury food, and behold they all grasped for it with eagerness at the same time all save the largest one, who, annoyed and displeased with their greed, seized that iron which he holds and destroyed them.’ (Polano, op. cit., p. 36).

141. (finding themselves beaten in the argument and outwitted, and overcome with shame).

142. \( \text{i.e.} \), worthy of blame and reproach in worshipping these speechless gods.

143. \( \text{Ltt.} \) They were made to turn over upon their heads ‘Their return to falsity being likened to a thing’s becoming upside down.’ (L.L)

144. (so why dost thou ask us to interrogate them?) Cf. the Talmud:—‘False are thy words’, answered Therach in anger. ‘Had these images the breath of life, that they could move and act as thou hast spoken? Did I not fashion them with my own hands? Now, then, could the larger destroy the smaller ones?’ (Polano, op. cit., p. 36)

145. (finding the opportunity of his life and dealing his final stroke upon his opponents).

146. (on finding themselves absolutely worsted in the argument).

147. (anything at all to help your gods). Death by fire was a usual punishment in many ancient nations. Cf. the Talmud:—‘During this time Nimrod convened his council . . . And the counsellors replied: ‘He who act disrespectfully to the king should meet death upon the gallows; this man has done more; he is guilty of sacrilege, he has insulted our gods; therefore he should be burned to death. If it be pleasing to the king, let a furnace be heated, day and night, and then let this Abram be cast therein.’ This advice pleased the king, and he commanded such measures to be taken forthwith.’ (Polano, op. cit., pp. 37, 38).

148. (as he was cast into the fire). According to the Jews:—‘Nimrod ordered Abraham to be cast into a furnace. He had a pile of wood five yards in circumference set on fire, and Abraham was cast into it.’ (JE. I. p. 86)

149. (whereupon the heat of the fire miraculously ceased, and the pile turned into a sort of pleasant meadow). ‘God Himself went down from heaven to rescue him.’ (JE. I. p. 86) See P. XXIII, nn. 199-200.
70. And they wanted to do him harm, but We made themselves the worst losers.
71. And We delivered him and Lūt to the land in which We had placed the blessings for the worlds.
72. And We bestowed upon him Is-hāq and Y'aqūb as a grandson, and each one We made righteous.
73. And We made them leaders guiding by Our command, and We revealed to them the doing of good deeds and the establishment of prayers, and the giving of poor-rate; and of Us they were the worshippers.
74. And as to Lūt: We gave him judgement and knowledge, and We delivered him out of the city which had been working foul deeds, verily they were a people evil, wicked.
75. And We caused him to enter Our mercy; verily he was of the righteous.

SECTION 6

76. And as to Nūh Recall when he cried aforetime. We answered him and delivered him and his household from a mighty disaster.
all that he had, and Lot with him, into the south. And Abram was very rich in cattle, in silver, and in gold. . . . . And Lot also, which went with Abraham, had flocks, and herds, and tents.' (Ge. 13: 1, 2, 5)

154. (as a son).

155. Or, 'an additional gift.' ḏ is both a grandson and an additional gift.

156. (as every prophet of God is bound to be). This truth, obvious to every Muslim reader, needed an express affirmation in view of extremely grave charges of immorality brought against these Israelite prophets in the Bible.

157. i.e., exemplars; objects of imitation to a people. So these prophets of God were, the Qurʾān expressly and repeatedly affirms, models of religion and piety, and pre-eminently virtuous and holy, not mere diviners or interpreters of the Law to their people.

158. i.e., preachers of the Law to their people.

159. Thus in Islam the role of the prophet is two fold. As an organ of Revelation, he is the precepter of his people in true doctrines and right practices, and in himself he is a living embodiment of communion with God.

160. (communiate with his dignity as a prophet).

161. (other than unnatural crimes). 'In Sodom every one who gave bread and water to the poor was condemned to death by fire.' (JE. XI. p. 424)

162. Cf. the OT:—'The men of Sodom were wicked and sinners before the Lord exceedingly.' (Ge. 13: 13) See also P. VIII. nn. 563, 564.

163. This clear, powerful vindication of Lot's saintly character was the more needed to contradict and repudiate the most atrocious charge—of incest—brought against him in the Bible. (Ge. 19: 30-38) The rabbis, not to be outdone by the Bible, maintained that 'he was given over to lust; therefore he chose Sodom as his residence.' (JE. VIII. p. 186)

164. (to Us for the destruction of his rebellious people).

165. i.e., before the time of the prophets mentioned in the text.
77. (وَنَصْرَهُ . . . اِجْمِعْ) We succoured him against a people who belied Our signs; verily they were a people evil, so We drowned them all.
78. (وَدَارَدَ . . . تَهْجِينٌ) And as to Dā‘ūd and Sulaimān, recall when they gave judgment regarding the tillage when certain people's sheep had pastured therein at night, and of the judgement concerning them. We were the witnesses.
79. (تَشِهِّنُهَا . . . سَلَاحٍ) So We gave insight into it to Sulaimān, and to each of the two We gave judgment and knowledge. And We so subjected the mountains that they should hallow Us along with Dā‘ūd, and also the birds; and We were the doers.
80. (وَعَلِينَ . . . لَكُونِ) And We taught him the art of making the coats of mail for you that it may protect you in your violence; are you then thankful?
81. (وَلَهِيْجِينٌ . . . عَالِمٍ) And to Sulaimān We subjected the wind, strongly raging, running at his command towards the land, wherein We had placed Our blessing, and of everything We are the Knowers.
82. (وَمِنَ . . . مُنْطِقِينَ) And of the devils were some who dived for him, and worked a work besides that; and of them We were the Watchers.

166. See P. XII. nn. 121, 124.
167. i.e., the people; the parties concerned. The pronoun is plural, not dual, and refers to قُومٌ; and حُكَمُ is 'judgment concerning them,' not 'their judgment.'
168. 'Solomon was noteworthy for sagacity and discernment. . . . He was famed for his wisdom.' (VJE. p. 610) 'He discharged every duty with great accuracy, that might have been expected from such as were aged, and of the greatest prudence. He was resolved to go to Hebron, and sacrifice to God upon the brazen altar that was built by Moses. Accordingly he offered there burnt offerings, in number a thousand. . . . As he was asleep that very night, God appeared to him, and commanded him to ask of him some gifts which he was ready to give him as a reward for his piety. . . . Said he, "Give me, O Lord, a sound mind, and a good understanding, whereby I may speak and judge the people according to truth and righteousness.’ With these petitions God was well pleased; and promised to give him all those things that he had not mentioned in his option, riches, glory, victory over his enemies: and in the first place understanding and wisdom, and this in such a degree as no other mortal man, neither kings nor ordinary persons, ever had.’” (‘“Ant.” VIII. 2:1) ‘The justice of Solomon was proverbial. . . . His judicial wisdom was displayed in the memorable history of the two women who contested the right to a child.’ (Milman, _op. cit._, I. p. 251) His early decision of a certain intricate case immediately made him famous and has greatly helped to maintain his reputation for wisdom ever since. It showed an instinctive insight into the workings of the human heart very remarkable in so young a man, and a keenness of practical discernment of a kind invaluable in one whose chief duty was to act as the supreme judge.’ (DB. IV. pp. 562, 563) See also P. XIX. n. 419.

169. (of the twain).

170. (so that David’s judgment was also right, although Solomon’s was better).

171. _Cf._ the OT:—‘Praise ye the Lord. . . Mountains and all hills; fruitful trees, and all cedars: Beasts, and all cattle; creeping things and flying fowls.’ (Ps. 148:1, 9-10)

172. (thereof): _i. e._, it was We, the Author of the universe, who brought about all this.

173. (O mankind!) Note that the Holy Qur’ān nowhere asserts or even implies that David was the _inventor_ of the coast-of-mail. It only affirms, by implication, that he made a great and beneficial use of them.

174. (to Us, as you ought to be, for being taught the making of this great weapon of defence).

175. _i. e._, the land of Syria, whither he returned from his excursion.

176. _i. e._, it is We who know every event with perfect truth and accuracy, whether it is known to human students or not.

177. _i. e._, perhaps the infidel genii who served Solomon. _جَنَّاتُ_ is not only ‘the devil’, but any that is exceedingly, or inordinately, proud or corrupt or unbelieving or rebellious whether ‘of mankind’ or ‘of the _jinn_, a genii, and of beasts’ (LL).

178. (in the sea). According to the rabbis, Solomon’s ‘control over the demons, spirits, and animals augmented his splendour, the _demons_ bringing him precious stones, besides water from distant countries to irrigate his exotic plants’ (JE. XI. p. 440)

179. (such as the building of cities and palaces).

180. _i. e._, it was We who controlled the unruly genii, and subjected them to Solomon’s control; so the fact need not look incredible.
83. And as to Ayyūb, recall when he cried to his Lord: verily affliction has touched me, and Thou are the Most Merciful of the mercifuls.

84. So We answered him, and We removed from him what was with him of the affliction, and We gave restoration to him his household and along with them the like thereof as a mercy from Us and a remembrance to the devotees.

85. Each was steadfast.

86. And We caused them to enter Our mercy, verily they were of the righteous.

87. And as to Zun-nun, recall when he departed with anger and imagined that We could have no power over him, and then he cried in the layer of darknesses, there is no god but Thou! hallowed be Thou! verily I have been of the wrong-doers.

88. So We answered him and We delivered him from the distress; and thus do We deliver the believers.

89. And as to Zakariyya, recall when he cried to his Lord: Lord! leave me not heirless though Thou art the best of inheritors.

181. Job of the Bible, a descendant of Esan, and in the fifth generation from Abraham. He was a very prosperous man and of exemplary virtue and piety. See also P. XXIII. n. 391.

183. (so have mercy on me, and cure me of this fell disease).

184. (and his faith in God was rewarded).

185. (the members of his family being doubled).
186. i.e., unto the true and faithful servants of God.

187. See P. XVI. nn. 181 ff.

188. Probably an Arabicized form of Ezekiel. 'In the fifth day of the month, which was the fifth year of king Jehoiachin's captivity. The word of the Lord came expressly unto Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chal-ans by the river Chebar; and the hand of the Lord was there upon him.' (Ezek. 1: 2, 3) 'He was among the aristocracy whom Nabuchadnazzar (597 B.C.), after the first capture of Jerusalem, carried off to be exiles in Babylonia. . . . His prophecies extended over twenty-two years.' (JE.V. 313-14) 'The traditional burial-place of the prophet Ezekiel, . . . is shown at Kefil, near Birs Nimrud; for centuries it has been a favourite place of pilgrimage for Mohammedans as well as for Jews.' (p. 316) Speaking of the ruins of Babylon, says an explorer and traveller of the last century:—'To the south-west, in the extreme distance, rose the palm trees of Kefil, casting their scanty shade over a small dome, covering the tomb of Ezekiel. To this spot annually flock in crowds, as their forefathers have done for centuries, the Jews of Baghdad, Hillah and other cities of Chaldea, the descendants of the captives of Jerusalem, who still linger in the land of their exile.' (Layard, Niniveh and Babylon, p. 281). See also P. XXIII. n. 411.

189. i.e., steadfast in faith.

190. (and not guilty of moral delinquencies so falsely ascribed by the Jews).

191. Jonah of the Bible. See P. XI. n. 402. ذوالنون is literally 'man of the fish', so called because he was swallowed by a huge fish.

192. (against his people who refused to believe in him, but without the permission of his Lord). See P. XI. n. 403. غاضية means 'I broke off from him, or quit him, in anger, or enmity' (LL). So the phrase means, 'he went away, breaking off from his people, or quitting them in anger or enmity.'

193. (in his innocence).

194. i.e., take him to task for his unauthorised flight.

195. (in the belly of the fish). The plural number of 'darknesses' is indicative of darkness of night and of storm and of the fish's body.

196. (so forgive me, my Lord!). The forgiveness he craves is for the error of judgment, and not for any sin. The prophets of God are the very first to own and acknowledge their mistakes, however unintentional or trivial they may have been.

197. (he was in): i.e., he was cast out ashore by the fish, and he landed safely.

198. (from every affliction and distress, unless it be desirable in the universal Plan).

200. (and childless, but bestow on me a child to carry on my work for Thee).

201. i.e., though I know that no son can be immortal, and all things must go back to Thee.
90. (قاستينا... خمين) So We answered him and bestowed on him Yahu and We made sound for him his spouse Verily all of them were wont to vie with one another in good deeds and to call upon Us with longing and dread and they were before Us meek.

91. (و التي... البدين) And as to she who guarded her chastity We breathed into her of Our spirit and made her and her son a sign unto the worlds.

92. (إن... قاعدون) Verily this community of yours is a single community and I am your Lord; so worship Me.

93. (و تنظموا... لجعون) And they split up their affair among them all shall return to Us.

SECTION 7

94. (ف... كتير) Whosoever works righteous deeds, and he is a believer, there shall be no denial of his endeavour and We are for him the writers.

95. (رحمه... يرجعون) And a ban is laid on every town which We have destroyed that they shall not return.

96. (حتى... بعون) Until when Yajuj and Majuj are let out and from every mound they are trickling down.

203. i.e., all the prophets and saintly persons mentioned above.

204. Desire and fear are the two ultimate springs of human conduct.

205. (as befits the true men of God). Cf. the OT:—‘The Lord raiseth those that are bowed down.’ (Ps. 146: 8) ‘The Lord lifteth up the meek’ (Ps. 147: 6) ‘He will beautify the meek with salvation.’ (Ps. 149: 4) And the NT:—‘Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.’ (Mt. 5: 5).

206. (and not once came near to unchastity as maliciously said by her Jewish calumniators). The reference is to Mary, the mother of Jesus. See P. VI. n. 538.

207. (through Our arch-angel Gabriel).
208. (which caused her conception).
209. Jesus (on whom be peace!).
210. (of Our ability to generate a child without the agency of a father).
211. (O Muslims!) i. e., this way of life which is prescribed for you is the same as has been preached and practised by all the prophets and holy men and women, howsoever widely divided by time and space; Islam is only a continuation of that old religion.
212. This is the gist of the universal religion.
213. i. e., the erring humanity.
214. i. e., the affair of their religion.
215. i. e., instead of keeping to the old, primal religion of humanity the erring people have divided themselves into various jarring sects.
216. (and then they shall come to know).
217. (in the Hereafter) i. e., his efforts in the right cause, however small, shall by no means be lost.
218. i. e., the citizens of the that place.
219. (to the world any more).
220. (from their barrier, and a passage is opened for them at the approach of the Last Day). For these turbulent, lawless hordes see P. XVI. n. 40.
221. (in their swarming numbers, their irruption indicating the approach of the end of the world). Cf. the NT:—'And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison. And shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the sand of the sea.' (Re. 20: 8) References to Gog and Magog in the Bible are many, specially, in the Book of Ezekiel, but Magog, according to the Biblical scholars, is a slip for Gog, and the name Gog 'is a collective one, for a whole series of peoples coming from the north, and threatening at one time, during the 7th century, to engulf the Semitic world, much as the Goths and Vandals threatened the Roman Empire'. (DB. V. 80).
97. And there shall approach the true promise,\textsuperscript{222} and lol the eyes of the disbelieving shall be staring.\textsuperscript{223} Woe to us! surely we have been unheeding: aye! we have been the wrong-doers.\textsuperscript{224}

98. Verily you and whatever you worship besides Allah shall be firewood for Hell:\textsuperscript{225} you shall go down to it.

99. Had these been gods, they would not have gone down to it, and all of them,\textsuperscript{226} shall abide\textsuperscript{227} therein.

100. Theirs shall be roaring therein, and therein they shall hear not.\textsuperscript{228}

101. Verily those for whom good reward has preceded from Us,\textsuperscript{229} they shall be kept far away therefrom.\textsuperscript{230}

102. They shall not hear a whisper of it, and they shall abide\textsuperscript{231} in that felicity for which their souls long.

103. Them, the Great Terror\textsuperscript{233} shall not grieve, and angels shall meet them: this is your Day which you were ever promised—

104. the Day when\textsuperscript{234} We shall roll up the heavens like as the rolling up of a scroll for books. Even as We began the first creation,\textsuperscript{235} We shall restore it: a promise binding upon Us; verily We are the doers.

222. \textit{i. e.}, the promise of Resurrection and Judgment.
223. (with horror and bewilderment).
224. (ignoring and disregarding all warnings).
225. (O idolater !) See P. I. n. 103.
226. \textit{i. e.}, both you and they.
227. (for ever).
228. (aught, in the midst of their own groans and lamentations). For ۗ see P. XII. n. 309.

229. (and who have accordingly acquitted themselves so well in their lifetime).

230. i.e., from Hell.

231. (for ever).

232. i.e., the second sounding of the Trumpet at the time of Resurrection.

233. (with this greeting).

234. (at the first sounding of the Trumpet).

235. (out of nothing).

236. (at the Resurrection).
105. assuredly we have prescribed in the scripture after the admonition that the land! my righteous bondmen will inherit it.

106. verily in this is a preaching for a people who are true worshippers.

107. and we have not sent thee except as a mercy to the worlds.

108. say thou: this only has been revealed to me: your god is only one god; do you submit then?

109. then if they turn away, say thou: i have proclaimed to you all alike; and i do not know whether nigh or far is what you are promised.

110. he knows what is spoken aloud, and he knows that you hide.

111. do not know: haply it may be a trial for you, and an enjoyment for a season.

112. he says: lord! judge thou with truth. and our lord is the compassionate whose help is sought against what you utter.

237. for see p. vi. n. 66. the word is of general application, and means any heavenly book, not necessarily the psalms of david. may also mean the preserved tablet, the book of eternal divine decrees.

238. the 'land' may here mean the 'land of the heavens.' (ja; rz; th) it refers to the land of the heaven or the holy land of syria. (iq).

239. 'the righteous shall inherit the land and dwell therein for ever.' (ps. 37: 29) but the word also signifies 'suitable, fit or neat,' so the phrase may also be rendered: such of my bondmen shall inherit the land as are fit for it. there is yet a third interpretation, more acceptable to the orthodox view than the two preceding. it is this: and assuredly we have prescribed in the scriptures after (having ordained it in) the preserved tablet that my bondmen righteous shall inherit the land (of paradise).

240. i.e., in the qur'an.
241. i.e., those who would truly worship God.
242. (O Prophet!).
243. (and not to a particular country or age). The holy Prophet’s life serves as a universal guide in every little detail of life.
244. (in respect of Godhead).
245. This lā as distinguished from previous lā restricts ‘your God’ to unity.
246. (to Him as believers).
247. (still, from the confession of God’s unity).
248. (the true religion with all the energy and earnestness at my command).
249. That is for God alone to decree. A faithful delivery and exposition of God’s message has nothing to do with the announcement of the date and hour of the Divine Judgement.
250. ——a mere mortal that I am——
251. (for certain).
252. i.e., the respite granted to you.
253. i.e., a fleeting enjoyment of the worldly riches till the time of death.
254. i.e., the holy Prophet.
255. (when all the means of persuasion had failed).
256. (between me and the infidels).
257. (in the way of blasphemies and calumnies).
Sūrat-ul-Ḥajj

The Pilgrimage. XXII

(Madinian, Partly Makkah, 10 Sections and 78 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (بیحالاس... عظم) O mankind! fear your Lord, the quake of the Hour is to be a thing mighty.

2. (يوم... شديد) The Day when you behold it every suckling woman shall for sake what she suckles, and every pregnant woman shall lay down her burden; and thou shalt perceive mankind as drunk; whereas drunk they will be not, but the torment of Allah shall be terrible.

3. (وم... سديد) And of mankind is he who disputes respecting Allah without knowledge, and follows any devil froward.

4. (كب... السير) against whom it is prescribed: whosoever befriends him, him he shall lead astray and shall guide him on to the torment of Flame.

258. (and therefore come to believe in the true religion). Fear of God always implies hatred of evil and wrong, and makes for truth and righteousness. Cf. the OT:—‘Sanctify the Lord of hosts himself: and let him be your fear and let him be your dread’. (Is. 8:13) And the NT:—‘Fear him, which after he hath killed hath power to cast into hell; yea, I say unto you, Fear him.’ (Lk. 12:5).

259. (and it shall be only one of the many terrible events heralding the Day of Judgment).

260. So great will be the terror on that Dreadful Day!

261. (O reader!).

262. So inebriated and void of intellectual powers will they appear!

263. i. e., respecting His nature and attributes.

264. (in his extreme rebellion). The allusion, in particular, is to one Nudhar ibn-ul Ḥārith who denied the Resurrection and maintained that the angels were the daughters of God.

265. —— the embodiment of evil——
5. O mankind! if you be in doubt respecting the Resurrection, then know We have created you of the dust, then of a drop, then of a piece of flesh, fashioned and un fashioned that We might manifest to you Our power. And We settle into the wombs what We will for a term determined. Then We bring you forth as babies, then We let you reach your maturity. And of you is he who dies early and of you is he who is brought back to the most abject age, so that after knowing he knows not aught. And thou seest the earth withered up, and when We send down on it water, it stirs and swells, and it grows all manner of luxuriant growth.

6. That is so because Allah! He is the Truth and He quickens the dead, and verily He is Potent over everything.

266. (in some cases).
267. (in other cases).
268. i.e., until the natural time of delivery.
269. (it is We who cause all these steps and stages, and it is We who shall raise you).
270. (before reaching maturity).
271. i.e., to a state of decrepitude and dotage.
272. This refers to the failing memory of the extreme old age.
273. (O reader!).
274. (to life).
275. نور may well hint to the fact of all vegetable life being in pairs.
276. The argument in brief is: cannot the God Who created man and nature, out of nothing, as easily raise the dead?
277. i.e., the Ultimate Reality: Perfect in Himself.
278. ——Perfect in His action——
279. ——Perfect in His attributes——
7. and because the Hour is coming—there is no doubt about it—and because Allah will raise up those who are in the graves.

8. And of mankind is he who disputes respecting Allah without knowledge or guidance or an illuminating Book—

9. magnifying himself that he may lead others astray from the way of Allah; for him shall be humiliation in this world, and on the Day of Judgment We will make him taste the torment of Burning.

10. That is because of what thy hands have sent forth and verily Allah never wrongs His creatures.

SECTION 2

11. And of mankind is he who worships Allah upon the very edge; if there happens to him any good he is contented with it, but if there befalls him a trial, he turns round on his face. He loses both this world and the Hereafter, that indeed is a manifest loss.

12. He calls upon that, besides Allah, what can neither hurt nor profit him. That indeed is a straying far-off.

13. He calls upon him from whom harm is much nearer than benefit; surely ill the patron! ill the comrade!

280. The doctrine of Resurrection had come to be ignored, when not actually denied, by the Jews and the Christians of the Prophet’s time, and was of course openly ridiculed by the pagans. ‘The Resurrection of the body was denied by his fellow-citizens as an idle imagination;’ and the prophet was denounced ‘as a sorcerer or magician, who would pretend that a living body could be reproduced from dust and dead man’s bones.’ (Muir, op. cit., p. 78) Among the Jews, ‘the Sadducees denied the resurrection.’ (JE. X. p. 383).

281. i.e., respecting His nature and attributes. Here the allusion, in particular, is to Abū Jahl, the leader of the Makkān pagans.
282. i. e., Lit. bending his neck i. e. behaving proudly. (LL)
283. Abū Jahl was slain, and his army completely crushed, in the battle of Badr.
284. (of thy black deeds). This will be said to him.
285. (so there can be no question of His inflicting a punishment unless the culprit deserved it thoroughly).
286. i. e., very half-heartedly, as one standing on a verge. The allusion is to certain Arabs of the desert, who came to Madina, and professed to join Islam.
287. i. e., worldly loss.
288. i. e., some worldly gain.
288-A. i. e., extreme and irreparable.
289. i. e., this renegade, after he has relapsed into idolatry.
290. A contemptuous reference, of frequent recurrence, to idols in the Qur'ān.
291. (to the worshipper).
292. (to the worshipper). The meaning is: the harm of idol-worship is sure and patent, while any advantage accruing therefrom is only imaginary.
Verily Allah shall make those who believe and work righteous deeds enter Garden with running streams. Verily Allah performs whatsoever He intends.

Whosoever has been imagining that Allah will not make him triumphant in this world and the Hereafter, let him stretch a cord up to the heaven and let him cut it, and let him look if his guile can do away that at what he enranges.

And thus We have sent it down as evidence, and verily Allah guides whom He intends.

Verily those who believe and those who are Judaised and the Sabians and the Nazarenes and the Magians and those who associate—verily Allah will decide between them on the Day of Judgment; verily Allah is over everything a Witness.

(and He is not hampered by any limitations). God’s powers are absolutely unlimited, not restricted, like the power and authority of so many higher gods of polytheism.

i. e., the holy Prophet.

in this instance, is not ‘God aided him’, but ‘God made him to be victorious, to conquer, or to overcome.’ (LL)

(and ascend to the heaven thereby).

(when he has reached to the heaven). ‘It’ refers to Revelation or divine assistance. (Th) The meaning is: let him try his utmost, and see whether he can by any means cut off or intercept God’s help.

‘Allah will undoubtedly cause the Prophet to triumph in both worlds, and therefore his opponents have no strategy save that of despair.’ (Pickthall).

i. e., as a similar outcome of Our will.

304. See P. I. n. 275.

305. i.e., the followers of Zoroaster. In Islamic law they are classed with the 'people of the Book, and on payment of jizya can thoroughly enjoy security for their persons, possessions and religious practices.'

306. (in a practical, demonstrable way).

307. (so He will requite everyone according to his deeds).
18. Seest thou not that Allah! Him adore whosoever is in the heavens and on the earth, and the sun and the moon and the mountains and the trees and the beasts and many of mankind? And there are many of them on whom torment is justified. And whom Allah despises, none can honour And Allah does whatsoever He wills.

19. These two are opponents who contended respecting their Lord; then as for those who disbelieved, raiments of fire shall be cut out for them, and hot water shall be poured over their heads.

20. Melted thereby shall be what is in their bellies and also their skins.

21. And for them shall be maces of iron.

22. So oft as they, because of anguish, would seek to go forth, they shall be sent back to it: taste the torment of Burning.

SECTION 3

23. Verily Allah will make those who believe and work righteous deeds enter Gardens with running streams, where they will be bedecked with bracelets of gold, and with pearls, and their garment therein will be of silk.

308. (whether consciously or unconsciously). ‘The primary significance of the is to God, we understand, in the Kuran, as denoting obedience to that whereunto they are made subservient.’ (LL).

312. (in consequence of his deliberate disobedience).
313. (in consonance with His infinite Wisdom and universal Plan).
314. i.e., the true believers on the one hand, and the infidels comprising several varieties, on the other).
315. (in Hell). Cf. the NT:—‘So shall it be at the end of the world: the angels shall come forth and sever the wicked from among the just. And shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth,’ (Mt. 13:50) Also Mt. 25:41, Mk. 9:43, 46.
316. i.e., their bowels.
317. (for torment). مَكْسَمَاتْ means sticks by which animals are controlled.
318. The use of silk, forbidden on the earth to men, will be perfectly lawful in the heaven.
24. Guided they have been unto goodly speech and guided they have been to the path of the Praiseworthy.

25. Verily those who disbelieve and hinder others from the path of Allah and from the Sacred Mosque which We have made for mankind, equal in respect of which are the dweller therein and the stranger. Whosoever will seek profanity therein wrongfully, We shall make him taste of an afflictive torment.

SECTION 4

26. Recall when We settled for Ibrāhīm the place of the House, saying: associate not then with Me aught, and keep pure My House for those who circumambulate and those who stand up and those who bow and prostrate themselves.

27. And proclaim thou among mankind the pilgrimage; they shall come to thee on foot and on any lean mount coming from every deep defile——

28. that they may witness the benefits to them and may mention the name of Allah on the days known over the beast cattle with which He has provided them. So eat of it, and feed the hungry poor.

319. (while in the world, and it is this guidance which has entitled them to all these rewards).

320. i.e., the profession of God's unity.

321. (at Makka).

322. i.e., the Sacred Mosque is open to everyone for worship, and the Muslims have every right to visit it.

323. Note the universal character of the Central Mosque of Islam; its doors must remain open equally to all worshippers of the One, Universal God.

324. i.e., out of sheer impiety. Violation of the Sacred territory, abominable always, is doubly so when it is done purposely.
325. i.e., at the site of the House, the building itself being non-existent at the time.

326. The House is to be kept always perfectly clean both in a literal and a figurative sense—clear of all material and spiritual filth—for all true worshippers of the One Universal God, the House itself is not to be taken as an object of worship; it is simply a place of worshipping the One.

327. And it is to this proclamation made by Abraham thousands of years ago—before the era of the press, the post, the telegraph, the wireless, the radio and other such paraphernalia of modern publicity and propaganda—that the mankind has been responding during all these centuries, by performing the pilgrimage in their tens and hundreds of thousands every year!

328. (worn out and famished by a long journey). The phrase is expressive of fatiguing journey and great distance.

329. Of the vast throngs that gather together every year from the farflung lands of Islam speaks an English Muslim lady as an eye-witness:—Some had trudged the pilgrim road through the burning deserts of Africa, or come on foot and camel across the great steppes of Asia. Many arrived by sea from the lovely islands of Java and Sumatra, from India and from China; from east, from west the mighty hosts were gathered . . . . Some of the poorer pilgrims from far countries had been on the way and the tiny children carried on their backs or astride their shoulders were born during the long track.’ (Lady Cobbold, op. cit.)

‘A constant trek of pilgrims across Central Africa, from Senegal, Liberia, Nigeria, is ever on the move eastward and increasing in numbers as it goes along. Some are on foot, others on camelback. The majority are men, but a few are women and children. They trade, they beg, they work their way into the Highly Honoured Makkah (al-Mukarramah) and the Greatly Illuminated City (al-Madinah al-Munawwarah) . . . . The four major caravans are those from al-Yaman, al-Iraq, Syria and Egypt.’ (Hitti, op. cit., pp. 134-135).

330. (primarily spiritual and moral, and secondarily material). ‘To visit the birthplace of Islam, to tread the sacred ground hallowed by the memories of Muhammed’s long toil and sufferings in his struggle to call erring humanity back to God, is to re-live those glorious years of sacrifice and martyrdom, to have one’s soul kindled by that celestial fire which lighted up the whole earth. But this is not all . . . . If there is anything that unifies the scattered forces of Islam and imbues them with mutual sympathy it is the pilgrimage . . . . Distances are annihilated. Differences of sects are set aside. Divergences of race and colour cease to exist in this fraternity of faith that unites all Moslems in one great brotherhood and makes them conscious of the glorious heritage that is theirs. Then, when the religious duties are over, merchants from all lands discuss trade and commerce and transact business with each other, theologians and jurists discuss questions of religion and jurisprudence, scientists the latest advances in science, men of letters literature, financiers problems of finance, politicians and statesmen questions of national and international politics.' (Lady Cobbold, op. cit., Intro. pp. XVI-XVII).

331. ‘No fetch of religious genius could have conceived a better expedient for impressing on the minds of the faithful a sense of their common life and of their brotherhood in the bonds of faith. Here, in a supreme act of common worship, the Negro of the west coast of Africa meets the Chinaman from the distant east; the courtly and polished Ottoman recognizes his brother Muslim in the wild islander from the farthest end of the Malayan Sea.’ (Arnold, Preaching of Islam, p. 415-16)

‘In Mecca yearly two or three hundred thousand Moslems from all parts of the world come together to celebrate the hajj’; and ‘Chinese, Malays, Indians, Tatars, Turks, Egyptians, Berbers, and Negroes . . . . meet on this barren desert soil and carry home profound impressions of the international significance of Islam.’ (Hurgronje, Mohammadenism, op. cit., p. 160) ‘The institution of Hadj does not represent to the Moslems merely a sacred institution but also a League of Nations, an International Academy of Art and Science, and an International Chamber of Commerce all in one. Professor Snouk Hurgronje says: The ideal of a league of human races has indeed been approached by Islam more nearly than by any other; for the League of Nations founded on the basis of Muhammad’s religion takes the principle of the equality of all human races so seriously as to put other communities to shame.’ (Lady Cobbold, op. cit., Intro. pp. XVII-XVIII) ‘Of all world religions Islam seems to have attained the largest measure of success in demolishing the barriers of race, colour and nationality—at least within the confines of its own community. The line is drawn only between believers and the rest of mankind. These hajj gatherings have undoubtedly contributed their share towards the achievement of that result. They have further provided excellent opportunities for the propagation of sectarian ideas among peoples coming from lands not bound together by the modern means of communications and where the voice of the press is not yet a living voice. Such a movement as the Sanusi in northern Africa owes its inception and early propagation to the intercourse provided by the pilgrimage to Makkah.’ (Hitti, op. cit., p. 136)

332. (in gratitude).

333. i.e., the 10th, 11th, 12th of Zul-Hijja when the sacrifices are to be slain.

334. i.e., cows, camels, goats and sheep.
29. (ثم... المنافق) Thereafter let them\textsuperscript{355} cleanse their unkemptness\textsuperscript{338} and fulfil their vows\textsuperscript{337} and circumambulate the Ancient House\textsuperscript{338}.

30. (ذلك... قول الزود) Thus it is. And whosoever respects the ordinances of Allah\textsuperscript{339} it will be better for him with His Lord. And allowed to you are the cattle\textsuperscript{340} save what have been rehearsed unto you;\textsuperscript{341} so avoid the pollution of the idols\textsuperscript{342} and avoid the falsehood\textsuperscript{343}.

31. (ستنة... سجع) reclining unto Allah\textsuperscript{344} not associating aught with Him. And whosoever associates aught with Allah\textsuperscript{345} it is as though he had fallen from the sky\textsuperscript{346} and birds\textsuperscript{347} had snatched him away, or the wind had swept him to a remote place.\textsuperscript{348}

32. (ذلك... اللولب) Thus it is. And whosoever venerates the rites of Allah\textsuperscript{349} then it is from the piety of the hearts.\textsuperscript{351}

33. (لك... المنافق) In them\textsuperscript{352} there are benefits for you for an appointed term,\textsuperscript{353} and thereafter\textsuperscript{354} the destination is toward the Ancient House.\textsuperscript{355}

\textsuperscript{335} i.e., the pilgrims.

\textsuperscript{336} (by shaving, in the valley of Mina, their heads and cutting their beards and nails, which they were not allowed to do during the period of Ḥiḍām, and by resuming their ordinary dress).

\textsuperscript{337} (by performing the rest of the requisite rites and ceremonies).

342. i. e., of idolatrous practices.
343. i. e., the false doctrine of polytheism.
344. (and relinquishing all blasphemous doctrines). حَفِيف is one who devotes himself to religious exercises, or applies himself to devotion.
345. (directly or indirectly).
346. i. e., he sinks from the height of faith into the abyss of infidelity.
347. (of prey).
348. i. e., his thoughts are sure to be distracted with lusts.
349. i. e., he shall be hurried by the devil into the most absurd errors.
350. (by slaughtering valuable offering). شمار in the context means the animals destined to be sacrificed.

352. i. e., in the cattle; in their flesh, milk, hair, skin, etc.
353. i. e., before the time determined for slaying them for the sacrifice.

355. ‘Toward the Ancient House’ signifies the precincts of the Sacred Territory. For البيت المحتقان see n. 338 above.
SECTION 5

34. (وكل...) And in every community We have appointed a ritual,\(^{356}\) so that they may mention the name of Allah over the beast cattle with which He has provided them,\(^{357}\) and your god is One God, so unto Him submit.\(^{358}\) And bear thou\(^{359}\) glad tidings to the humble—

35. (الذين...) those—whose hearts, when Allah is mentioned, are filled with awe, and who patiently endure what befalls them, and those who establish the prayer, and spend of what We have provided them.\(^{360}\)

36. (والبنين...) And camels!\(^{361}\) We have appointed them for you among the land-marks of Allah;\(^{362}\) for you is good in them. So mention over them the name of Allah, standing in rows.\(^{363}\) Then when they fall down on their sides,\(^{364}\) eat of them, and feed the contented\(^{365}\) and the suppliant.\(^{366}\) Thus We have subjected them\(^{367}\) to you that haply you may return thanks.\(^{368}\)

37. (إن...) It is neither their flash nor their blood\(^{369}\) that reaches Allah, but it is piety from you that reaches Him.\(^{370}\) He has subjected them to you that you may magnify Allah for He has guided you,\(^{371}\) and bear thou glad tidings to the well-doers.\(^{372}\)

356. i. e., a rite of sacrifice. However mistaken may be the end of sacrifice with various nations, the rite itself is almost universal. The idea of sacrifice has been ‘a fundamental element of both Jewish and Gentile religions, and Christianity tended rather to absorb and modify such elements than to abolish them.’ (EBR. XIX. p. 802)

357. Places and ceremonies for the offering of sacrifice have varied from time to time, and from nation to nation, but the true end, in God’s dispensation, has always been to exalt His name, and not to deify any particular place or object.

358. (wholly and solely, rejecting outright all absurd notions of ‘atonement’ and ‘propitiatiion.’)

359. (O Prophet!).
360. (in charity). All these virtues accrue from firm faith in monotheism.

361. (to be slain for sacrifice). ٍ ٍِّ ٍٍٍٍ ٍٍ ٍِّ is a she-camel, and a male camel, and a cow, and a bull: or preferably the first of these, and the second, but made by the Sunnah to apply to cow also, that is slaughtered at Makkah. (LL)

362. i. e., as symbols and tokens of His religion.

363. (for sacrifice). ٍٍٍٍٍٍٍ ٍٍٍ and its plural ٍٍٍٍ ٍٍٍٍٍ ٍٍ ٍٍ its meaning, setting their legs in an even row.' (LL).

364. (slaughtered and life has become extinct).

365. i. e., those who are deserving of charity, but do not beg.

366. i. e., those who beg with due humility and modesty.

367. i. e., the animals.

368. (to Him, by sacrificing them to God in the proper, prescribed way). Sacrifice in Islam is nothing more, nothing less, and nothing else than a natural, visible, expression of homage and gratitude to the Creator.

369. (and sacrifice is not a sort of meal served before God). Such truths, looking self-evident to the Muslim reader, needed a clear and emphatic enunciation in view of the horrible misconceptions and superstitions prevalent among many nations, not excluding the Jews and Christians. For we read in the OT:—'It is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul.' (Le. 17: 11) And in the NT:—'Without shedding of blood is no remission; (He. 9: 22) Among the Babylonians, 'the gods feast in heaven; . . . they eat the offering; . . . the gods scent the savour, the gods scent the sweet savour; like flies do they gather themselves together about the offerer.' (EBi. c. 4119) 'Throughout the Semitic field the fundamental idea of sacrifice' was that 'of communion between the god and his worshippers by joint participation in the living flesh and blood of a sacred victim.' (Robertson Smith, Religion of the Semites, p. 345).

370. It is the spirit of willing devotion and ready obedience underlying sacrifices and offerings that is accepted by God who is the God of righteousness, the very acme of morality. It is only piety of heart or righteousness of conduct, and not anything in lieu of it, that is acceptable to Him. Sacrifice, in Islam, is neither honorific nor oracular, much less a magical sacrament. It is essentially symbolic—an external symbol of an internal dedication and voluntary submission to the will of the Almighty. The Divine itself is absolutely without needs, and all acts of sacrifice and worship are for our own benefit. The grace of God reaches everyone and everywhere and needs only some piety for its reception.

371. (and has kept you to the true doctrine, and not let you go astray like the Christians with their doctrine of vicarious atonement).

372. (O Prophet! ٍٍٍ اٍ اٍٍٍ) is here synonymous with ٍٍٍٍ (Th).
Verily Allah will repel infidels\(^{373}\) from those who believe,\(^{374}\) verily Allah loves not any treacherous, ingrate.\(^{375}\)

SECTION 6

Permission to fight is given to those who are fought against,\(^{376}\) because they have been oppressed,\(^{377}\) and verily Allah is Potent over their succour.\(^{378}\)

those who have been banished from their abodes without justice except because they say: our Lord is Allah.\(^{379}\) And were it not for Allah's repelling\(^{380}\) of some by means of others,\(^{382}\) cloisters and churches, synagogues\(^{383}\) and mosques wherein the name of Allah is mentioned much, would have been pulled down.\(^{384}\) Surely Allah shall succour him who succours Him;\(^{586}\) Surely Allah is Strong,\(^{586}\) Mighty.\(^{587}\)

Those who, if We establish them in the land, will establish the prayer and pay the poor-rate and command what is reputable and restrain what is disreputable;\(^{588}\) and unto Allah is the end of all affairs.\(^{589}\)

373. (in the near future the aggressive designs of the infidels).
374. (so that the infidels will no more be able to prevent the Muslims from performing the pilgrimage).
375. (so He will not allow these ungrateful beings to overcome in the long run).
376. (and against whom a relentless crusade of oppression and persecution has long been carried on, to retaliate and to fight).
377. (for so long by the infidels, and they have borne all those injuries with patience). This is chronologically the first passage in the Holy Qur’ān allowing the Muslims to take up arms in self-defence, revealed only a little before the holy Prophet’s migration to Madina. To this duty of Jihad or holy war, Islam owes its unparalleled expansion as a world power. It is one of the principal duties of the caliph to keep pushing back the geographical wall separating the dar-al-Islam (the land of Islam) from the dar-ul-Harab (the war territory). This bipartite division of the world into an abode of peace and an abode of war finds parallel in the communist theory of Soviet Russia.' (Hitti, op. cit., p. 138).

378. (notwithstanding the apparent hopelessness of the Muslim position).
379. i.e., their monotheism, their faith in the One True God, has been their sole crime, their only offence.
380. (every now and then).
381. i.e., of the ungodly ones.
382. i.e., by men of faith.
383. —all places of worship where God alone used to be worshipped in the remote past—
384. (by the ungodly oppressors). 'Is not this as tolerant a position,' asks a learned Christian, Dr. G. W. Leitner, writing in the eighties of the last century,
'as we only reached after centuries—if, indeed, judging from the present foolish crusade against Muhammadanism, which we are confounding with slavery, we have reached such a position?
385. (by succouring His religion).
386. (and Able to infuse strength in whomsoever He will).
387. (and Able to infuse might in whomsoever He will).
388. Such is the true and ideal character of the Muslim rulers. Instead of oppressing and exploiting their subjects or pondering to their lower impulses and baser self they are to be the very embodiment of virtue and godliness.
389. (so none need be perturbed if at some time or other the infidels get the upper hand; the ultimate end is the main thing).
42. (وَانَّ نُوحًا) And if they belie thee, surely there have believed before them the people of Nūḥ and the 'Aād and the Thamūd.

43. (وَفَورُوْمًا) and the people of Ibrāhīm and the people of Lūṭ.

44. (وَوَاصِفًا) and the inhabitants of Madyan; and belied was Mūsā. I gave rein to the infidels, then I seized them, so how has been My wrath.

45. (مَعَدِينَ) How many a town have We destroyed, while it was a wrong-doer—and it lies outward on its roofs, and how many a well abandoned and how many a castle fortified!

46. (وَاهْلَ الصُّدُورِ) Have they not journeyed in the earth, so that there might become unto them hearts to understand with, or ears to hear with? Surely it is not the sights that are blinded, but blinded are the hearts that are in the breasts.

47. (وَمِنْ يَلْدِعُونَ) And they ask thee to hasten on the chastisement whereas Allah shall not fail His promise. And a Day with the Lord is a thousand years of what you compute.

390. (O Prophet!).

391. (their prophets).

392. i.e., the people of Shu’aib, ‘Ptolemy mentions a place . . . . which the Arabic geographers call Madyan, in the neighbourhood of Una (‘Ain Una, now pronounced ‘Ainuna). Madyan is the first halting place to the south of Hukl, the second to the south of Aila (‘Akaba) on the pilgrim route to Mecca.’ (EB, c. 3081) See also P. VIII. n. 575; P. XX, nn. 161, 162.

393. (in each instance).

394. (upon their conduct). َكَيْرَ ْكُلُّ ْعَلَمِ is equivalent with َكُلُّ ْعَلَمِ ِقَّارِئَ ْعَلَمِ in the sense of disapproval or the like, and manifestation thereof. So the phrase has been explained as signifying. ‘And how my manifestation of disapproval of their conduct (ُعَلَمِ ِقَّارِئَ ْعَلَمِ) by changing favours into trial, and life into destruction, and a flourishing condition into a rate of ruin.’ (LL).
395. (because of the death and destruction of the neighbouring population). In a desert country and dry land, a well signifies human population nearby, and a neglected well is a sure sign of a deserted habitation. 'It was one of the special privileges accorded to the Israelites that they should come into possession of wells which they themselves had not digged, and they sometimes became objects of strife.' (DB. IV. p. 914).

396. i.e., do they not learn wisdom, and are they not admonished, by observing the ruins of the ancient rebellious peoples?

397. (O Prophet! in the fullness of their unbelief). Or 'they incite thee to haste with the punishment.' (Th) اسلم literally is, 'the incited, excited, urged, instigated, induced or made him to haste, hasten, make haste, speed, or be quick. And — And they incite thee to haste with the punishment. (LL).

398. (at its proper and appointed time; so their incitement is absolutely futile; the punishment will come neither sooner nor later).

399. i.e., the Day of Judgment with all its attendant terrors. (Th)

400. i.e., is equivalent with a thousand years according to your reckoning. Cf. the OT:—'A thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.' (Ps. 90: 4) And the NT:—'One day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.' (2 Pe. 3: 8).
48. And how many a town did I give reins to, while it wronged itself? then I seized it. And unto Me is the return.

SECTION 7

49. Say thou: O mankind! I am to you only a manifest warner.

50. Then those who believe and work righteous deeds — for them is forgiveness and an honourable provision.

51. And those who endeavour in respect of Our signs to frustrate them — those shall be the inmates of the Flaming Fire.

52. And We have sent before thee no messenger or prophet but as he recited. Satan cast forth suggestions in respect of the recital. Then Allah abolishes what Satan casts forth, and Allah continues His revelations; and Allah is Knowing, Wise—

53. That He may make what Satan casts forth a temptation for those in whose hearts is a disease and whose hearts are hardened— and the ungodly are in divergence far-off.

401. (that the inhabitants thereof may yet repent and reform themselves). Cf. the NT:—‘The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance.’ (2 Pe. 3:9).

402. (of one and all for final judgment).

403. (O Prophet!).

404. i. e., my duty ends with conveying to you, plainly and faithfully, the Message of God, and warning you of the ill consequences of rejection; it is no part of my duty to bring on the punishment for you.

405. (in Paradise). رزق is 'a thing whereby one profits or one from which one derives advantage'.

406. (a portion of God's message) انا علی is equivalent with انا لله القرآن (IQ).
407. (in the minds of his unbelieving hearers).
408. The devil always suggests doubt and denial to the unbelieving audience of the prophets, and it is at his instigation that they start their persecution is equivalent with قِـۡلَوْنَهُ (IQ).
409. (and makes void, by His powerful signs and arguments).
410. So God always ultimately defeats designs and frustrates the purposes of the Devil. Compare a wise observation by the psychologist-philosopher William James:—‘Among the visions and messages some have always been too patently silly, among the trances and convulsive seizures some have been too fruitless for conduct and character to pass themselves off as significant, still less as Divine. In the history of Christian mysticism the problem has been to discriminate between such messages and experiences as were really Divine miracles, and such others as the demon in his malice was able to counterfeit, thus making the religious person twofold more the child of lull he was before, he always finds a difficult one to solve, needing all the sagacity and experience of the directness of conscience.’
411. i. e., knowing well all the designs of the Devil.
412. i. e., well able to checkmate all the designs of the Devil.
413. i. e., He permits all this in His universal Plan in order that—
414. (of evil suggestions in the minds of the hearers).
415. i, e., a means of testing.
416. (from the truth).
54. And that those who have been given knowledge may know that it is the truth from thy Lord and may believe therein, and so their hearts may submit to it. And verily Allah is the Guide of those who believe in a straight path.

55. And those who disbelieve will not cease to be in doubt concerning it until the Hour comes upon them on a sudden, or there comes upon them the torment of the Barren Day.

56. The dominion on that Day will be Allah's; He shall decide between them. Then those who believed and worked righteous deeds shall be in the Gardens of Delight.

57. And those who disbelieved and belied Our signs—then these! for them shall be an ignominious torment.

SECTION 8

58. And those who emigrated in the way of Allah, or they were slain or they died—surely Allah will provide them with a goodly provision and surely Allah! He is the Best Provider.

417. (the more firmly).
418. i.e., what the prophet has.
419. (the more soundly).
420. (the more devotedly).
421. i.e., respecting what the prophet has read.
422. (which in itself, as distinct from the attendant horrors, is the most terrifying event).
423. Cf. the NT: — 'The day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night.' (2 Pe. 3: 10).
424. i.e., all the horrors of the Judgment Day; 'barren' because devoid of all grace and blessings for the rebels. (Th), or, 'because it is a day having no day after it.' (LL).
425. (apparent even to the worst scoffers).
426. See verse 40 above.
427. (by the infidels).
428. (by natural death).
429. (in Paradise; so they are not to be losers in either case).
59. Of a surety He will make them enter an entrance with which they will be well-pleased, and Allah is Knowing, Forbearing.

60. That is so. And whoever chastises the like of what he was injured and then he has again been oppressed, surely Allah will succour him: verily Allah is Pardoning, Forgiving.

61. That is to be because Allah plunges night into day and plunges day into night, and because He is Hearing, Beholding.

62. That is because Allah! He is the Truth, and what they call upon besides Him—it is the false. Verily Allah! He is the High, the Great.

63. Dost thou not see that Allah sends down water from the sky, and the earth becomes green. Verily Allah is Subtle, Aware.

64. His is whatever is in the heavens and on the earth; and verily Allah! He is the Self-sufficient, the Praiseworthy.

430. (and therefore in His universal Plan sometimes allows the believers to be defeated and slain).
431. (and so He does not always inflict immediate punishment on the rebels).
432. (of the oppressed, persecuted Muslims).
433. (an infidels).
434. (in the first instance, and thus retaliates in an equitable way). as denoting consequence and retaliation or retribution, signifies 'he punished him'; and the phrase means, 'whoso punisheth with the like of that which he hath been afflicted.' (LL)
435. (morally and spiritually in this world, and in a tangible, material way in the Next).
436. (so He shall pardon and forgive even when a Muslim happens sometimes to be a little over-exacting in retaliation).
437. i.e., this vanquishment of the pagans at the hands of the believers.
438. (and One so powerful and mighty is well Able to make righteousness triumph despite all appearances to the contrary).
439. (so He is well Aware of the deeds of aggression on the part of the pagans).
440. (in whose way none can stand).
441. i.e., the unreal; having no substance.
442. (so He alone is to be looked up to, and not the imaginary deified).
443. (O reader!).
444. (and there is no other Cloud-compeller, no Rain-god, and no Zeus who rains, thunders and holds the rainbow).
445. لطف is both 'gentle and benignant' and knower of subtleties and niceties', and is used here in both these senses.
446. (needing no help or support from any quarter).
447. (combining in Himself all perfections).
SECTION 9

65. Dost thou not see that Allah has subjected to you\(^448\) whatsoever is on the earth\(^449\) and the ships running in the sea by His command?\(^450\) And He withholds the heaven that it fall not on the earth\(^451\) save by His leave. Verily Allah is unto mankind, Clement,\(^452\) Merciful.

66. (O mankind!) He it is who gave you life\(^453\) and will thereafter cause you to die,\(^454\) and will thereafter give you life\(^455\) again, verily man is ingrati.\(^456\)

67. (And) for every community We have ordained a ritual\(^457\) which they observe. Let them\(^458\) not therefore contend with thee in the affair; and call them thou to thy Lord;\(^459\) verily thou art on true guidance.

68. And if they dispute with thee, say thou:\(^460\) Allah knows best what you do.\(^462\)

69. (And) Allah will judge between you\(^463\) on the Day of Judgment concerning that wherein you have been differing.\(^464\)

70. Dost thou not know\(^465\) that Allah knows whatsoever is in the heaven and the earth?\(^466\) Verily that\(^467\) is in the Book,\(^468\) and verily that\(^469\) is for Allah easy.

\(^448\) \(i. e.,\) for your service.

\(^449\) \(O\) mankind! So that man, as the vicegerent of God is the master of all creation, and it is extremely undignified of him that he should bow to any other creature.

\(^450\) (and there is no such thing as a Water-god or a Sea-god). For the notions of water-deities and sea-gods among islanders and coast-dwellers see PC. II. p. 275.

\(^451\) (and there is no special heaven-god functioning as the "sky-holder" as imagined by several polytheistic peoples) ـَـَـْـْـ May also mean "clouds" or "rain". (LL)

\(^452\) \(i. e.,\) boundless in His loving kindness to man. رَحَـمة according to one opinion, denotes a more special and more tender affection than رَحَـمة. (LL)
453. —He, the Creator.
454. ——He, the Annihilator. 2
455. ——He, the Restorer.
456. (so that instead of keeping to the doctrine of Unity, he so often relapses into the dogmas of trinity, duality and plurality).
457. i. e., a certain way of sacrificing and slaughtering animals.
458. i. e., the pagan wranglers.
459. (of sacrifices, O Prophet!)
460. i. e., continue preaching them the true religion.
461. (O Prophet! as the final answer).
462. (and He is sufficient to deal with you).
463. (in a practical, demonstrable way).
464. (with the Prophet, and amongst yourselves).
465. (O reader!).
466. (and His knowledge is perfect, profound and all-pervading).
467. i. e., whatever the infidels say or do.
468. i. e., recorded and preserved in the Book of records.
469. i. e., the judgment referred to in verse 69.
Allah chooses messengers from the angels and the mankind; Verily Allah is Hearing, Beholding.

He knows what is before them and what is behind them, and to Allah are returned all affairs.

O you who believe! bow down and prostrate yourselves and worship your Lord, and do good; haply you may thrive.

And strive hard for Allah as is due unto Him hard striving. He has distinguished you, and has not laid upon you any narrowness in religion; the faith of your father Ibrāhīm. He has named you Muslim before, and in this, that the messenger may be witness against you and that you may be witnesses against mankind. So establish the prayer and pay the poor-rate, and hold fast by prayer to Allah. He is your Patron—an Excellent Patron and an Excellent Helper!

(as His chosen apostles).

(i.e., prophets, as intermediaries between Him and the mankind).

(i.e., for His cause).

(i.e., from all other communities, O Muslims!).

(i.e., the future and the past of all mankind. (both in this world and the Next).

(so that your religion is eternal and universal, and not circumscribed like other religions by racial or geographical limitations). 'Whereas all other religions failed in becoming cultures and became cults instead, Islam succeeded, because it did not content itself with defining the relations between man and the unseen but boldly stepped into the sphere of practical life and its everyday problems,—of bread and sexual relations, of politics and trade and finance—and thus removed the barriers between Cæsar’s and God’s domains.’ (Mohammed Asad, op. cit.) See also P. 11. n. 362:

490. See P. I. n. 559.

491. The pronoun preferably refers to God, not to Abraham.

492. (Book also).

493. (on the Day of Judgment). The absolutely pure and perfect life of the holy Prophet will serve as the norm, the standard, by which the Muslims shall be judged.

494. (as the testifiers, pronulgators and standard-bearers of the Divine message).

495. The Muslims are the norm, the standard by which the rest of mankind will be judged on the Day of Judgment.

496. (without any swerving or turning back).
PART XVIII

Sūrat-ul-Mominūn

The Believers. XXIII

(Makkan, 6 Sections and 118 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1.

1. Blissful are the believers—
2. those who in their prayers are lowly;
3. and those who turn away from everything vain;
4. and those who are doers for the sake of purification;
5. and those who are guards of their private parts;
6. save in regard to their wives and those whom their right hands own—so they are not blameworthy—
7. and those who seek beyond that, then it is they who are the transgressors;
8. and those who are keepers of their trusts and covenant;
9. and those who are observant of their prayers:

1. This emphasizes the importance of right belief which alone is the spring of right conduct. For فَحْلُ نَفْحٍ see P. I. n. 43.
2. (and meek) i.e., they pray with fervour and with a contrite heart. Says an English observer:—"There is plenty of real fervour in the prayers of the Mosque, and they are joined in by the worshippers with an earnest attention which shames the listless sleepy bearing of most congregations in England.' (LSK: Intro. pp. LXXXIII-LXXXIV).

3. (in word and in deed). ـل is something which is unprofitable in this world and the Next, and is therefore unworthy of a Muslim.

4. Or ‘with a view to’. ـل is here indicative of aim and cause.

5. (of good works; of religious service). ـفـي is here to be taken in its primary sense of purification, and means ‘purification of their souls’.

6. ـعـلـل، who keep themselves away from every kind of sex abuse.

7. ـلـل، free women joined to them by regular marriage bond.

8. (as slave-girls) ـلـل، women taken as captives in war and raised to the status of wives. In the Bible, slavery as an institution is not only recognised but definite laws and ordinances are provided for the purchase, sale and transfer of slaves both male and female. ‘Wherever possible,’ remarks an English sociologist, ‘the man should, of course, have a concubine of some sort.’ (Ludovici, Woman, p. 172).

9. Regular exercise of sexual functions on the part of men, like all other natural functions, within lawful bounds and in relation to women whose rights and dues they duly observe, is in Islam absolutely above reproach; and wanton abstinence is viewed not as a sign of spirituality but as an aberration. In fact it is the primary purpose of marriage, biologically viewed. Compare and contrast with this the attitude of Christianity which holds that sexual intercourse, even in wedlock, is something of a handicap in the scheme of salvation, and implies that even the permitted sex behaviour is not altogether approved. See Mt. 22: 30, 1 Co. 7: 32-34. ‘Christianity,’ writes an English student of sociology, ‘being an advocate of eternal life, very logically preaches that sex is to be deplored, to be avoided, and, if possible, negatived. And the Puritan, who may be regarded as the extreme Christian, is notorious for his implacable loathing of sex.’ (Ludovici, op. cit., p. 5).

10. Thus every other form of gratifying sexual passions is criminal, and the law of Islam categorically interdicts all forms of extramarital sexual relations, whether of normal or abnormal variety, that have been so rampant both in ancient and modern nations, often even under the cloak of respectability and approval. Cf. Paul who hints at both male and female excesses:—‘Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness, through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonour their own bodies between themselves. . . . For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature. And likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust toward another; . . . ’ (Ro. 1: 24-27) ‘In ancient Rome and Greece homosexualism was rampant . . . . Sodomy, pederasty, and tribadism were all practised extensively and openly. Similarly in ancient Egypt, Persia, India and China . . . . The rise of civilisation saw a great extension in the practice and development of sexual vice; and likewise the appearance of new forms . . . and old vices elaborated and given new names. . . . These abnormalities have been restricted to no one country and class,' (Forbate, Love, Marriage, Jealousy, p. 110).

Note the effect of this teaching on the general conduct of the Muslim society as observed by a much-travelled learned Christian in the eighties of the nineteenth century:—"The Muhammadans have no towers, gaming-houses, or brothels, nor have they any idea of legalising prostitution; and as regards their general conversation it is infinitely more decent, as a rule, than that of most Europeans. I have seen young Muhammadan fellows at school and college, and their conduct and talk are far better than is the case among English young men; indeed the talk of the latter is often such as would incur punishment in a Muhammadan land.' (Dr. G. W.
Leitner, Ex-Director of Public Instruction, Punjab).

11. i.e., those who fulfil all their obligations, whether financial or otherwise.

12. (at their appointed hours). 'The religion of the Muslim is continually present with him and in the daily prayer manifests itself in a solemn and impressive ritual which cannot leave either the worshipper or the spectator unaffected.'
10. (وَلَوْلَاكَ) .. (الوَلَّوْنَ) these! they are indeed the inheritors;
11. (الذِّنَّ) .. (هُوَالْخَلَقُ) who shall inherit Paradise; therein they shall abide.
12. (وَلَمْ نَبْنِىَ) .. (طَينَ) Assuredly We created man out of an extract of clay.
13. (فَمَثَّلَهَا) .. (مُّكَيْنَانِ) Thereafter We made him a sperm in a safe receptacle.
14. (فَمَثَّلَهَا) .. (مُّكَيْنَانِ) Thereafter We made the sperm a clot; then We made the clot a lump of flesh; then We made the lump of flesh bones; then We clothed the bones with flesh; thereafter We brought him forth as another creature.
15. (فَمَثَّلَهَا) .. (لمَّا) Then thereafter you are sure to die.
16. (فَمَثَّلَهَا) .. (بَعْضُهَا) Then verily on the Day of Judgment you shall be raised up.
17. (وَلَمْ نَبْنِىَ) .. (فَاذَّنَانِ) And assuredly We created above you seven paths; and of the creation We have not been neglectful.
18. (وَلَمْ نَبْنِىَ) .. (لَدَّرَانِ) And We sent down from the heaven water in measure, and We command it to settle in the earth; and verily We are Able to take it away.
19. (فَاذَّنَانِ) .. (لَكُلْنَ) Then for you We brought forth with it the gardens of palm and vines; for you therein are many fruits, and thereof you eat.

13. i.e., sperm which rests for a time in security in the mother’s womb.
14. (by breathing into him a human soul and thereby making him a being superior to all other animals). This marks the turning-point in human evolution transforming the animal creatures into a human infant. ‘Man, although resembling the chimpanzee or gorilla, is nevertheless distinguished from the manlike ape and other animals by something which is “purely human.” Man is a totally unique animal.’ (Nemelov, op. cit., pp. 24-25). See also the works of the biologists like Alfred Wallace and of the physicists like Oliver Lodge. This evolutionary creation of man speaks volumes of the marvellous workmanship of God. In the words of an English writer, ‘doubtless, he could instantaneously make a mighty oak; but it is no less wonderful that He should make it gradually, causing it to grow out of the little acorn, of which one can carry a dozen in the hand, yet every one of which contains within it a germ endowed with power to carry on a succession of mighty oaks through ages to come!

15. God's absolute wisdom is visible in His gradual, well-graded and progressive creation of man, culminating in his perfect humanity, the goal and the crown of all creation. Cf. Shakespeare:—'What a piece of work is a man! How noble in reason! how infinite in faculties! in form and moving how express and admirable! in action how like an angel! in apprehension how like a god! the beauty of the world! the paragon of animals!' ('Hamlet', Act II. Sc. II).

16. (O mankind!).

17. (and restored to life for final Judgment).

18. (for the angels and the celestial bodies). Or 'stages.' The reference in any case is to the seven heavens.

19. (but have provided the needs and requirements of Our creatures in an excellent manner).

20. ——not any 'rain-god'——

21. (a portion of it being soaked in the soil and some of it remaining on the surface).

22. (and thus depriving you of its benefits).

23. ——not any 'corn-god'——

24. The reference is both to the fresh and dried forms of fruit. For date-palm and grape-vines. See P. III, nn. 105-A, 105-B. and also a tree that springs forth from the mount of Sinai, that grows oil and is a sauce for the eaters.

And verily in the cattle there is a lesson for you. We give you to drink of what is in their bellies, and for you in them are many advantages, and of them you eat.

And you are borne on them and on the ship.

Assuredly We sent Nūḥ to his people, and he said: O my people! worship Allah: for you there is no God but He; will you then not be God-fearing?

Then the chiefs of them who disbelieved among his people said: this is no other than a human being like you; he seeks to make himself superior to you, and if God had willed He would have sent down angels; we have not heard of this among our ancient fathers.

He is only a man in whom is madness, so wait for him a season.

Nūḥ said: Lord! vindicate me for they are denying me.

i.e., the olive tree, which is a native of Palestine. ‘It is as characteristic of Palestine as the date-palm is of Egypt.’ (EBi. c. 3495).

‘The uses of its oil, for lighting, as an ingredient in food, and as a salve or ointment, are too familiar to need illustration.’ (EBi. c. 3495) ‘The oil of the olive was one of the most important products of the Holy Land; the oil is used in cookery, and is spread on bread, or burnt in lamps for lighting, or used externally for anointing.’ (DB, II. p. 31)

Olive berries are used for food in two stages:
(1) When green they are pickled in brine. They are eaten with bread, and especially during the fasts, constitute a notable portion of the diet of the people.
(2) When quite ripe they are sometimes packed down in salt, or immersed in brine, and at other times prepared in their own oil. . . . The oil is used extensively as food, and large quantities of soap of most excellent quality are made by boiling it with crude soda . . . 'It is the first tree, of those now known, mentioned in the Bible.
Its wealth of nourishment made it a natural candidate for the position of King of trees.' (D. B. III. p. 616) 'The unripe fruit of the olive is largely used in modern as in ancient times as dessert, to enhance the flavour of wine, and to renew the sensitivness of the palate for other viands.' (EBr. XVI, p. 774) The olive is little known in this country, for our climate does not suit it. Its native lands are Syria and Palestine, where it has made beautiful contribution towards the needs of humanity.
. . . In Old Testament times olive oil served a great number of purposes. It was used in place of butter for cooking; it was used in lamps for lighting and heating; it was used for rubbing over the body; it was used in the Temple Ritual for anointing and other purposes; indeed it was even poured on the carcasses of the beasts and animals sacrificed for burnt offerings. . . . Olive wood has a beautiful grain and takes a fine polish; when burned it gives out a great heat.' (Marston, The Bible Comes Alive, pp. 141, 142) For Biblical references see Dt. 8: 8, Judg. 9: 8.
27. See P. XIV. n. 125 ff.
28. (other, from their skin, hair, horns etc.).
29. (and carried away from place to place).
30. (and face the consequences of your infidelity). For Noah see P. VIII.
n. 509.
31. (to the common folk).
32. (and neither a 'hero' nor an angel, nor a godling).
33. (in rank and station, by asserting himself to be God's mouthpiece).
34. (really someone to guide and instruct us).
35. The pagan's contention is: this man Noah is not only actuated by the motives of personal aggrandisement but the very doctrines he inculcates—those of the denial of associate-gods and of Divine messengership by human being—are in themselves incredible and unheard of.
36. (caused by demoniacal possession).
37. (till he recovers his reason or dies).
38. (by Thy judgment).
39. (and I am now weary of my futile preaching to them).
27. Then We revealed unto him saying:

\[\text{فيها من كل رجُوبين شتاتين.} \]

Then We revealed unto him saying: 40 build an ark under Our eyes and under Our Revelation; 41 then when Our command comes and oven boils over, 42 make way therein of every pair 43 two 44 and thy household save him thereof against whom the word 46 has already gone forth, and do not petition Me regarding those who have done wrong; 47 they are certain to be drowned.

28. And when thou art settled in the ark, thou and those with thee, say thou: praise to Allah who has delivered us from the wrongdoing people.

29. And say thou: 48 Lord! cause me to land at a landing blest; and Thou art the Best of those who bring to land.

30. Verily in that 49 signs; verily We have ever been testing. 51

31. Then after them We produced another generation. 51

32. Then We sent among them a messenger from among themselves, saying! worship Allah; for you there is no god but He; will you not fear Him?

SECTION 3

33. The chiefs of them who disbelieved among the people 62 and denied the meeting of the Hereafter and whom We had luxuriated in the life of the world, 63 said: this is no other than a human being like you, he eats of what you eat and he drinks of what you drink. 64

---

40. is sometimes, as here, explicative, synonymous with 'saying.'
41. i.e., under Our direct supervision and protection.
42. (consequent on the bursting of subterranean waters). See P. XII. n. 115.
43. i.e., in the ark.
44 (of animals serviceable to them).
45. i.e., one male and one female. See P. XII. n. 118.
46. (of destruction, in consequence of his rebellious stiffneckedness).
47. i.e., do not plead with me that the ungodly may yet be saved.
48. (when at the subsidence of the flood thou art about to disembark).
49. i.e., in the whole of this great historical event.
50. (of Our vindication of truth and justice).
51. (mankind by such means). On ‘affliction.’
51-A. The allusion may well be to the peoples of ‘Aād and Thamūd.
‘After them’ means after the people of Nūh.
52. (i.e., the common folk).
53. This implies that affluence in this world can, and does, keep company with impiety and infidelity.
54. (and not as a super-physical being above human wants). The words embody the common besetting sin of the polytheistic humanity. How can a mere man, such people have invariably argued, assume the role of a Divine teacher?
34. And were you to obey a human being like you, you are forthwith to be losers.

35. Does he make promise to you that when you have died and have become dust and bones, you are to be brought forth?

36. Away! away with what you are promised:

37. Nought there is but our life of the world; we die and we live, and we are not going to be raised up.

38. He is but a man who has forged a lie against God, and in him we are not going to believe.

39. The messenger said: Lord! vindicate me, for they are denying me.

40. Allah said: after a while they will be remorseful.

41. Then, a shout laid hold of them in truth, and We made them a refuse; so away with the ungodly people!

42. Then after them, We brought forth another generation.

43. No community can anticipate their term, nor can they lay behind.

44. Then after them We sent Our messengers successively. But no sooner did there come to a community their messenger than they belied him. So We made them follow one another, and We made them by-words. So away with a people who do not believe.

55. i.e., you will be following a very foolish course indeed if you were to obey a mere mortal.

56. ——a doctrine so strange——

57. Epicureans of their day, as they were, they denied life after death, and revelled in the cry: 'let us eat and drink and merry, for to-morrow we die.'
58. i.e., the apostle referred to in verse 32.

59. (by Thy judgment).

60. (when they are visited by the chastisement).

61. (for their obstinacy).

62. i.e., as promised.

63. (after their destruction).

64. (which is fixed and determined in the knowledge of God).

65. (to different peoples, at intervals).

66. (to perdition).

67. ——mighty and powerful as they were——

68. i.e., only to point a moral to the succeeding generations.
45. (ثامن مسن) Thereafter We sent Mūsā and his brother Hārūn with Our signs and a manifest authority;

46. (الثامن مالكين) to Fir'awn and his chiefs, but they waxed proud and they were a people self-exalting.

47. (فقالوا يهود) So they said: 68 shall we believe in two human beings like us, while their community is a subject to us? 70

48. (تكذبوا هم الملكين) Then they belied the twain; and so they became of the destroyed.

49. (وقد رضوان بهرون) And of a surety We gave Mūsā the Book 71 that perchance they 72 may be guided.

50. (وجعلنا مسن) And We made the son of Maryam and his mother a sign, 73 and We sheltered them on a height: 74 a quiet abode and running water. 75

SECTION 4

51. (يا بابآ الرسول علم) O you messengers! 76 eat of the good things 77 and work righteous deeds; 78 I am the Knower of what you do.

52. (وكانا فاطرة) And verily this religion of yours is one religion, 79 and I am your Lord; so fear Me.

53. (ففسروا فورهن) Then they 80 cut their affair 81 among them in regard to the Scripture, 82 each sect rejoicing 83 in what is with it.

54. (فذرهم حين) So leave thou 84 them 85 in their bewilderment 86 for a season. 87

55. (بإيصولون بين) Do they imagine 88 that in the wealth and children with which We enlarge them.

69. (in pride and arrogance).

70. i.e., how can we acknowledge their spiritual greatness when they belong to a subject nation of which we are the rulers?

71. (after the destruction of the Egyptians).

72. i.e., the children of Israel.
73. (of Our Omnipotence).
74. (in Egypt, to avoid their being detected by Herod, the oppressive and despotic tetrarch of Palestine). Cf. the NT:—"The angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him. When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt: and was there until the death of Herod.' (Mt. 2: 13-14) Also GB. p. 13. ‘Egypt was the only place of refuge easily reached from Bethlehem. It was outside the dominions of Herod, under Roman government, and contained a population of at least a million Jews, who were more wealthy and enlightened than those of Palestine. . . . . Herod died probably 4 B.C., possibly 3 B.C., so that the sojourn in Egypt was about perhaps only a few months.’ (DummeLOW, op. cit., p. 628) The journey was undertaken, according to the ancient Ethiopian sources, in the month of May. See (Budge, Legends of Our Lady Mary, p. 68.)

75. i.e., the elevated land well-fertilised with the Nile. ‘The Delta or Lower Egypt possesses an extremely fertile soil.’ (JE. V. p. 55) The fruitful nature of the Egyptian soil is almost proverbial. Brested after speaking of the genial, famous, and ‘ever replenished’ Egyptian soil and its ‘marvellous productivity’ and ‘opulent fertility,’ proceeds:—‘In climate Egypt is a veritable paradise.’ (op. cit., p. 9).

76. Thus were addressed the apostles of old in general.
77. (you and your peoples). God’s apostleship is not at all identical with asceticism. The passage may well imply the condemnation of the abstemious practices of the Christian monks.

78. (which is the only approved way of showing gratitude for God’s gifts).
79. (proposed by all the prophets and apostles without any fundamental difference), i.e., the universal religion. ḫ là here is in the sense of religion.
80. i.e., the erring people.
81. (of religion).
82. Or ‘into sects’. یـا ـة is synonymous both with یـیک and یـلا
83. (in utter disregard of all evidences of the Truth).
84. (O Prophet!).
85. i.e., the Makkian pagans who are still persisting in their infidelity and unreason.
86. Or ‘overwhelming ignorance!’ غر یا literally means ‘water that rises above the stature of a man.’ Here it may mean ‘the submerging gulf, or flow, of their ignorance’ or ‘error and obstinacy and perplexity.’ (LL)
87. i.e., till the hour of their death.
88. (in their foolishness).
56. We are hastening them on to good things? 89
they perceive not. 90

57. Verily those who go in awe for fear of their
Lord; 91

58. and those who believe in the signs of their Lord;

59. and those who do not join anyone with their Lord;

60. and those who give whatsoever they give while their hearts are anxious that to their Lord they are to be returned—

61. these are hastening on to good, and they are foremost therein.

62. We do not tax any soul except according to its capacity 93 and with Us is a Book 94 speaking with truth, 95 and wrongdoing they will be not. 96

63. Aye! their hearts are in bewilderment 98 in respect of this, 99 and they have, besides that, 100 works 101 of which they are the workers—

64. until when We lay hold of the luxurious ones of them with the chastisement, 108 and lo! they are imploring!

65. Implore not to-day; 103 verily you are not to be succoured against Us.

66. Surely My signs have been rehearsed to you, 104 and you were wont to draw back upon your heels;

67. stiff-necked, discoursing of it by night, 105
reviling. 106

89. i.e., are those pagans so foolish as to imagine that We are conferring on them real happiness by Our granting them wealth and children?

90. (the course of their destruction).
91. See P. XVII. n. 258.
92. Filled with self-depreciation a good and devout Muslim is never boastful or presumptuous, and is always sceptical of his good deeds——whether or not they shall be found worthy of acceptance on the Judgment-day. Hopeful always of God’s mercy, he is never cocksure of his own virtues.
93. (so that all Our commandments are easy to comply with).
94. (registering and recording all human actions).
95. (so that every one is sure to receive his meed).
96. (the wicked receiving never more than their due, and the virtuous receiving never less than their due).
97. i. e., the infidels.
98. Or ‘overwhelming heedlessness’. See n. 86 above.
99. i. e., in respect of this religion of Islam.
100. i. e., over and above their rejection of faith.
101. (to their lasting discredit).
102. (in the Hereafter).
103. (which is the day of requital and adjustment, not of actions).
104. (by the Prophet, O guilty ones!).
105. i. e., talking of the Qur’ān in their nightly assemblies in a disrespectful, mocking, scoffing manner. Reciting idle stories by night was a favourite pastime of the Arab pagans.
106. (the holy Prophet and the Holy Qur’ān). This gives an inkling into the mental attitude of the Arab pagans, who simply refused to give attention to the Qur’ān.
68. Did they never ponder over the Word? Or did there come to them what had not come to their fore-fathers?

69. Or, is it that they did not recognize their Divine messenger, so they became his deniers?

70. Or, do they say: in him is madness? Aye! he brought them the truth, yet most of them are averse to the truth.

71. And were the truth to follow their desires there would have been corrupted the heavens and the earth and whatsoever is therein. Aye! We have come to them with their admonition; so it is from their admonition that they turn away.

72. Or, is it that thou askest of them any maintenance? Better is the maintenance of thy Lord, and He is the Best of Providers.

73. Verily thou! thou callest them to a path straight.

74. And verily those who do not believe in the Hereafter are deviating from the path.

75. And though We may have mercy on them and may remove whatsoever is of hurt with them, surely they would persist in their exorbitance, wandering perplexed.

76. And assuredly We seized them with chastisement, but they did not humble themselves to their Lord, nor did they entreat—

107. i.e., is it that their inattention is the real cause of their rejection of the Qur'ān?

108. i.e., is it because they are totally unfamiliar with the idea of Revelation?

109. i.e., is it because they are not acquainted with the sincerity and integrity of their Prophet?

110. i.e., is it because they doubt the Prophet's sanity? Note a reverberation of the old pagan priggishness in the dictum of a modern Christian: 'The-fundamental thing in him was that he was a pathological case.’ (MacDonald, Aspects of Islam, p. 63).

111. (and that is the only real reason of their rejection of Islam).
112. (and were the universe to be governed in accordance with the whims and fancies of these petty creatures).
113. i.e., confusion and corruption, ruin and destruction would have spread all round.
114. i.e., We have brought them the admonitions leading to their own good and happiness.
115. (in their blindness to their own interests).
116. (as a reward for thy preaching, O Prophet!).
117. (and thou art well aware of it, so to suppose thee seeking worldly rewards from mankind is to assume an impossibility).
118. A fact apparent even to the Prophet’s modern critics. ‘Mohammad’s bearing towards his followers, no less than towards His opponents, exhibits the assurance of being the vicegerent of God and the exponent of His will.’ (Muir, op. cit., p. 126).

119. So foreign were the Makkah pagans to all impulses of the true faith!
120. (Him). The allusion is to a very severe famine in Makka, which occurred in the 8th year of the Prophet’s ministry.
until when We shall open upon them a portal of severe torment, and lo! they at that are despairing.

SECTION 5

77. (حتى ...) مللون)

78. (و هو ...) علامة

79. (و هو ...) حبار

80. (و هو ...) علامة

81. (بئل ...) الأولون

82. (قائلة ...) ملمومون

83. (لقد ...) الأولون

84. (قل ...) ملزمون

Say thou: whose is the earth and whosoever is therein, if you know?

85. (سيقولون ...) تذكرون

They will surely say: Allah's. Say thou: will you not then heed?

86. (قل ...) المعلم

Say thou: who is Lord of the seven heavens and Lord of the Mighty Throne?

87. (سيقولون ...) تقول

They will certainly say: Allah. Say thou: will you not then be God-fearing?

121. i.e., a calamity beyond their imagination, either in this world or the Hereafter.

122. (that you may perceive Our judgments and enjoy Our gifts and may seriously consider them).

123. i.e., to Him in due course.

124. (that all these phenomena are so many arguments leading to a conviction of His unity and omnipotence and to the truth of resurrection).

125. (O Prophet!).

126. i.e., is there any earth-god beside Him?

127. (and learn to worship God alone).

128. i.e., is there any heaven-god beside Him?

129. (Him alone, and renounce all polytheistic beliefs).
Say thou: in whose hand is the sovereignty of everything and who protects all, but against whom there is no protector, if you know? They will certainly say: Allah's. Say thou: how then are you turned away?

Aye! We have brought them the truth, and verily they are the liars. Allah has not taken to Himself any son, and there is no god along with Him; else each god would have gone off with what he had created and one of them would have exalted himself above others. Hallowed be Allah above what they describe.

Knower of the unseen and the seen, Exalted is He above what they associate.

SECTION 6

Say thou: Lord! if Thou wilt show me that with which they are threatened;

Lord I then place me not among the wrong-doing people.

And surely We are Able to show thee that with which We threaten them.

Repel thou the evil with what is the best; We are the Best Knower of what they utter.

And say thou: Lord! I seek refuge with Thee from the whisperings of the devils; and Lord! I seek refuge with Thee lest they may attend me. It ceases not until when death comes to one of them and he says: Lord I send me back.
131. (from the path). is not only 'bewitched' but also 'be turned away from his course or way'.
132. (or daughter, as the Arab pagans supposed).
133. (and would have set up a distinct creation and kingdom of his own).
134. Consult and read for the mutual strife of various gods, the mythologies of all polytheistic nations.
135. (to Him so unworthily).
136. (in my life-time).
137. (here and now).
138. (in the meantime; till Our judgment arrives).
139. i.e., with forgiveness and clemency.
140. (whose incitement may lead me to something impolitic though of course not sinful).
141. i.e., 'hovering around me' (LL). Notice that the Prophet, far from being influenced by the devils, shuns even their proximity.
142. i.e. the infidels' gainsaying of God's truth.
143. (and he is face to face with the stern, inexorable realities of the Hereafter).
144. (to life). The plural form of the verb ارجعون is a plural of respect. (Th).
100. (알미...يعون) that I may work righteously in what I have left. By no means. It is but a word he utters, and in front of them is a barrier until the Day when they shall be raised.

101. (فدا...يشالون) Then when the Trumpet is blown, there will be no kinship among them that Day, nor will they be able to ask of each other.

102. (فن...الملحون) Then he whose scales will be heavy—these! they are the blissful ones.

103. (رمن...خالدون) And he whose scales will be light—these are they who have hurt themselves; in Hell they shall abide.

104. (تلمع...كللون) Their faces the Fire shall scorch, and therein they shall be grinning.

105. (الم...أكلون) Have not My Revelations been rehearsed to you, and them you have been belying?

106. (قاو...ماتين) They will say: our Lord! our wretchedness overcame us and We have been an erring people.

107. (ريبا...طلون) O our Lord! take us forth from it then if we revert we shall be wrong-doers indeed.

108. (قال...تكلمون) Allah will say: sink away in it, and speak not to Me.

145. (unworthy of any serious notice).

146. Literally 'a thing that intervenes between any two things.' بَرَزْح, in the Quranic sense, is 'the interval between the present life and that which is to come, from the period of death to the resurrection, upon which he who dies enters.' (LL) It involves 'a state of consciousness characterised by a change in the ego's attitude towards time and space, . . . a state in which the ego catches a glimpse of fresh aspects of Reality, and prepares himself for adjustment to these aspects.' (Iqbal, Reconstruction of Religious Thoughts in Islam, pp. 166-167).

147. i.e., all human relationships would become inoperative and be dissolved.

148. (with good works) i.e., whose good works, when weighed, will be found to preponderate.

149. (and writhing with pain and agony).

150. (in the way of a belated confession).

151. (and send us to the world once more).

152. (to the life of guilt and sin).

153. (and deserving of every punishment).

154. i.e., into the Hell with ignominy.
109. Verily there was a band of my bondmen\textsuperscript{158} who said: our Lord! we have believed, so forgive us and have mercy upon us, and Thou art the Best of the merciful ones.

110. Then you took them mockingly, so that they\textsuperscript{166} caused you to forget remembrance of Me, and at them you were wont to laugh.

111. Verily I have recompensed them to-day, for they bore patiently:\textsuperscript{187} verily they are the achievers.\textsuperscript{168}

112. \textit{Allah} will say: how long did you tarry on the earth in number of years?

113. They will say:\textsuperscript{158} we tarried a day or part of a day;\textsuperscript{160} question them who keep count.\textsuperscript{161}

114. \textit{Allah} will say: you tarried a little \textit{indeed}.\textsuperscript{162} would that you had known that \textit{in your life-time}.

115. Do you consider that We have created you\textsuperscript{163} in vain\textsuperscript{144} and that to Us you are not to return?\textsuperscript{165}

116. So exalted be \textit{Allah}, the True King! there is no god but He! Lord of the Honoured Throne.\textsuperscript{146}

117. And whosoever calls along with \textit{Allah} unto another god, of whom he has no proof, then his reckoning is only with his Lord; surely the infidels will not thrive.\textsuperscript{167}

118. And say thou: Lord! forgive and have mercy, Thou art the Best of the merciful ones.

155. (among your contemporaries).

156. (as being the butt of your mockery and the subject of your ridicule).

157. (the cruel insults you wantonly offered them).

158. \textit{i. e.}, recipients of eternal bliss.

159. (in utter confusion and dismay).
160. So short will the duration of this life seem to them in comparison with the interminable length of their torments.

161. i.e., the angels who have recorded everything.

162. The age of the world itself can bear no comparison with the eternity of the Hereafter.

163. (O mankind!).

164. i.e., for nothing; with no serious purpose. See P. XVII. n. 28.

165. (for account). This contradicts both the Christian doctrine of annihilation and the Buddhist notion of extinction. The end of every human soul is a return to God for final reckoning, not a deliverance from all existence, or a termination of all consciousness, like the blowing out of the flame of a lamp.

166. While the connection of the God of Islam with the sky of the honoured Throne is clear, it is equally manifest that He is their Master, Creator and Lord, and that there can be no conceivable identification of His exalted personality with the material sky.

167. (in contrast with the believers who are sure to thrive). See the first verse of this Surah.
Sūrat-un-Nūr

The Light. XXIV

(Madinian, 9 Sections and 64 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (سورة ... تذكرون) This is a chapter We have sent down and which We have ordained,¹⁶⁸ and therein We have sent down revelations manifest,¹⁶⁹ that haply you may be admonished.¹⁷⁰

2. (الزائدة ... المذكرون) The adulteress and the adulterer:¹⁷¹ scourge each other of the twain with a hundred stripes.¹⁷² And let not tenderness in the law of Allah¹⁷³ take hold of you in regard to the twain,¹⁷³-A if you have come to believe in Allah and the Last Day.¹⁷⁴ And let a band of the believers witness this chastisement.¹⁷⁵

3. (الزائدة ... المؤمنين) The adulterer weds not but an adulteress¹⁷⁶ or an associatoress¹⁷⁷ and the adulteress! —— none weds her save an adulterer or an associator,¹⁷⁸ and that is forbidden to the believers.¹⁷⁹

168. The stress in the phrase is on the word ‘We,’ implying the special importance of the commandments mentioned in the chapter. The purport is: it is We who revealed and ordained these obligatory statutes, and therefore they are all to be complied with implicitly, and are not to be thought of lightly at all.

169. (conveying those commands).

170. (thereby, O Muslims!).

171. The Arabic word بزٍ denotes sexual intercourse between any man and woman, whether married or not, who do not stand to each other in the relation of husband and wife, and, as such, has no single-word equivalent in English language. It includes both adultery (i.e., illicit sexual intercourse of two persons either of whom is married to a third person) and fornication (i.e., illicit sexual intercourse of unmarried persons). See P. XV. n. 89. Islam condemns \textit{Zina} in all its forms outright. Islamic jurisprudence, in this respect, stands 'in splendid isolation from the laws of many other nations.' Among the Greeks, and also in early Rome, illicit sexual intercourse was no crime at all unless a married woman was involved. Even 'in Great Britain it was reckoned a spiritual offence, that is cognizable by the spiritual courts only. The common law took no further notice of it than to allow the party aggrieved an action of damages.' (EBr. I. p. 234, 11th Ed.).

172 The practice of the holy Prophet, the Sunnah, restricts this punishment to the case of unmarried offenders. The people who are married and are of free condition and are yet guilty of sexual misconduct are to be punished by stoning. Note that the law of Islam makes absolutely no distinction between a male offender and a female one. Both are equally guilty and equally punishable. The penalty for adultery in the Bible is undoubtedly death, probably by stoning. Cf. both the OT and NT:

'And the man that committeth adultery with another man's wife, even he that committeth adultery with his neighbour's wife, the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death.' (Le. 20: 10) 'If a man be found lying with a woman married to an husband, then they shall both of them die, both the man that lay with the woman, and the woman, so shalt thou put away evil from Israel.' (Dt. 22: 22) 'If a damsel that is a virgin be betrothed unto an husband, and a man find her in the city, and lie with her, then ye shall bring them both out unto the gate of that city, and ye shall stone them with stones that they die.' (22: 23, 24) 'Jesus went unto the mount of Olives . . . . They say unto him, Master this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act. Now Moses in the law commanded us, that such should be stoned: but what sayest thou?' (Jn. 8: 1-5) In the OT times, 'unfaithfulness on the part of the bride during the interval between betrothal and marriage was regarded as adultery, and might be punished with death. She was to be stoned, not strangled.' (DB. I. p. 326) 'The mode of execution varied with the standing of the woman: a guilty wife was to be put to death, i.e., strangled, along with her paramour, while a betrothed woman who was seduced was to be stoned.' (III. p. 273) 'In the law the only recognised form of capital punishment is by stoning. . . . It fell to the witnesses to cast the first stone.' (EBi. c. 2722) 'Prostitution by a betrothed virgin, . . . and the rebellious son are, according to the Pentateuchal laws, to be punished with death by stoning.' (JE. p. 554).

173. Sentiment of tenderness for such culprits is utterly misplaced; and accumulated experience of the mankind is that temperate and calculated severity on such occasions is most effective. Tenderness for criminals and misplaced clemency has been the besetting sins of the Jews in the rabbinical times. 'Capital punishment was, however of, such rare occurrence as to be practically abrogated. In fact many a judge declared openly for its abolition, and a court which had pronounced one sentence of death in seven years was called the court of murderers.' (Polano, op.cit., p. 331).

173-A. (as has happened in the case of other religious communities). The Jews seem to be the worst offenders in this respect. By constant modification and evasion of the Mosaic law, the rabbis brought the penalty of unchastity to naught, 'The laws relating to adultery came under the influence of a milder theory of the relation of crime and punishment. . . . Upon this mild theory followed the entire abolition of the death penalty.' (JE, I. p. 217) 'Practically it worked an acquittal in every case.' (p. 218) 'Most of the old Hebrew prophets and lawmakers themselves patronised harlots, and looked upon such escapades as the mildest of paccadillos. . . . In short, promiscuous sexual relations on the part of men, so long as they were not unduly advertised, came in for little in the way of censure. (Scott. History of Prostitution, p. 70).

174. (for punishment in this world is likely to atone for the torment in the Hereafter, and God is most unlikely to punish man twice for the same offence).

175. The execution, in order to be deterrent for others and more humiliating for the offenders, must take place in public, not in private, and they should justify and gratify their natural desire for vengeance upon such criminals.

176. i.e., a habitual adulterer is usually not inclined to wed anyone save a harlot. The phrase may also mean, 'The adulterer cohabith not except with the adulteress', the word تكاح meaning both wedlock and cohabitation. (Rgh).

177. Among polytheistic communities there is a distinct class of women giving themselves up to the life of shame as a form of religious service. The verse may also allude to the base morality of wives in pagan communities in general.

178. See nn. 176 and 177 above.

179. In the pagan society of Arabia, different classes of married women used to lead a profligate life with the connivance, or even active approval, of their husbands, for the sake of gain. Islam condemns the life of lewdness unreservedly, and categorically forbids the believers to marry any such women unless they repent and reform and once more begin to live a life of purity.
4. And those who accuse clean women and then bring not four eye-witnesses, scourge them with eighty stripes and accept not their testimony for ever. And these! they are the transgressors——

5. (excepting those who shall repent thereafter and make amends.) Verily Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

6. And as for those who accuse their wives and there are not witnesses for them except themselves, the testimony of one of them shall be to aver four times by Allah that he is of the truthful.

7. and for the fifth time that the curse of Allah be upon him, if he be of the liars.

8. And it will avert the chastisement from her if she swears by Allah four times that he is of the liars;

9. and for the fifth time that Allah's wrath be upon her if he is of the truth-tellers.

10. And had it not been for the grace of Allah and His mercy upon you, and that Allah is Relenting, Wise, you had been lost.

---

180. (of unchastity).

181. (to substantiate the charge). Note that the number of witnesses where the honour of a believing woman is involved is double that of usual number requisite.

182. Notice the very serious view the Qurʾān takes of slandering chaste women.

183. They shall, further, be deprived permanently of their civic right of giving evidence.

184. (and ask forgiveness of God). It is only the spiritual stigma that is atoned by repentance, which leaves the sentence of 80 stripes and the incompetence for giving evidence untouched.

185. (and ask forgiveness of the person or persons slandered).
186. The husband is required in such a case to call God four times as his witness and to solemnly swear to the fact.

187. For the fifth time the husband should invoke the curse of God upon him if he is telling a lie. Such oath is technically known as لمان.

188. (and thus exonerate her in a court of law).

189. Although acquitted in law the wife, after these extremities, must separate from her husband, and the judge must dissolve the marriage.

190. (O believing men and women!).

191. (towards those who confess their guilt).

192. (who prescribes benevolent, wise precepts).
SECTION 2

11. (ان) Verily those who brought forward the calumny\(^{193}\) were a small band among you.\(^{194}\) Do not consider it an evil for you;\(^{195}\) nay, it was good for you.\(^{196}\) Unto every one of them shall be what he has earned of the sin,\(^{197}\) and he among them who took the bulk of it, for him shall be mighty torment.\(^{198}\)

12. (ولو تمنين) Why, therefore, did not the faithful men and women, when you heard the slander,\(^{199}\) think well of their own people\(^{200}\) and say:\(^{201}\) this is an evident calumny?\(^{202}\)

13. (ولولا) Why did not they\(^{203}\) produce four witnesses thereof? And since they could not produce four witnesses, those! with Allah,\(^{204}\) they are the very liars!

14. (ولولا) Had there not been Allah’s grace upon you\(^{205}\) and His mercy in the world\(^{206}\) and the Hereafter,\(^{207}\) surely there would have visited you a severe chastisement for that wherein you had rushed\(^{208}\).

15. (اذ) when you were spreading it\(^{209}\) with your tongues and saying with your mouths that of which you had no knowledge, you consider it light but with Allah it was great.\(^{210}\)

16. (ولولا) And why, when you heard it, did you not say: it is not for us to speak thereof, — hallowed be Thou!\(^{211}\) — that is a slander mighty?\(^{212}\)

193. (against ‘Ayesha, the prophet’s wife. إنك literally is ‘a lie’ or ‘falsehood.’ The verse alludes to a particular incident in Hazrat ‘Ayesha’s life. In the sixth year of the Hijri era, when the holy Prophet was returning from the campaign against the Banu Mustaliq she was travelling, as usual, in a litter borne on a camel. At one of the halts, not very far from Madina, she dismounted and ‘withdrew from the camp in order to perform her ablutions. When she came back to her litter she discovered that she had forgotten her necklace of Yemen shells, and went back to fetch it, leaving the curtains of the chair closed’. The march was in the meantime ordered. Her retinue, seeing the curtain closed, concluded that she was in the chair.}
They loaded the litter on the camel and started on their journey. She herself says that her weight was next to nothing. Finding herself stranded, she could do nothing but to sit on the ground and to wait until someone should come to fetch her. And there she was found by Sufwān ibn al Mu‘āṭtal whose duty it was to follow the caravan. He let her mount his camel with all the respect and decorum due to his master’s wife, turning his face away so as not even to have a look at her, and himself on foot led the animal by the halter. This very ordinary and innocent episode furnished some malicious enemies of Islam—the notorious hypocrites of Madīna—with an opportunity to raise a scandalous storm.

194. Altogether they were four in number, the originator of the slander being a noted hypocrite and the three others being simple-minded Muslims.

195. (O persons of deep faith!). The address is in particular to the persons wronged most and the worst sufferers by the slander.

196. (not only with regard to your reward in the Hereafter but also in respect of the Divine vindication of your honour in the world).

197. i. e., every one will be punished according to his or her share in inventing and publishing the outrageous libel.

198. The allusion is to ‘Abdullah ibn Ubai, the notorious leader of the Madīna hypocrites and the originator of this wicked slander.

199. (O Muslims involved in publishing the calumny!). There were three of them, two men and one woman.

200. i. e., of their co-partners in faith and religion. ʾaḏiy is not here ‘in their minds’ as mistranslated by several translators.

201. (forthwith, and in plain words).

202. This is the ideal of purity in thought and word Islam expects of everyone of its followers to attain.

203. i. e., the scandal-lovers.

204. i. e., in the law of God.

205. See n. 190 above.

206. (inasmuch as He gave you respite to repent and make amends).

207. (inasmuch as He accepted your contrition and forgave you).

208. (so thoughtlessly).

209. i. e., the wicked slander.

210. The defaming of a believer’s character, always grievous, is doubly so when it was to cause mental anguish to the holy Prophet himself.

211. An exclamation indicative of surprise and disavowal, equivalent with saying: how extraordinary, how strange the report!

212. Muir renders the passage thus:—‘Gracious God! It is a monstrous calumny!, and remarks:—‘Little remark is needed regarding the character of ‘Aisha . . . . Her life both before and after must lead us to believe her innocent of the charge.’ (op. cit., pp. 303, 304).
17. (بعمك ... مؤمنين) Allah exhorts you not to repeat the like of it, if you are believers indeed.\textsuperscript{215}

18. (وإذن ... حكم) And Allah expounds to you His revelations;\textsuperscript{214} and Allah is Knowing,\textsuperscript{216} Wise.\textsuperscript{216}

19. (إن ... سكن) Verily those who desire that indecency should be propagated among the faithful\textsuperscript{217} for them shall be an afflictive chastisement in the world and the Hereafter.\textsuperscript{218} Allah knows\textsuperscript{216} and you know not.

20. (ولولا ... رجم) And had there not been Allah’s grace upon you and His mercy,\textsuperscript{219} and that Allah was Tender and Merciful, you could have perished.\textsuperscript{211}

SECTION 3

21. (يابالذين ... علم) O you who believe! do not follow the footsteps of Satan. And whoever follows his footsteps,\textsuperscript{222} then Satan only bids to indecency and abomination.\textsuperscript{222-A} And had there not been Allah’s grace upon you and His mercy, not one of you\textsuperscript{223} could have ever been cleansed, but Allah cleanses whomsoever He will.\textsuperscript{224} And Allah is Hearing,\textsuperscript{225} Knowing.\textsuperscript{226}

213. (O believers!). True belief implies a very high standard of morality leaving no room for such slanderous gossip.

214. (comprising moral precepts).

215. (so He knows the sincerity of your contrition).

216. (so He supplies you with admonitions and exhortations necessary for your guidance).

217. The word \textit{الناحية} in the context does not signify the act of lewdness but the dissemination of scandalous news and gossip, the wide-spread social vice—-the word of scandal ‘repeated and reiterated at hundreds of luncheon tables, tea tables, dinner tables, bridge tables and supper tables.’

218. Compare and contrast with this exceptionally high tone of the Islamic society the grossly lewd character of the Christian nations both modern and ancient—the necking and the petting of the moderns, and the kissing habit of the ancients. 'The kiss, the instinctive token of amity and affection from the earliest time found a place in the life and the worship of the Christian Church.' (DCA. II. p. 902) 'The shameless use' of which 'made the churches resound, occasioning suspicious and evil reports.' (ib)

219. (what are the props of a decent human society).
220. The address is, in particular, to the Muslims who have now repented of their unknowing guilt.
221. (and had felt His vengeance).
222. (by yielding to his instigation and evil suggestions). The words, though of a general import, have a special reference to the free mingling of the sexes.
222-A. As is evident in the case of modern, civilised girl.
223. (single-handed, and unaided by God).
224. (in accordance with His universal Plan).
225. (so He hears the words of penitence).
226. (so He knows the sincerity of a contrite heart).
And let not the men of affluence and plenty among you swear off from giving to the kindred and the needy and the emigrants in the way of Allah; let them pardon and overlook. Do you not love that Allah should forgive you? And Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

Verily those who accuse chaste, unknowing, a believing women shall be cursed in the world and the Hereafter, and for them shall be a mighty chastisement; on the Day when their tongues and hands and feet will bear witness against them for what they were wont to work.

On that Day Allah shall pay them their recompense in full and they shall know that Allah is Manifestly True.

Vile women are for vile men, and vile men are for vile women, and clean women are for clean men and clean men are for clean women; these are quit of what the people say: and for them is forgiveness and an honoured provision.

O you who believe! do not enter houses other than your own until you have asked leave and invoked peace on their inmates. That is better for you; haply you may take heed.

Mīṣṭaḥ was an indigent relative of the Prophet’s great companion Abū Bakr and was supported by him. In his simplicity of mind he also became a tool in the hypocrites’ campaign of scandalising Hazrat ‘Āyesha. It was natural for her father, the great Abū Bakr, now to stop his pension but even this small punishment he is not allowed to inflict, and is exhorted to act up to the highest standard of Islamic ethics and to continue his benevolence.

(as a recompense for your forgiving others).

(so His servants too should be forgiving and merciful in their dealings with men).
230. (of unchastity).

230-A. Or 'unmindful' i. e., indifferent to and uninterested in sexual affairs. It is only in recent years that this norm of respectability has undergone a complete transformation. 'No respectable girl', say only twenty years ago, 'dared to exhibit the slightest knowledge of or interest in anything pertaining to the sex act. Such knowledge or show of knowledge was reserved for the prostitute. ... In recent years, as a result of woman's sexual and social emancipation, there has been a great change in regard to her reaction to sexual feelings. She no longer is ashamed to betray any interest in sex.' (Scott, Encyclopedia of Sex, p. 142) 'It is a feature of modern life that the sexes mix together freely and in conditions of seductive proinquiety unknown in earlier generations.' (Forbate, op. cit., p. 83) 'All this new latitude, this mixing with men, this modern dancing, individually, collectively and cumulatively arouse latent sexuality, and stimulate sexual passion and desire to a degree, which in previous generations, rarely occurred before marriage.' (p. 89) 'To-day, interest in sex and the beginnings of erotic desire and passion are in evidence by the time the girl leaves school. Most secondary girls and nearly all college students are thoroughly acquainted with coitus sine immisis senio, if not with the complete sex act.' (p. 90).

231. (such as the holy Prophet's wives per-eminently are). 'Unknowing' in the phrase signifies 'conscious of no ill.'

232. i. e., shall realise before their very eyes.

233. i. e., the Revealer of everything hidden.

234. i. e., the true Judge.

235. i. e., are fit to be joined with——

236. i. e., are fit to be joined with——

237. (and as the holy Prophet was given only what befitted him, it is unthinkable that any of his consorts should have been anything but clean, pure and spotless).

238. (clean men and women).

239. i. e., are clean of the charges the slanderers falsely bring against them.

240. (in Paradise).

241. 'The English saying that an Englishmen's home is his castle, suggests a certain amount of exclusiveness and defiance. The Muslim principle of asking respectful permission and exchanging salutations ensures privacy without exclusiveness, and friendliness without undue familiarity.' (AYA).

242. Islam thus regards sudden and abrupt entry into another's house or apartment as an act of incivility and indecorum since the person may be surprised in an indecent action or posture or may have something discovered which he would have liked to conceal.
28. (فان ... عامر) That if you find no one therein, do not enter until leave has been given you. And if you are told: go back, then go back. It is cleaner for you, and Allah is Knower of what you do.

29. (ليس ... كنون) No fault it is with you that you enter a house uninhabited in which there is some property for you; Allah knows what you disclose and what you conceal.

30. (قل ... بصرون) Say thou to the faithful that they shall lower their sights and guard their private parts; that is cleaner for them. Verily Allah is Aware of what they perform.

243. (responding to your call).
244. (either by the occupant of the house or by its owner if it is unoccupied).
245. (by the occupant of the house).
246. (good-heartedly; without feeling insulted).
247. (than to remain waiting at the door).
248. (so beware of infringing any of His ordinances).
249. (without asking permission).
250. (by private individuals or families, such as shops, inns, etc.)

یدأ غر مسکة means, ‘buildings for the reception of travellers, or for merchants and their goods, and the shops of the merchants, and places in which things are sold, the entering of which is allowed by their owner.’ (LL)

251. i. e., material which may be of use to you.
252. (so His commands are to be obeyed in every case and circumstance).
253. (O Prophet!).
254. (and not look freely at the faces of the women who are not their sisters, daughters, mothers or wives). Here is a law of inward purity of the strictest kind and a piece of very sound advice to the tempted. This injunction puts a full and complete stop to lusting with the eyes, and the maxim, if acted upon, does and must serve as a most powerful agency for the prevention and control of sexual crimes. Islam is not at all enamoured of free and unrestricted intermingling of the sexes and of the mixed gatherings at bridge tables and supper tables, and in schools, colleges, clubs, cinemas, and public parks. It insists upon segregation of the sexes and bans altogether lewd literature, lewd pictures and lewd cinemas. Cf. the Bible:—'But I say unto you. That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.' (Mt. 5: 28)

255. (in their entirety). This bans altogether every form of nudity whether under cover of naturism or in the name of ‘health and efficiency’.

256. If this were the universal practice, how different would have been the record of sexual morality all over the world!

257. (so He is sure to punish any and every infringement of His commandments).
31. (قل ... تعلمون) And say to the believing women that they shall lower their sights and guard their private parts and shall not disclose their adornment except what appears of it: And they shall draw their scarves over their bosoms and shall not disclose their adornment save to their husbands or their fathers or their husband’s fathers or their sons or their husband’s sons or their brothers or their brothers’ sons or their sisters’ sons or their women or what their right hands own or male followers wanting in sex desire or children not acquainted with the privy parts of women. And they shall not strike their feet so that there be known what they hide of their adornment. And turn penitently to Allah you all, O you faithful, haply you may thrive.

32. (داراكوا ... علم) And wed the single among you and the fit ones among your male and female slaves. If they are poor, Allah will enrich them of His bounty. Allah is Ample, Knowing.

258. The ease with which sense-perceptions give rise to sex stimulation can hardly be over-rated. See n. 254 above.

259. See n. 255 above.

260. زينة is ‘anything with which one is adorned, bedecked, beautified or graced.’ Thus public exhibition is denied and interdicted of everything that the ‘modern’ woman holds so dear—her lip-stick, face-powder, bathing-dress and semi-nude costume.

261. (of sheer necessity).

262. (taking care to cover their heads, foreheads, necks, shoulders and breasts). This forms the justification for the much-maligned ‘veil’.

263. (who alone have the privilege to see the whole body of their wives).

264. All these near male relations are only allowed to see what cannot be well concealed in a familiar everyday intercourse but no other part of the body.

265. ‘Their women’ is synonymous with ‘believing women’, infidel women being in this respect reckoned as men.

266. (of the female slaves).
267. (and intelligence). غير اول الاية signifies both ‘wanting in intelligence’ and ‘wanting in sex desire’. The reference is to the male attendants who through disease or extreme old age have lost reason and manhood.

268. i.e., children having as yet no sense of sex.

269. i.e., the believing women.

270. (on the earth).

271. So that the Muslim woman is not allowed tinkling of the ornament of her feet lest it may be suggestive of sex appeal. Even such remote stimulants to sex passions are interdicted in Islam! Compare and contrast with this the open lewdness and solicitations of the modern dancing-halls. For the Biblical condemnation of the tinkling feet-ornaments of ‘the daughters of Zions’ see Is. 3: 16-18.

272. (if you have infringed in any way these Divine ordinances). The Holy Qur’an emphasizes here as elsewhere man’s ability to repent without a mediator.

273. (both individually and collectively; in this world and the Hereafter).

274. (of free women). ايم is any one not in the bond of wedlock, whether unmarried, or divorced or widowed. The purport of the command is that marriageable women in the Muslim community are not to be allowed to remain husbandless. This encourages the practice of marriage, even though it may lead to polygamy wherever necessary. Of Muslim polygamy, a much detested word till recently, a leading English clergyman, Rev. Canon Isaac Taylor, has said at one of the Church Congresses held in England:—‘Owing to polygamy, Muslim countries are free from professional outcasts, a greater reproach to Christendom than polygamy is to Islam. The strictly regulated polygamy of Muslim lands is infinitely less degrading to women and less injurious to men than the promiscuous polyandry which is the curse of Christian cities and which is absolutely unknown in Islam. The polyandrous English are not entitled to cast stones at polygamous Muslims.’ If ايم is not to be taken in the sense of ‘widows’, it should be noted that in Islam widowhood is neither a pollution requiring special purification nor a crime necessitating some expiation. Contrast with this the Hindu attitude. ‘Widowhood, according to Hindu doctrine, is the penalty incurred for sins committed in a previous incarnation, entailing hopeless drudgery for the rest of life.’ (EMK. IV. p. 1927) And daily along the Ganges may be seen a number of ‘widows bathing in its sacred waters in the hope of thereby washing away the sins that had presumably brought such a load of misery upon them’ (ib).

275. (both of whom become free by marriage). الصالحين is generally understood in the sense of ‘virtuous ones’; but صالح signifies also ‘suitable, or fit’. ‘Fit ones’ as equivalent to ‘fit for performing marital duties’ is the meaning adopted by Th. and is one of the meanings given by Rz. Marriage, it should be once more borne in mind, in Islam is normal, not exceptional. The act of wedding is in itself a virtue, not a grudging concession to human flesh, as in Christianity and some of the Jewish sects, like the Essenes.

276. (so poverty ought not to be taken as a permanent bar to marriage). Note once more that in Islam the normal way to the life of perfection is marriage, not celibacy. It is not Islam but certain other religions, perhaps equally well-known, that have exalted celibacy and have held marriage as something impure as a necessary evil. 'As an institution, Jesus regards marriage as essentially physical and intended only for the present age. Those who were to share in the blessings of the eschatological kingdom would neither marry nor be given in marriage but would be possessed of the non-physical body in the resurrection.' (Hastings, op. cit., II, p. 138) 'Anti-sexual elements,' says a modern social philosopher of Britain, have existed in religion 'side by side with the others from a very early time, and in the end, wherever Christianity or Buddhism prevailed these elements won a complete victory over their opposites.' (Bertrand Russell, Marriage and Morals, p. 34) Actually the misogamy of Saint Paul and his associates went so far that the sexual act which led to the birth of the child was itself a sin, and a filthy sin at that.' (Forbate, op. cit., p. 370) 'It was this outlook on sex which led to the rule that no man or woman, married or unmarried, who had performed the sex act the previous night, should take part in a Church festival or in the Eucharist.' (Scott, History of Prostitution, pp. 72-73).

277. (so He can enrich anyone He likes).

278. (so He knows who is fit to receive His bounty).
33. And those who do not find means to marry shall restrain themselves until Allah enriches them of His bounty. And from among those whom your right hands own those who seek a writing—write it for them if you find any good in them, and give them of the wealth of Allah which He has given you. And do not constrain your handmaids to harlotry if they would live chastely, in order that you may seek the chance gain of this world. And whosoever will constrain them, then verily Allah is, after their constraint, Forgiving, Merciful.

SECTION 5

35. Allah is the light of the heavens and the earth; the likeness of His light is as a niche wherein is a lamp; the lamp is in glass; the glass is as though it is a star brilliant; lit from a tree blest, an olive, neither of the east nor of west; its very oil will shine forth, even though no fire touched it; light upon light. Allah guides unto His light whom He will. Allah proclaims similitudes for mankind; and verily Allah is the Knower of everything.

36. They worship in houses which Allah has bidden to be exalted and His name to be remembered therein; they hallow Him in mornings and evenings—

279. i.e., shall practise continence and never seek to gratify their passions outside wedlock. And this is by no means impossible of attainment. ‘Personal purity,’ says Sir William Osler, one of the most distinguished physicians of the modern times, ‘is the prophylaxis which we, as physicians, are especially bound to advocate. Continence may be a hard condition (to some harder than to others), but it can be borne, and it is our duty to urge this lesson upon young and old who seek our advice in matters sexual.’ (Osler, Principles and Practice of Medicine, p. 278) ‘In all normal conditions abstinence from sexual intercourse is not harmful to a young man's health.' (Scott, Sex Problems and Dangers in War Time, p. 47).

280. i.e., a written instrument allowing the slaves to redeem themselves on paying a certain amount. This document obliges the master to set his slave at liberty on receiving a certain sum of money which the latter collects either by his labour or by receiving free gifts from well-to-do Muslims.

281. i.e., any chance of bettering their positions.

282. (that they may liberate themselves the sooner). Note that this is addressed not to the masters but to the Muslim community in general, thus recommending it to them to assist the slaves by paying their ransom.

283. which practice in pagan Arabia, as in most other pagan countries, was general, Abdullah ibn Ubai having six women slaves whose bodies he hired out for prostitution.

284. (to that end; to earn their livelihood by harlotry).

285. i.e., while they long to escape this immoral life and are detesting it.

286. (to such women, and will view their case leniently).

287. (O believers!).

288. The allusion may well be to Mary (of blessed memory), scandalous gossip against whom was even more serious than in the case of Hazrat ‘Ayesha.

289. (illuminating the hearts and homes of all believers). Or 'He illumines those in the heavens and on the earth by His light’. Cf. the NT:—'God is light, and in Him is no darkness at all.' (1 Jn. 1: 5).

290. (in the mind of the true believer). مَثْلُ نورِهِ فِي قُلُوبِ الْمُؤْمِنِينَ (IQ).

291. (diffusing its light all round). 'The teaching of modern physics is that the velocity of light cannot be exceeded and is the same for all observers whatever their own system of movement. Thus in the world of change light is the nearest approach to the Absolute. The metaphor of light as applied to God, therefore, must in view of modern knowledge, be taken to suggest the Absoluteness of God.' (Iqbal, op. cit., p. 89).

292. 'The development of the metaphor is meant rather to exclude the suggestion of a formless cosmic element by centralising the light in a flame which is further individualised by its encasement in a glass likened unto a well-defined star,' (Iqbal, op. cit.).

293. i.e., from the olive-oil. For زيتون see n. 26 above.

294. i.e., the tree is standing in the open, neither in the east nor in the west of a building, so that it is always before the sun. Such an olive tree is well noted for the purity and high quality of its oil.

295. (of itself).

296. So full of illuminating properties is that oil!

297. Speaking of the literary charm of the Holy Qur’ān, and taking this particular verse as a specimen says an English lady now happily a Muslim:—'It is impossible to give a translation that can convey the poetry, the subtle meaning that floods the soul when read in the original. To me simple grandeur of the diction, the variety of the imageries, the splendour of the word-painting differentiates the Koran from all other scriptures.' (Lady Cobbold, op. cit., p. 240).

298. (so He knows what sort of subjects would guide and benefit mankind).

299. i.e., those whom He has guided unto His light.

300. (and respected). Mosques are such houses.

301. i.e., in the prayer of dawn.

302. The Arabic word لام يم indicates the time from afternoon to dark, thus covering the two afternoon and the two evening prayers.
37. (ربائع . . . والأبيض) men whom neither trade nor business diverts from the remembrance of Allah and the establishment of the prayer and the payment of the poor-rate, in awe of a Day whereon heart and sights will be upset;

38. (لخرجهم ... حاب) that Allah may recompense them the best for what they worked and may increase to them of His grace. And Allah propounds for whom He will without measure.

39. (والذين ... الحاب) And those who disbelieve—their works are like a mirage in a desert which the thirsty deems to be water until when he comes thereto, he finds not aught, and finds Allah with himself, and He pays him his account in full; and Allah is Swift in reckoning.

40. (أو كلت ... نور) Or, like darkness in a bottomless sea; there covers him a wave from above it, a wave overcast with a cloud; layers upon layers of darkness. When he puts out his hand he can scarcely see it. And to whom Allah does not appoint a light his shall be no light.

303. (and from carrying His precepts in daily life).

304. (of rewards) i.e., Paradise.

305. (having the semblance of running water).

306. (and consequently dies in agony).

307. i.e., His decree.

308. Similarly an infidel believing in Resurrection presumes that his works will profit him, until when he dies and is brought before his Lord, he finds all his works null and void.

309. (and vast). Such verses ‘are to my apprehension amongst the grandest and most powerful in the whole Koran’. (Muir, op. cit., p. 340).

310. ‘The Arabs describe thick darkness as ‘darknesses one above another.’ (LL under the heading دك) This verse depicts the case of such infidels as were no believers in Resurrection at all.

311. (as a sequel to) this own habitual indifference to, and disregard of, the call of religion.
SECTION 6

Dost thou not see that Allah—hallow Him whosoever is in the heavens and the earth and the birds with wings out-spread? Surely everyone knows his prayer and his hallowing; and Allah is the Knower of what they do.

Allah's is the sovereignty of the heavens and the earth and to Allah is the return.

Dost thou not see that Allah drives a cloud along, then compresses it, and then makes it a mass, and thou then seest fine water come forth from the interstices thereof? And He sends down from the sky mountains in which is hail; then smites with it whom He will and spares whom He will. The flash of His lightning almost takes away the sights.

Allah turns away the night and the day over and over; verily in this is a lesson for men of insight.

Every moving thing Allah has created of water; of them is one that walks upon his belly, and of them is one that walks upon his two feet, and of them is one that walks upon his four. Allah creates whatsoever He wishes; Allah is Potent over everything.

312. (O reader!).
313. Birds have very frequently been adored, by polytheistic peoples, as vehicles of the great gods, and have themselves been the objects of special cults. The goose, the hawk, the parrot, the vulture, and the wagtail are a few conspicuous representatives of their class. For the Indian and Egyptian bird-cults see ERE. IX. p. 232, V. p. 245.
314. (of His creatures).
315. i.e., knows his, her, or its own mode of prayer and hallowing.
316. i.e., the infidels who still deny His Oneness.
317. (of one and all).
318. (O reader!).
319. (and not any rain-god).
320. (of clouds).
321. (any not any night-deity or day-deity).
322. (and an indication of His unity, majesty and omnipotence).
323. See P. XVII, nn. 64, 65; also AYA in loco.
324. (such as fish and reptiles).
325. (such as birds and human beings).
326. (such as cattle and beasts).
46. Assuredly We have sent down revelations illuminating: and Allah guides whom He wishes to a straight path.

47. And they say: we have believed in Allah and the messenger, and we obeyed, then a party of them backslides thereafter, and believers they are not.

48. And when they are called to Allah and His messenger that he may adjudge between them, lo: a party of them turns aside,

49. and if they had a just cause, they would have come to him readily.

50. Is in their hearts a disease? Or do they doubt? Or do they fear that Allah shall misjudge them, as also His messenger? Aye! these are the very wrong-doers.

SECTION 7

51. The only saying of the faithful, when they were called to Allah and His messenger that he might adjudge between them, was that they said: we hear and we obey. And these they are the blissful.

52. And whosoever obeys Allah and His messenger, and is in awe of Allah and fears Him—these they are the triumphant.

327. (and expounding the truth).

328. i.e., the hypocrites.

329. (when they are asked to abide by the Prophet’s judgments and decisions).

330. i.e., the apostle as the vicegerent of God.

331. (justly and impartially).
332. (conscious of their guilt).
333. (and refuse to obey his summons).
334. Lit. if the right had been theirs.
335. (confident of their winning the case).
336. i.e., the disease of absolute denial and infidelity.
337. i.e., are they sceptical of the holy Prophet’s claims?
338. (and despoil them of their dues).
339. (and the real culprits). The allusion is, in particular, to one BashIr, a hypocrite, who had a litigation with a Jew and appealed to a Jewish magnate, whereas the Jew appealed to the Prophet confident of receiving justice at his hands.
340. (in all sincerity).
53. And they\(^{341}\) swear by Allah with their solemn oaths that if thou\(^{342}\) commandest them they will surely go forth.\(^{343}\) Say thou: do not swear,\(^{344}\) your obedience is well-known.\(^{345}\) Verily Allah is Aware of what you do.\(^{346}\)

54. Say thou: obey Allah and obey the messenger;\(^{347}\) then if you turn away, upon him is only that which has been laid upon him,\(^{348}\) and upon you is that which has been laid upon you.\(^{349}\) If you obey him you will be guided,\(^{350}\) and naught is upon the prophet except the plain preaching.

55. Allah has promised those of you\(^{351}\) who believe and work the righteous deeds that He shall make them successors on the earth\(^{352}\) even as He made those who were before them successors,\(^{353}\) and that He shall certainly establish for them their religion which He has approved for them, and that He shall certainly exchange unto them after fear a security,\(^{354}\) provided they worship Me,\(^{355}\) joining not aught with Me;\(^{356}\) and whosoever will disbelieve thereafter, then those! they are the ungodly.\(^{357}\)

56. And establish the prayer, and pay the poor-rate and obey the messenger, haply you may be shown mercy.

\(^{341}\) i. e., the hypocrites.
\(^{342}\) (O Prophet!)
\(^{343}\) (from their houses).
\(^{344}\) (to a falsehood).
\(^{345}\) i. e., your obedience is known to me very well! The remark is sarcastic.
\(^{346}\) (and He has let me know of your real feelings).
\(^{347}\) (as His vicegerent).
\(^{348}\) i. e., the duty of preaching and delivering the message.
\(^{349}\) i. e., the duty of conforming to his directions and commands.
350. (and directed to the ways of perfection).
351. (O mankind!).
352. (and rulers, in place of the ungodly).
353. i. e., the believing Israelites, for instance, who had dispossessed the unbelieving Canaanites.

354. This is by way of prophecy. The Muslims, harassed and persecuted, are given the cheerful news that God shall destroy their enemies in the future, as He destroyed them in the past, and that they shall soon be able to establish their rule as the standard-bearers of God’s law and religion.

355. (exclusively and whole-heartedly). The proviso is important; mere lip profession of Islam is utterly inadequate for the realisation of these promises.
356. (either overtly or covertly).
357. (and clearly no such promise is held out to them).
57. Do not consider them who disbelieve—able to frustrate His purpose on the earth, and their abode shall be the Fire—an ill retreat!

SECTION 8

58. O ye who believe! let those whom your right hands own and those of you who have not attained puberty ask leave of you three times—before the dawn-prayer, and when you lay aside your garments at noon-day and after the night prayer: three times of privacy for you. No fault is there upon you and upon them beyond these times going round upon you, some of you upon some others. In this way does Allah expound His commandments, and Allah is Knowing, Wise.

59. And when the children among you attain puberty then let them also ask leave as those before them asked leave. In this way Allah expounds His commandments; and Allah is Knowing, Wise.

358. (in the Hereafter).
358-A. Your legal slaves and slave girls.
359. (when entering your houses or apartments).
360. (and the usual hours of undress). Even for a domestic or a child it is not proper to come into anyone’s room without notice. Such are Islamic rules of decorum.
361. i. e., outside these three stated times.
362. (without obtaining permission).
363. i. e., their seniors. The children when they are grown-ups must follow the same rules.
364. The verse is repeated perhaps to mark the special importance of the rule embodied in it.
60. And past child-bearing women who do not expect wedlock—upon them it is no fault that they lay aside their outer garments not flaunting their adornment. And that they should restrain themselves is better for them; and Allah is Hearing, Knowing.

61. No restriction is there on the blind, nor is there a restriction on the lame, nor is there a restriction on the sick, nor on yourselves that you eat in your houses or the houses of your fathers or the houses of your mothers or the houses of your brothers or the houses of your sisters or the houses of your uncles or the houses of your maternal aunts or the houses of your maternal aunts or from that house of which you own the keys or from the house of a friend. No fault is there upon you whether you eat together or eat in separate groups. Then when you enter houses, salute each other with a greeting from Allah, blessed and good. Thus Allah expounds to you His revelation, haply you may reflect.

365. (and who have no chance of exciting the passions of man).
366. Women of extreme old age are permitted to relax for themselves the proper rules of dress provided there is no wanton exhibition of even their womanhood.
367. (even from this).
368. The diseased and the maimed in the early days of Islam scrupled to have their meals with others lest their company might be considered defiling; the passage removes their scruples.
369. Some of the early Muslims imagined that they ought not to eat in the house of another though he be ever so closely related to them; others declined to eat with their friends, even on invitation, fearing, that they might be burdensome to them. The passage removes all such scruples.
370. (and are presumably permitted to eat thereat).
371. This strikes at the root of the Hindu caste system which insists that each one shall eat separately or at most in the company of his fellow caste-men. A similar custom prevailed in Egypt. ‘The great lords would not eat with foreigners, nor with their own countrymen who were of lower rank than themselves.’ (EMK. II. 855).
372. اسمك means, ‘your own people’.
SECTION 9

62. (اِما رَحِيماً) The faithful are those who have believed in Allah and His messenger, and when they are with him on some affair collecting people together,\(^{373}\) they do not depart\(^{374}\) till they have begged his leave. Verily those who ask thy leave, those are they who really believe in Allah and His messenger.\(^{375}\) So if they ask thy leave for some business of theirs, give thou leave to whom thou wilt,\(^{376}\) and implore thou Allah for their forgiveness.\(^{377}\) Verily Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

63. (لَا يَلِيم) Do not place the messenger’s calling of you on the same footing as your calling of each other.\(^{378}\) Of a surety Allah knows them who slip away privately.\(^{379}\) Let therefore those\(^{380}\) who oppose His commandment beware lest there befall them a trial\(^{381}\) or there befall them an afflictive torment.\(^{382}\)

64. (لَا أَعْلِم) Lo! verily Allah’s is whatsoever is in the heavens and the earth. Surely He knows what you are about,\(^{383}\) and the Day whereon they shall be made to return to Him;\(^{384}\) then He will declare to them what they worked. And Allah is the Knower of everything.

373. امرجع is ‘an affair that collects people together; or, a momentous affair, on account of which people collect themselves together, as though the affair itself collected them.’ (LL)

374. (when depart they must).

375. (just as those who do not ask his permission are not believers).

376. It is at least conceivable that some business judged to be of an important nature by a believer may not be judged so by the Prophet; so that the permission rested with his discretion, and he was to decide whether an excuse was reasonable or otherwise.
377. (for their departure, although with the Prophet's permission, implied preference of their temporal outlook to the strict performance of religious duty).

378. (O Muslim!) i. e., do not treat the Prophet's summons lightly as you would of another person's.

379. (from the Prophet's assembly).

380. (of the half-hearted believers)—no true believers could of course be guilty of such a conduct.

381. (in this very world).

382. (in the Hereafter).

383. (here and now, and so He can inflict immediate punishment).

384. (so it is equally open to Him to defer the punishment till then).
Sūrat-ul-Furqān

The Criterion. XXV
(Makkan, 6 Sections and 77 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful)

SECTION 1

1. (بَارِكْ . . . ۱۸۴۲) Blessed be He who has sent down the Criterion to His bondman that he may be a warner to the worlds.

2. (الذِّى . . . ۱۸۴۷) He it is whose is the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and who has not taken a son, and for whom there is not an associate in the dominion, and who has created everything and measured it according to a measurement.

3. (وَاَخْتَذَا . . . ۱۸۴۹) And they have taken gods, besides Him, creating not aught and are themselves created, can neither hurt nor benefit themselves, and have no power of life or death or resurrection.

385. (of good and evil; of right and wrong) i.e., the Holy Qur'ān. See P. I. n. 222.

386. i.e., the holy Prophet. See P. I. n. 98.

387. (and not only to a particular nation or country). Another indication of the universality of Islam.

388. The verse specially aims at the demolition of the two principal forms of Christian polytheism. See P. XV. n. 282.

389. (single-handed, without the help of any co-partner).
390. Several pagan philosophers, such as Epicurus, denied in toto the Divine superintendence of human affairs, and this human self-sufficiency was echoed by the latter-day Jews. The Sadducees among them held that there was no such thing as 'fate', and that 'human actions are not directed according to it, but all actions are in our own power, so that we are ourselves the causes of what is good.' (DB. IV. p. 53) The Holy Qur'ān corrects all such misconceptions and makes it clear that every event, big or small, that comes to pass in the universe, is the direct outcome of the All-Wise, All-Righteous, All-Powerful God, and not subject either to chance or to necessity, and that the governing hand of God is visible through every process of nature, through the march of history, and through the fortunes of every individual life, steadily working out His preconceived Plan.

391. i. e., the polytheists.

392. i. e., all fanciful gods are absolutely powerless; He alone is Potent.
4. And those who disbelieve say: this is naught but a falsehood that he has fabricated and other people have associated themselves in it. Surely they have brought a wrong and falsehood.

5. And they say: fables of the ancients which he has had written down and they are dictated to him morning and evening.

6. Say thou: He has sent it down Who knows the secret of the heavens and the earth; verily He is ever Forgiving, Merciful.

7. And they say: what is the matter with this messenger; he eats food and walks about in the market! Why is not an angel sent down on him that he may be along with him a Warner?

8. Or why is not cast down unto him a treasure or unto him a garden whereof he may eat? And the wrongdoers say: you follow merely a man bewitched.

9. See how they propound similitudes for thee! So they have strayed and cannot find a way.

394. —a charge repeated and reiterated for a thousandth time by the Jews and the Christians of to-day.
395. —as many of the modern 'scholars' have themselves confessed and avowed.
396. See P. VII. n. 321.
397. (for himself by others, as he is illiterate).
398. (O Prophet!).
399. —the All-Knowing; One whose knowledge is all-comprehensive.
400. (and so He does not punish the detractors immediately).
401. (in their sheer ignorance of the true office of a prophet).
402. (like ourselves, and is thus subject to the same laws of nature as we are).
403. i.e., the angel.
404. i. e., if not himself a demi-god or an immortal angel, this mortal calling himself a prophet should at least have been escorted by an angel.

405. (making him independent of ordinary means of livelihood.

406. (from high above).

407. (and thus may dispense with the need of seeking food like ordinary human beings).

408. (to the believers).

409. (and enchanted, and thus deprived of his reason or intellect).

410. (and to what absurd lengths are they driven in rejecting thee, O Prophet!).

411. (far from the truth, through their perversity).

412. (as a sequel to their wilful rejection of the truth).
SECTION 2

10. (بارك... علیه... فیروز) Blessed be He Who, if He willed,\textsuperscript{413} will assign to thee something better than that;\textsuperscript{414} gardens with running water, and assigned palaces to thee.\textsuperscript{415}

11. (بل... سبیل) Ayé! they belie the Hour,\textsuperscript{416} and for him who belies the Hour We have prepared a Flame.

12. (اذنا رأوهم... رقیارا) When it sees them from afar, they will hear it raging and roaring.\textsuperscript{417}

13. (د اذناب... نورا) And when they shall be flung into a strait place thereof, bound up,\textsuperscript{418} they shall call therein for death.\textsuperscript{419}

14. (لا تدعوا... كبر) Call not today for a single death, but call for death manifold.\textsuperscript{420}

15. (قل... مصيرا) Say thou:\textsuperscript{421} is that better or the Garden of Abidance promised to the God-fearing? It shall be theirs as a recompense and as a retreat.

16. (هل... مستولا) Theirs therein shall be all that they wish for, as abiders:\textsuperscript{422} a promise from thy Lord to be asked for.

\textsuperscript{413} (in accordance with His universal Plan).

\textsuperscript{414} (of which the infidels speak).

\textsuperscript{415} (here and now).

\textsuperscript{416} (and this generates in them irresponsibility and want of serious thinking).

\textsuperscript{417} For زیر See P. XII. n. 309.

\textsuperscript{418} (hands and feet).

\textsuperscript{419} (so that their torment might be ended).

\textsuperscript{420} (and oft-repeated).

\textsuperscript{421} (O Prophet).

\textsuperscript{422} (sure of fulfilment).
17. And on the Day when He will gather them and what they worship besides Allah and will say: Are you the ones who sent My these bondmen astray or strayed they themselves from the way?

18. They will say: hallowed be Thou! it behoved us not that we should take besides Thee any patron, but Thou allowdest them and their fathers enjoyment until they forgot the admonition and they were a people doomed.

19. So now they belie you in regard to what you said; so now you are not able to obtain diversion nor help. And whosoever of you does wrong, We shall cause to taste a great torment.

20. And We have not sent before thee any of the messengers but they did eat food and did walk about in the market-places. And We have made some of you a temptation to some others; will you have patience? And thy Lord is a Beholder.

423. (to the angels, prophets and saints who were so foolishly worshipped by the polytheists).

424. ——and this will add to the anguish and mental torture of the polytheists——

425. (which they entirely abused).

426. i.e., your supposed gods and godlings.

427. This will be said to the polytheists.

428. i.e., averting of danger.

429. (from any quarter whatsoever).

430. (in the way of ascribing partners to the One True God).

431. i.e., all of them have been subject to the same physical laws and necessities. See verse 7 above.

432. (whereby everyone is tried and tested, O mankind!).

433. (O believers!)

434. (of every thing and affair, O Prophet!)

435. This is to be a particular reference to the polytheists of pre-Islamic Arabia.
PART XIX

21. (و قال) ... كيلا) And those who look not to their meeting with Us say: why are not angels sent down to us, or why we see not our Lord? Assuredly they have proved stiff-necked in their souls and have exceeded the bounds with great excess.

22. (يوم ... ضحرا) The Day they will see the angels there will be no joy for the culprits on that day, and they will say: away! away!

23. (يومما ... منيرا) And We shall set upon what they worked, and shall make it as dust wind-scattered.

24. (اصبب ...) مقلا) Fellows of the Garden shall be on that Day in a goodly abode and a goodly repose.

25. (يوم ... تزيرا) And on the Day when the sky shall be rent asunder from the clouds and the angels shall be sent down with a great descending—

26. (الملك ...) عيرا) the dominion on that Day shall be the true dominion of the Compassionate, and it shall be a day hard on the infidels.

27. (يوم ... سلما) On the Day when the wrong-doer shall gnaw his hands saying: would that I had taken a way with the messenger!

28. (يرش ...) خليلا) Ah! woe unto me! would that I had not taken such a one for a friend!

1. (at the Resurrection).  is sometimes, as here, fear not hope.
2. (to confirm the claims of the Prophet). The angels, according to the belief of the pagans, were a sort of minor deities.
3. (of obedience).
4. (at the Resurrection).
5. (in extreme terror, as they will see the angels of torment advancing towards them).
6. ‘In the time of paganism, a man meeting another whom he feared, in a sacred month, used to say شجراء حمراء, meaning: It is rigorously forbidden to thee to commit an act of hostility against me in this month; and the latter, thereupon, would abstain from any aggression against him: and so on the day of resurrection, the polytheists, when they see the punishment, will say to the angels, thinking that it will profit them.’ (LL)

7. (in their life-time, which they presumed to be good and meritorious).

8. i.e., so utterly valueless.

9. i.e., shall part; or shall open.

10. پ sometimes, as here, is synonymous with عن. (LL)

11. (through the coverings of the clouds on that Day). See P. I, nn. 369, 370.

12. (and God shall manifest Himself).

13. (even manifestly, as it is always really).

14. (in utter anguish and despair).
29. (وقد ...) خذولا (Assuredly he led me away from the admonition after it had come to me; verily Satan is to man ever a betrayer. )

30. (قَالَ الْمُسْلِمُ ...) هَمْبًا (And the messenger will say: Lord! verily my people took this Qur’an as a thing to be shunned.)

31. (وَكَذٌٰکَ نَصِيرًا (And even so We appointed to every messenger an enemy from among the culprits. And suffices thy Lord as Guide and Helper.)

32. (قَالَ رَبِّي مَرَّ أَرْيَةَ (And those who disbelieve say: why is the Qur’an not revealed to him entire at once? We revealed it thus that We may strengthen thy heart with it and We have repeated it with a repetition.)

33. (وَلَا تَنْسِيًا (And they come not to thee with a similitude but We bring thee the truth and an excellent interpretation.)

34. (الذين ...) سيلًا (They who shall be gathered prone on their faces into Hell — those shall be the worst in respect of place and the most astray in respect of path.)

SECTION 4

35. (وَلَتَدْرَى وَزِيرًا (And assuredly We gave the Book to Mūsā and We placed his brother Hārūn with him as a minister.)

36. (فِنْفَنِ أَمْ تَدْمِيرًا (Then We said: go you twain to a people who have belied Our signs. Then We annihilated them utterly.)

15. خذولا is ‘applied to the Devil, because he forsakes the unbeliever, and declares himself to be clear of him, on the occasion of trial, or affliction.’ (LL)

16. i.e., the people whom I addressed in vain.

17. (thinking it of no account).

18. i.e., as in thy case, O Prophet!

19. (so grieve not, O Prophet!).

20. (to guide those who have a will to believe).

21. (to help and defend thee against thy enemies, O Prophet!).

22. (instead of being revealed piece-meal).
23. i.e., both to infuse courage and constancy into thy mind, and to strengthen thy memory and understanding. This is the first of the reasons for the gradual revelation of the Qur’ān. ‘The tremendous task of winning the Arab nation, and through them, the whole world, to Islam, required superhuman patience, constancy, and firmness’; and they were engendered and developed by a process of gradual revelation. ‘... Finally, for the Prophet himself these revelations coming as they did from time to time provided as Prophet’s sustenance the spiritual food that strengthened his heart and supplied the necessary stimulus throughout a long and arduous mission... At the most trying moment in his prophetic career it comforted and consoled him, and at no time did it take on a surer tone in predicting ultimate triumph than when to all outward appearances the Prophet’s condition was hopeless.’ (MA, p. 8)

24. (slow and well arranged). Here is another reason. Although the stages were so gradual that the completion took about 23 years, yet the whole emerged in the end as a well-arranged Book.

25. i.e., the cavilling, carping infidels.

26. (in answer, through the Qur’ān).

27. (thereof). This is the third reason for long-drawn stages. The Qur’ān answers all the hostile questions put from time to time.
37. (وَقُومُ . . . إِلَيْهِ) ... And the people of Nūḥ! when they belied Our messengers We drowned them and made them example to mankind. And We have prepared for the ungodly an afflictive torment.

38. (وَقَلَّتْ أَوْلَادُهُمْ) ... And the ‘Aad and the Thamūd and the dwellers of the Rass, and many a generation in-between.

39. (وَلِعَدَّتْ . . . ثُمَّ) ... And for each of them We propounded a similitude and each We ruining completely.

40. (وَرَفَتْ . . . نَبَارَةً) ... Assuredly they have passed by the town on which was rained the evil rain. Are they not wont to see it? Aye! they expect not Resurrection.

41. (وَذَا . . . رُسُولَ) ... And when they see thee, they hold thee up for mockery: is he the one whom Allah has sent as an envoy?

42. (وَنَلَّهَنَا . . . سِيْلًا) ... well-nigh he had led us astray from our gods if we had not persevered towards them. Presently they shall know when they see the torment, who was more astray in respect of path.

43. (وَأَرَّضَتْ . . . كَلِمًا) ... Hast thou seen him who has taken as his god his own desire? Wilt thou over him be a trustee?

44. (وَإِمَّا . . . سِيْلًا) ... Dost thou think that most of them hear or understand? They are but like the cattle; nay, they are even farther astray from the path.

28. To reject one messenger of God is tantamount to the rejection of all prophets, since they preach what is fundamentally one and the same doctrine.

29. i. e. a lesson in this world.

30. (in the Hereafter).

31. Probably a town in Yamama, where a remnant of the Thamudites had settled. In the modern maps of Arabia, Ras or Rass placed in Wadi Rumma, in the district of Kasim, Lat. 26°N. and Long. 43°E. (EBr. XXIV, p. 62) Doughty referring to another place says it is 'nigh to er-Russ, at the Wady er-Rummah; where are seen wide ruins and foundations.' (Travels in Arabia Deserta, II, p. 388).
32. (of the said generations).
33. (for their admonition).
34. (for their disobedience and rebellion).
35. i.e., the Makkian pagans.
36. (often, in their trade journeys to and from Syria).
37. i.e., the city of Sodom.
38. i.e., the ruins thereof, and be admonished thereby.
39. The Prophet had to lead ‘a melancholy existence under scorn and ignominy, sometimes in Mecca, sometimes in the society of a few friends in Taif, a place lying in a fruitful region on the borders of the hill country, hiding himself with difficulty from the snares and persecutions of his enemies.’ (HHW. VIII, p. 117) ‘Far from winning a hearing he reaped mockery and scorn.’ (p. 115).
40. (by his eloquence).
41. (in our devotion).
42. (for certain).
43. i.e., either they or the Prophet; which of the two.
44. (O Prophet!).
45. i.e., such a one as is a worshipper of his own passion? Religion always presupposes a discipline—a submission of oneself to a higher, transcendental, all-embracing moral law. But this is just what the Arab paganism was most weary of. The Arabs of the period, according to the best modern authorities, were at best lukewarm in their religion. ‘Mohammad’s contemporaries and the generations immediately preceding them were, as a rule, little influenced by their religion. . . . . The vehement opposition which Mohammad encountered is to be explained as due, partly, to the dislike of a personal ruler and of any firm government whatsoever, partly to the desire of retaining certain material advantages which were inseparably connected with the local sanctuaries.’(ERE. I. p. 659). The Arabs were, as a whole, in temperament, neither religious nor superstitious. They were careless, sceptical, materialistic. ‘Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die’ is the Epicurean tone of the majority of the poems that have come down to us. What a contrast they were in this respect to Mohammad, and what a Herculean difficulty did this temperament of theirs place in the way of the religious reformer!’ (Bosworth Smith, op. cit., p. 104).
46. i.e., making thyself responsible for his reclamation.
47. i.e., do they exercise their reflective faculties at all?
48. (in their listlessness).
49. See P. IX. n. 316.
SECTION 5

45. (Allām . . . Dīla) Hast thou not observed thy Lord—how He has stretched out the shadow? And if He had willed, He would have made it still. Then We have made the sun for it an indication.

46. (Tum . . . Bīrā) Then We draw it towards Us with an easy drawing.

47. (Woh . . . Nirā) And it is He who has made for you the night a covering, and the sleep a repose, and has made the day a resurrection.

48. (Woh . . . Sīhā) And it is He who sends forth the winds as a herald before His mercy: and We send down from the sky pure water.

49. (Nāhī . . . kīrā) That We may quicken thereby a dead land, and We may give drink from it to what We have created of the cattle and human beings many.

50. (Wand . . . kūfā) And We set it forth among them that they may be admonished, but most men begrudge aught save infidelity.

51. (Dūw . . . nhūrā) And had We willed, We would have raised a warner in every town.

52. (Dīnā . . . kūfā) So obey not thou the infidels, but strive against them with a great striving.

53. (Woh . . .庳rūsā) And it is He who has mixed the two oceans; this, sweet and thirst-quenching; that, saltish and bitter; and has placed between the two a barrier and a partition complete.

50. (O reader!) The particular, in Allām is expressive of wonder.

51. (of everything at sunrise).

52. i. e., motionless and immovable.

53. (as the sun rises higher and higher).

54. i. e., We contract the shadows. The main point is that it is God who effects all these physical changes; none of them are brought about automatically, independent of the Divine will.
55. i.e., concealing everything by its darkness.

56. Not only poets but also scientific writers have spoken of the healing magic of sleep and of the harmonious relief it affords to the whole human system. That sleep is a great restorative and has immense refreshing powers is known to all. It is the most perfect relaxation open to human nerves and muscles. Even a biologist while speaking of sleep has been led to exclaim:—'What a mysterious, yet sweet and lovable thing it is! How strange it is that we all regularly and gladly abandon ourselves to it'! And Shakespeare so beautifully puts it in the mouth of Bolingbroke:—

'... O sleep, O gentle sleep,
Nature's soft muse, how have I fought thee,
That thou no more wilt weigh my eyelids down,
And steep my senses in forgetfulness?'

57. Sleep is here compared to death, and with daylight the normal animal activity is said to resume.

58. (and not any wind-god).

59. (to gladden your heart).

60. i.e., the rains.

61. (and not any rain-god).

62. i.e., rain-water noted for its purifying properties. Rain washes the air and takes impurities out of it.

63. i.e., of the rain-water.

64. i.e., persons and beast inhabiting dry lands and deserts which are destitute of wells, springs, rivers and lakes.

65. (thereby) i.e., they may argue from all these phenomena Our Uniqueness and Omnipotence.

66. The polytheistic nations instead of feeling indebted to God for their supply of rain have always attributed it to the working of some minor god or to the influence of some stars.

67. (contemporaneously with thee, O Prophet! and would not have singled thee for the honour of being a Preacher to the entire mankind).

68. i.e., in acknowledgement of this unique honour, O Prophet!

69. (by relaxing in the work of preaching).

70. (in the future as thou hast striven hitherto).

71. i.e., with the weapon of the Qur'ān.

72. i.e., contend with the infidels, with the arguments supplied by the Qur'ān, to the utmost of thy ability. 𐐄𐐇 properly signifies the using, or exerting one's utmost power, efforts, endeavours, or ability, in contending with an object of disapprobation.' (LL)

73. (yet neither of them overpasses its bounds and mixes itself with the other).
74. فرَط applied to water is ‘sweet, or very sweet, or of the sweetest kind, or that subdues thirst by its excessive sweetness.’ (LL)

75. ‘In the world taken as a whole, there are two bodies of water, viz.: (1) the great salt Ocean, and (2) the bodies of sweet water fed by rain, whether they are rivers, lakes, or underground springs: their source in rain makes them one, and their drainage, whether above-ground, or underground, eventually to the Ocean, also makes them one. They are free to mingle, and in a sense they do mingle, for there is a regular water-cycle; . . . and the rivers constantly flow to the sea, and tidal rivers get sea-water for several miles up their estuaries at high tide. Yet in spite of all this, the laws of gravitation are like a barrier or partition set by God, by which the two bodies of water as a whole are always kept apart and distinct. In the case of rivers carrying large quantities of water to the sea . . . the river-water with its silt remains distinct from sea-water for a long distance out at sea. But the wonderful sign is that the two bodies of water, though they pass through each other, remain distinct bodies, with their distinct functions.’ (AYA)
54. And it is He who has created man from water, and then made kinship for him by blood and wedlock. And thy Lord is ever Potent.

55. And yet they worship besides Allah, what can neither benefit them nor hurt them; and the infidel is ever an aider of the devil against his Lord.

56. And We sent thee but as a bearer of glad tidings and a warner.

57. Say thou: I ask of you no wage for this, save that whosoever wills may take a way unto his Lord.

58. And trust in the Living One who dies not, and hallow His praise. It suffices that He is Aware of the sins of His bondmen. Who created the heavens and the earth and whatsoever is in-between them in six days, then He established Himself on the Throne—the Compassionate! So concerning Him ask any one informed.

59. And when it is said to them: prostrate yourselves before the Compassionate, they say: what is this Compassionate? Shall we prostrate ourself unto what thou commandest us? and it increases in them only aversion.

SECTION 6

61. Blessed be He who has placed big stars in the sky and has placed therein a lamp and a moon enlightening.

---

76. i. e., seminal fluid. For connection between life and water see P. XVII. nn. 64, 65.

77. i. e., on father’s side.

78. i. e., lineage from mother’s side.

79. (in his rebellion).

80. (to the obedient).
81. (to the disobedient).
82. i.e., no return either in cash or by way of rank or dignity).
83. (my preaching).
84. ——disregarding and ignoring the threats of thy enemies——
85. The epithet لآخرت 'who dies not,' or ‘Imperishable’ may have been necessitated by the very widely prevalent custom of deicide or godslaughter. ‘Deicide, once supposed to find its only example in the Crucification, has been, in fact, a widespread custom, which has left a deep impress on the religious thought of the race.’ (ERE. IV. p. 523) The God of Islam, it required special emphasis, is the Immortal, the Imperishable, the Deathless.
86. (out of nothing). See P. VIII. n. 483.
87. See P. VIII. n. 484.
89. ب is here synonymous with ع.
90. i.e., endowed with knowledge and piety. What should the ignorant and impious pagans know of Him?
91. i.e., the infidels.
92. (in derision).
93. i.e., what is His nature? what are His attributes? ‘If inquiry be made regarding the nature, qualities, social position, etc., of a person, ل is used, and not ع. (WGAL. p. 313).
94. i.e., this precept to adore Raḥmān alone.
95. (to the truth).
96. (by day) i.e., the sun.
97. (by night).
62. And it is He who has assigned the night and the day a succession,\textsuperscript{98} for\textsuperscript{99} him who wishes to consider\textsuperscript{100} or who wishes to be grateful.\textsuperscript{101}

63. And the servants of the Compassionate\textsuperscript{102} are those who\textsuperscript{103} walk upon the earth meekly,\textsuperscript{104} and when the ignorant\textsuperscript{105} address them,\textsuperscript{106} they\textsuperscript{107} say: peace;\textsuperscript{108}

64. and those who pass the night before their Lord prostrate and standing up;\textsuperscript{109}

65. Our Lord I avert from us the torment of Hell;\textsuperscript{111} verily its torment is perishment;

66. verily ill it is as an abode and as a station.

67. and those who when they expend are neither extravagant nor stingy: and it\textsuperscript{113} is a medium in-between:

68. and those who do not call on other gods alongwith
Allah,\textsuperscript{113} and do not slay any soul which Allah has forbidden,\textsuperscript{114} save in justification; and do not commit adultery.\textsuperscript{115} And whosoever will do this,\textsuperscript{116} shall incur the meed.\textsuperscript{117}

69. Multiplied for him shall be the torment on the Day of Resurrection, and he shall abide therein\textsuperscript{118} disgraced;

98. (each replacing and following the other regularly). Professor Whitehead described the universe, not as something static, but as a structure of events possessing the character of a continuous creative flow. ‘This quality of Nature’s passage in time is perhaps the most significant aspect of experience which the Qur’ân especially emphasizes.’ (Iqbal, \textit{op. cit.}, p. 61)

99. \textit{for the observation of}.

100. \textit{i. e.}, to such a one these phenomena of nature would serve as arguments.

101. \textit{i. e.}, to such a one these phenomena would appear as favours of God.
102. i. e., true, faithful, and loyal slaves of God.

103. (immersed in deep spirituality). The reference is to the early believers or the companions of the Prophet.

104. (symbolic of their humility in every department of life).

105. Or, 'the pagans.' For الجاهلية see P. IV. 264.

106. (in infidelity and arrogance).

107. (instead of retaliating).

108. i. e., let us go our own way, we have no wish to quarrel with you.

109. (in prayer).

110. (in complete forgetfulness of their works of merit, as becomes men of piety).

111. Mark the miraculous change for the better that the Prophet of Islam had almost immediately brought about in his erstwhile ferocious, dissolute and irreligious countrymen. 'From time beyond memory, Mecca and the whole peninsula had been steeped in spiritual torpor . . . The people were sunk in superstition, cruelty, and vice . . . Thirteen years before the Hijrat, Mecca lay lifeless in this debased state. What a change had those thirteen years now produced! A band of several hundred persons had rejected idolatry, adopted the worship of One God, and surrendered themselves implicitly to the guidance of what they believed a Revelation from Him; praying to the Almighty with frequency and fervour, looking for pardon through His mercy, and striving to follow after good works, almsgiving, purity and justice. They now lived under a constant sense of the omnipotent power of God, and of His providential care over the minutest of their concerns. In all the gifts of nature, in every relation of life, at each turn of their affairs, individual or public, they saw His hand . . . Mohammad was the minister of life to them, the source under God of their new-born hopes; and to him they yielded an implicit submission.' (Muir, op. cit., p. 161-62) 'Wine, women and war were the only three objects which claimed the love and devotion of the Arab.' (Kremer, Contribution to the History of Islamic Civilization, Eng. Tr. p. 156). 'But a few years since sunk in superstition and practising all sorts of vice, they now prostrated themselves five times a day in prayer to an invisible Allah, whom they had before known only imperfectly at best, and were honestly trying to follow the precepts that they believed had been sent directly from Him to them.' (Gilman, The Saracens, p. 135)

112. i. e., their mode of spending.

113. ——steeped deep as they were in polytheism only a few days back——

114. ——accustomed as they were to acts of murder and rapine——

115. ——addicted as they were by their age-long habits to adulterous conduct——

116. i. e., shall be guilty of any of the vices mentioned above.

117. (thereof). مَثَل signifies 'the requital, or recompense, plural of مَثَل'. (LL)

118. (for ever).
70. (ألا)
(ኣலaaa) (save he who repents) and believes and works righteous works. Then these! for them Allah shall change their vices into virtues. Verily Allah is ever Forgiving. Merciful.

71. (و من ... ماتaa) (And whosoever repents and works righteously, then surely he repents toward Him with a true repentance.

72. (و الذين ... ركماا) (And also those who do not witness falsehood, and when they pass by some vanity pass by with dignity.

73. (و الذين ... عيماا) (And also those who are admonished by the command of Allah, do not fall down thereat, deaf and blind.

74. (و الذين ... إماماا) (And who say: say: O our Lord! bestow on us coolness of eyes from our wives and our offspring, and make us a pattern unto the God-fearing.

75. (أو لك ... سلاا) (Those shall be rewarded with the highest apartment because of their fortitude; and there they shall be met with a greeting and salutation——

76. (خلدون ... معاا) (abiders therein; excellent it is as an abode and as a station.

77. (قل ... لآماا) (Say thou: my Lord does not care for you were it not for your prayer whereas you have ever believed this denial shall come as cleaving punishment.

119. (of his infidelity).

120. (done in the past).

121. i.e., He shall blot out their former rebellion on their repentance, and shall confirm and increase their faith and obedience. ‘God will change their evil deeds by substituting for them good deeds; i.e., will cancel the evil deeds and put in their place good deeds.’ (LL)

122. So He blots out misdeeds.

123. So He bestows grace.

124. (of a particular crime).

125. i.e., takes care to avoid that particular crime.
126. (again as true bondmen of the Compassionate).
127. i. e., neither mixing up with such affairs nor being fussy about them.
128. (but listen to them attentively).
129. This once more reasserts the doctrine that Islam, unlike Christianity, does not regard this world as inherently bad, and does not reject family ties as an impediment to the service of God. Celibacy far from being a handmaid of believers is rather an impediment in His way.
130. i. e., make us so perfect in virtue that our example may be followed by the pious and the virtuous.
131. (in Paradise).
132. (in their faith and religion with constancy).
133. (by the angels).
134. i. e., prayer for everlasting existence.
135. (of welcome).
136. (they will be for ever).
137. (unto mankind, O Prophet!).
138. i. e., if you do not invoke and worship Him.
139. (His prophets, O infidels!).
140. i. e., in the Hereafter.
141. (to them).
Sūrat-ush-Shu'arā

The Poets. XXVI

(Makkan, 11 Sections and 227 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (... <Text not legible>
2. These are the verses of a luminous Book.
3. Perhaps thou shall kill thyself with grief because they do not become believers.
4. If We will, We can send down to them a sign from the heavens so that their necks would become submissive to it.
5. And there comes not to them any fresh admonition from the Compassionate but they are wont to be turning away therefrom.
6. So they have surely belied, so presently there shall appear to them the truth of what they have been mocking at.
7. Do they not observe the earth—how We cause to grow therein every manner of fruit?
8. Verily therein is a sign but most of them are not believers.

141-A. (O Prophet)
142. (in thy extreme solicitude and earnest zeal for their conversion).
143. i.e., the infidels in general, and the pagans of Makkah in particular.
144. Tinged as it is by sheer antipathy and hostility, the testimony of a Christian writer is remarkable:—'In the materialistic commercial town of Mecca, where lust of gain and usury reigned supreme, where women, wine and gambling filled up the leisure time, where might was right, and widows, orphans, and the feeble were treated as superfluous ballast, an unfortunate being like Mohammad, if his constitution were sensitive, must have experienced most painful emotions... Mohammad felt his misery as a pain too great to be endured.' (Hurgronje, Mohammedanism, p. 28)

145. i. e., if it conformed with Our universal scheme to force them to submission.

146. (and they shall have no option but to believe; but this would deprive them of the freedom of their choice, and would make them automata).

147. (and scoffed at the Truth).

148. (so near at hand and so closed to them).

149. (of Our great act of Creation).
9. And verily thy Lord! He is the Mighty, the Merciful.

SECTION 2

10. And re-call when thy Lord said to Mūsā: go thou to an ungody people——

11. the people of Fir'awn; they fear Me not?

12. Mūsā said: Lord! I fear he will belie me;

13. and my breast straitens and my tongue moves not quickly so send for Hārūn;

14. and they have a crime against me; so I fear they shall slay me.

15. Allah said: by no means so go both of you with Our signs; I shall be with you listening.

16. So go both of you to Fir'awn and say: we are the messengers of the Lord of the worlds;

17. send with us the Children of Isrā'īl;

18. Fir'awn said: did we not bring thee up among us as a child and thou stayedest with us many years of thy life?

19. And thou didst the deed thou didst and thou art of the ingrates.

20. Mūsā said: I didst the deed when I was mistaken.

21. Then I fled from you when I feared you, and my Lord bestowed on me judgment and made me one of the envoys.

150. i.e., Able to inflict punishment immediately.

151. So He is granting respite in this world.

152. See P. I. n. 205, P. XVI. n. 271.

153. (even before I have delivered my message).
154. (on such an occasion).
155. ‘And Moses said unto the Lord, O my Lord, I am not eloquent... I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue.’ (Ex. 4:10) According to the rabbinical version, when Moses was a child of three, on a certain occasion, ‘a shining piece of gold, or a precious stone, together with a live coal, was placed on a plate before the boy, to see which of the two he would choose. The angel Gabriel then guided his hand to the coal, which he took up and put into his mouth. This burned his tongue, causing him to stutter.’ (JE. IX. p. 47).
156. (to be my assistant). Aaron by his upbringing and training had already ‘gained a name for eloquent and persuasive speech.’ (JE. I. p. 2) ‘Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well... And he shall be thy spokesman unto the people.’ (Ex. 4:14, 16)
157. i. e., the Egyptians.
158. i. e., the charge of a crime. The allusion is to his accidental killing of an aggressive Egyptian.
159. (before I have time to deliver the message).
160. (can they put thee to death?).
161. (in Our majesty and glory). ‘And he said, Certainly I will be with thee.’ (Ex. 3:12)
162. Mark the Qur’anic word رب العالمين. The messengers are from the ‘Lord of the creatures’ or ‘the Lord of the worlds’, and not from ‘the Lord God of your father’ as repeatedly mentioned in the Bible. (Ex. 3)
163. ‘Now, therefore, behold the cry of the children of Israel is come unto me: and I have also seen the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them. Come now, therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.’ (Ex. 3:9, 10)
164. (after he had heard the speech of Moses).
165. (in the royal palace and reared and educated there). Moses was a highly educated man, according to the Egyptian standard. ‘And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in word and in deeds.’ (Ac. 7:22) ‘Undoubtedly true, though not mentioned in the OT. The wisdom of the Egyptians consisted of natural science, magic, astronomy, medicine and mathematics’ (Dummelow, op. cit., p. 827) Parallel with the earliest physical training, ‘Moses, like other children, had to begin by learning to read and write. In Egypt these accomplishments were not easy of acquirement.’ (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 29) ‘The boyish education of Moses was most likely conducted at the Court, under a pédaagogue or tutor, assisted by various masters, but as he approached towards manhood, he would be sent to one of the two great universities... Nor otherwise would his training have befitted his rank and station’, p. 32).
166. ‘Moses remained in Pharaoh’s house fifteen years longer... Moses was at that time eighteen years of age. According to another version, Moses was then twenty, or possible forty, years of age. These divergent opinions regarding his age at the time when he killed the Egyptian are based upon different estimates of the length of his stay in the royal palace.' (JE. IX. pp. 47, 48).

167. This refers to the undesigned death of an Egyptian at the hands of Moses, of which the details will be found in the Surat-ul-Qaṣaṣ, P. XX. n. 137.

168. i. e., thou art not only a murderer, but also an ungrateful wretch to have killed one of the race that reared thee.

169. i. e., I wanted to punish him for his aggression, and it was only by an accident that he died. حلال is 'Any deviation from that which is right, intentional, or unintentional, little or much.' 'And حلال is not only Erring, but also Forgetting. And امرأة حالة means 'A woman forgetting the days of her menstruation.' (LL) Likewise رأة من الضالين means 'I being of those that forgot.' (LL) The clear defence of Moses is that the murder was neither intentional nor premeditated, and involved no moral guilt.

170. i. e., from your country.

171. (out of His grace).

172. Apostleship of God is incompatible only with deliberate sins and not with accidental mistakes or errors of judgment.
22. (ד تلك ... אמונת) And the favour with which thou didst oblige me was that thou hadst enslaved the Children of Israel.\(^{173}\)

23. ( قال ... الملائكة) Fir’awn said:\(^{174}\) and what is this: Lord of the worlds?\(^{175}\)

24. (قال ... موقرون) Mūsā said: Lord of the heavens and the earth and whatever is in-between, if you seek to be convinced.\(^{176}\)

25. (قال ... تسلمون) Fir’awn said to those around him\(^{177}\) in amazement: do you not hear?\(^{178}\)

26. (قال ... الأولين) Mūsā said: your Lord and Lord of your ancestors.\(^{179}\)

27. (قال ... مجنون) Fir’awn said: the messenger sent to you is mad indeed.\(^{180}\)

28. (قال ... تنطرون) Mūsā said: Lord of the east and the west and whatever is in-between, if you care to understand.\(^{181}\)

29. (قال ... السجنين) Fir’awn said: if thou wilt take a god other than me,\(^{192}\) I shall surely place thee among the prisoners.\(^{183}\)

30. (قال ... مين) Mūsā said: what, even if I bring to thee something evident.\(^{184}\)

31. (قال ... المدينين) Fir’awn said: forth with it then, if thou art of the truth-tellers.

32. (قال ... مين) Then he cast down his rod,\(^{186}\) and it was a serpent manifest.\(^{187}\)

33. (وعز ... الفضيحة) And he drew forth his hand,\(^{188}\) and it was white\(^{189}\) unto the beholders.

SECTION 3

34. (قال ... علم) Fir’awn said to the chiefs around him:\(^{190}\) verily he\(^{191}\) is a magician knowing;\(^{192}\)

173. Moses's retort to the reproach of Pharaoh is this: You consider it a great favour to have saved my life and to have reared me in your palace but pray what was this rearing of mine due to? Was it not due to your wholesale massacres of the Israelite boys that I was cast into the river and you had an occasion to rescue me? Is not your apparent benevolence thus due to your own worst tyranny?

174. (who had no conception of a single, universal Godhead).

175. ما is here synonymous with أي هو, what is it which you call—? what are his attributes? See n. 93 above. And Pharaoh said, who is the Lord, that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? 'I know not the Lord, neither will I let Israel go.' (Ex. 5: 2).

176. Moses is dilating on the universality of the One True God.

177. i. e., his ministers and principal advisers.

178. (how strange and unheard of his ideas are!).

179. i. e., the One Supreme Lord for all ages and all nations. In ancient Egypt, 'even after the unification of the kingdom at the beginning of the Dynastic period, the original subdivisions still existed in the shape of the 'nomes' or provinces, roughly 42 in number, into which the land was divided. Each original tribe possessed its own local god, supreme in his own district; and these gods continued to be worshipped as separate divinities, though they were, in many cases, mere duplicates of those existing in other localities. The Egyptians never attempted to bring any unity out of this confused mass of deities, to reduce to order the conceptions held with regard to them, or to discard their inconsistencies and contradictions.' (ERE. IV. p. 242).

180. (to talk of things so strange and to propound doctrines unheard of).

181. The Egyptians were among the worst polytheists known to history. Universal Godhead was utterly incomprehensible to them. 'The most obvious and striking fact that appeals to the investigator of the Egyptian religion is that enormous numbers of gods hold sway: Ra, Horrnes, Osisis, Isis, Tmu, Amen, Set—, the list extends itself almost endlessly . . . To casual inspection it would seem as if the Egyptian of the later time had no very clear idea himself as to how many gods were really included in the hierarchy, or as to the precise identity of the more important ones. And, indeed, such was probably the fact.' (HHW. I. p. 219). The number of the Egyptian gods was bewildering. 'One modern writer enumerates seventy-three divinities, and gives their several names and forms. Another has a list of sixty-three principal deities, and notes that there were "others which personified the elements, or presided over the operations of nature, the seasons, and events." The Egyptians themselves speak not infrequently of "the thousand gods," sometimes further qualifying them, as the gods male, the gods female, those which belong to the land of Egypt. "Practically, there were before the eyes of worshippers some scores, if not some hundreds, of deities who invited their approach and challenged their affections." (Rawlinson, Ancient Egypt, pp. 30-31).

182. Moses and Aaron 'had to present themselves before a king, who, by the long-established usage of the country, was looked upon as "a god upon earth,"
"the good god," and "the great god," and who inherited from his father the idea that he was actually on a par with the greatest of the recognised divinities." (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 88) 'Egypt is remarkable for the extraordinary realistic way in which it depicted the dogma that the Pharaoh was the visible-god, begotten by the god, and the divine begetter of his wife's children.' (UHW. I. p. 646) 'As the great Pharaonic State arose, the impressive figure of the sovereign profoundly influenced religion; the forms of the State passed over into human conceptions of the gods, and the Sun-god, the greatest of them all, was conceived as a Pharaoh ruling the other divinities.' (EBR. XII. p. 77) 'The Pharaoh was a god upon earth. Like the Incas of Peru, he belonged to the solar race, and the blood which flowed in his veins was the ichor of the gods... The supreme sovereign, the Pharaoh... was a veritable god on earth. To his subjects he was the source, not only of material benefits but of spiritual blessings as well. He was "the good god," the beneficent dispenser of all good things. The power of life and death was in his hand, and rebellion against him was rebellion against the god.' (Sayce, Religion of the Ancient Egypt, pp. 42, 44) See also P. XX. n. 207, P. XXX. n. 75.

183. The words in this form are a more terrible menace than a mere 'I will imprison thee,' for they conveyed to Moses (peace be on him) that he must expect to keep company with those wretches whom the tyrant had thrown, as was his custom, into a deep dungeon, where they remained till they died. (Bdh)

184. (addicted to magic as thou art).

185. (and convincing to thee, by way of miracle).

186. The Bible, wrong and muddled as usual, attributes this miracle instead of Moses to Aaron. (Ex. 7: 9, 10).

188. (from the folds of the garment on his bosom).

189. (and radiant with divine light). Also see P. IX. n. 49.

190. (as they also made a similar remark to him). 'The fact is that it was a general consensus, and this was the general feeling, expressed in words by each to the others.' (AYA).

191. (pretender to the office of a prophet).

192. i.e., expert; well-versed. The only assumption on which the Egyptians could explain the superiority of Moses.
35. (يريد ... تأمر) he would drive you out of your land through his magic.\(^{193}\) what is it then that you command?

36. (قالوا ... خبرين) They said: put him off\(^{194}\) and his brother,\(^{195}\) and\(^{196}\) send callers\(^{197}\) to the cities;\(^{198}\)

37. (يأنكر ... هوى) that they may bring to thee every magician knowing.\(^{199}\)

38. (جمع ... مسلم) So the magicians were assembled at a set time on a day made known.\(^{200}\)

39. (وقيل ... مجتمعين) And it was said to the people: are you going to assemble?\(^{201}\)

40. (لما ... النبلين) Likely we are to follow\(^{202}\) the magicians,\(^{203}\) if they are the winners.

41. (فلا ... النبلين) Then when the magicians came they said to Fir‘awn: will there be a big reward for us if we are the winners?

42. ( قال ... المقربين) He said: Yea;\(^{204}\) and\(^{205}\) you shall be of those brought nigh.\(^{206}\)

43. (قال ... مسلمون) Mūsā said to them: cast down what you have to cast.

44. (قالوا ... الخلون) Then they cast their ropes and their staves, and said: by the might of Fir‘awn we shall be the victors.\(^{207}\)

45. (قالوا ... يكون) Then Mūsā cast his rod, and lo! it swallowed up what they had invented.\(^{208}\)

46. (قالوا ... ضحيين) Then the magicians\(^{209}\) flung themselves prostrate.

47. (قالوا ... نبلين) They said: we now believe in the Lord of the worlds—

48. (رب ... هرون) the Lord of Mūsā and Hārūn.

193. (and make his community the master of Egypt). So the issue according to Pharaoh was wholly political.
194. (for a while).
195. (by fair promises) A device well-known to the politicians all the world over.
196. (in the meantime).
197. Or 'rounders-up.' حائر is 'One who congregates, or collects together people.' (LL)
198. (of your empire). Expert magicians were scattered through the empire.
199. حار is an intensive form of حار, denoting habit or frequency.
200. 'The Pharaoh also called the wise men and the sorcerers.' (Ex. 7:11)
Also see P. XVI, n. 330.
201. (to witness the glory of the State religion and the discomfiture of these pretenders).
202. (in religion).
203. Who were also the priests of the Egyptian religion.
204. (to be sure).
205. (over and above that reward).
206. (to my person and throne).
207. See P. IX, nn. 64, 65; P. XVI. n. 338.
208. See P. IX. n. 68; P. XVI. 342.
209. (recognizing in Moses the Divine messenger and confessing the One True God).
49. ( قال...) Fir'awn\(^{210}\) said: you believed ere I gave you leave. Surely he is your chief\(^{211}\) who taught you magic; so you shall surely come to know\(^{212}\) I shall certainly cut off your hands and feet on opposite sides,\(^{213}\) and certainly I shall crucify you all.\(^{214}\)

50. (قالوا...) They said:\(^{215}\) no harm! verily to our Lord we are to return;\(^{216}\)

51. (نَا...) we long that our Lord shall forgive us our faults as we have been the first ofbelievers.\(^{217}\)

SECTION 4

52. (و ارِجِنا...) My bondmen;\(^{219}\) certainly you will be pursued.\(^{220}\)

53. (فَارَسَلَ...حَرَضَ) Then Fir'awn sent callers to the cities:

54. (أَنَّ...قَلَونُ) Verily these are but a small band;\(^{221}\)

55. (وَهُمْ...نَافَجَرُونُ) and verily they have enraged us;\(^{222}\)

56. (وَنَا...خَذَرُونَ) and we are the host well-provided.\(^{223}\)

57. (فَخَطَفْنَاهُمْ...عَبْرِهِنَّ) Then We drove them\(^{224}\) from gardens and streams;

58. (وَكَنْزٍ...كَرِيمٍ) and treasures and a noble station.

59. (كَذَلِكْ...إِسْرَائِيلِ) Even so.\(^{225}\) And We caused the Children of Israel to inherit them.\(^{226}\)

60. (فَأَفْتُمِمْهَا...شَرَنِقْ) And\(^{227}\) they pursued them\(^{228}\) at sunrise.

61. (فَلَنَّا...لَدَيْهَا) And when the two parties saw each other the companions of Müsä said: verily we are overtaken.\(^{229}\)

\(^{210}\) (to the magicians, in his extreme discomfiture and to save his face before his people).

\(^{211}\) Or 'master.'

\(^{212}\) (what happens to you at my hands).

\(^{213}\) The right hand and the left foot, for example.
214. ‘... with far greater reason may we say of the ancient Egyptians, they, notwithstanding the veneer of civilization which they for the most part present to our observation, there was in their nature, even at the best of times, an underlying ingrained barbarism which could not be concealed, but was continually showing itself.’ (Rawlinson, Ancient Egypt, p. 267) See also P. IX. n. 79.

215. (in the spirit of valiant martyrs).

216. The magicians now by their firm hold of the Truth found themselves consciously right, superior and confident.

217. (in this assembly).

218. (on the eve of the exodus).

219. (out of Egypt). ‘It is a night to be much observed unto the Lord for bringing them out from the land of Egypt: this is that night of the Lord to be observed of all the children of Israel in their generations.’ (Ex. 12: 42).

220. (by Pharaoh, and his host).

221. Pharaoh is referring contemptuously to the ‘contemptible little company’ of the Israelites.

222. (by their rebellion).

223. signifies, ‘in a state of preparation, or in a state of preparation with the accoutrements of war; or cautious, or vigilant.’ (LL)

224. i. e., the pagan Egyptians.

225. i. e., in this way We dispossessed them of their wealth and conveniences.

226. (in Palestine). The pronoun la refers to gardens, etc. in general only, and does not imply their existence in Egypt. But even if it may be taken to refer to the riches of the country of Egypt the reference is not inapt as some of the Christian critics of Qurʾān have sought to make out. ‘When the national life of Israel in Palestine ceased, an important section of the people, carrying with them the prophet Jeremiah, wandered back to Egypt. Thus, for the second time, Egypt became the home of the Jewish race, and much of later Jewish history was made upon its soil. To what importance the Jews attained here can best be inferred from legends concerning them, originating in other countries. An Ethiopic apocryphal book contains a legend respecting Jeremiah which narrates that, in answer to a prayer of the prophet, the reptiles of the dry land and the crocodiles of the rivers were exterminated.’ (JE. I p. 225) ‘Egypt, according to the testimony of Philo, was inhabited, as far as the borders of Lybia and Ethiopia, by Jews whose numbers were estimated at a million.’ (p. 226) During a still later period ‘Egypt had become, as it were, a second holy land for Judaism.’ (p. 227)

227. The narrative is here resumed after three parenthetical verses.

228. i. e., the Israelites. ‘The Egyptians pursued after them, all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, and his army.’ (Ex. 14: 9)

229. ‘And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and, behold, the Egyptians marched after them; and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel cried out unto the Lord. And they said unto Moses, because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? Wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt?’ (Ex. 14: 10, 11)

And we delivered Musa and those with him 86

And we brought them the others one by one. 87

So it became separated, and each part was like a mighty mountain. 88

Then we revealed to Musa: Smite thou the sea with thy rod so I 89

He asked: by no means! with me is my Lord. He 90
Moses said unto the people, Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord, which he will show to you to-day. . . . The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace.' (Ex. 14:13, 14).

232. 'Lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it.' (Ex. 14:16).

233. 'And the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.' (Ex. 14:22).

234. i.e., the Egyptians. 'And the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them to the midst of the sea.' (Ex. 14:23).

235. i.e., 'The children of Israel walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea. . . Thus the Lord saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians.' (Ex. 14:30).

236. 'And the waters returned, and covered the chariots, and the horsemen, and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them; there remained not so much as one of them.' (Ex. 14:28).

98. (إِذْ أَهْزِمْنَاهُ) when we equalled you with the Lord of the worlds.
99. (وَمَا كَانَ مِنْهُمَا) And none led us astray except the culprits.
100. (فَبَعْلَانِي وَشَاهِدَانِ) So none we have as intercessors;
101. (دُلُّوا ... حَمِيم) nor any loving friend.
102. (مَوْلُوْدَانِ) Were there for us a return, we would be of the believers.
103. (وَأَنَّ مَوْلَأَنِينَ) Verily in this story is a sign, yet most of them are not believers.
104. (وَأَنَّ الْرَّحْمَ) And truly thy Lord! He is the Mighty, the Merciful.

SECTION 6

105. (ذَكَرْنَاهُمُ الرُّسُلُ) And Nūh’s people belied Our envoys;
106. (إِذْ تَطَوَّقُونَ) when their brother Nūh said to them: fear you not?
107. (أَيْاً ... هَمِين) Verily I am unto you a trusted messenger;
108. (فَأَقْلَآتَا ... وَجَعَلْنَاهُ) so fear Allah and obey me.
109. (فَدَمَ اسْتَكَبْرَ اللَّيْنِ) And I ask of you no wage for it; my wage is but with the Lord of the worlds.
110. (فَأَقْلَآتَا ... وَجَعَلْنَاهُ) So fear Allah and obey me.
111. (قَالُوا ... الْأَرْذُلَانِ) They said: shall we believe in thee when the meanest of us are thy followers?
112. (قَالُوا ... يَسَانِ) He said: I have no knowledge of what they have been working.
260. (to their false gods).
261. i. e., the ringleaders in rebellion and contumacy.
262. (into the world).
263. i. e., in this story of Abraham, or in the fact of Resurrection.
264. See P. VIII. nn. 509, 510; P. XII. n. 70.
265. i. e., the leaders and chiefs of the nation.
266. The infidels' objection is: Look at thy following. They are only commoners, plebians. How can we be expected to be at one with them?
267. i. e., of their professions and of their status.
113. (an ... támūra) their reckoning is upon my Allah, if you but know;

114. (madu ... muwafiqīn) and I am not to drive away the believers.

115. (an ... imn) I am not but a manifest warner.

116. (fa'llu ... al-jāmīn) They said : if thou desistest not, thou shalt be of those stoned.

117. (fa'llu ... khaḍiru) He said: Lord! my people have belied me.

118. (fa'llu ... muwafiqīn) So decide Thou between us and them, and deliver me and those who are with me of the believers.

119. (fa'llu ... al-muhabbin) Therefore We delivered him and those with him in a laden ark.

120. (tham ... al-bīn) Then We drowned the rest thereafter.

121. (an ... muwafiqīn) Verily in this story is a sign: yet most of them are not believers.

122. (wa'an ... al-rūh) And thy Lord! He is the Mighty, the Merciful.

SECTION 7

123. (kundu ... al-masā'irīn) The 'Aad belied our envoys;

124. (ad-dal ... taqūn) when their brother Hūd said to them: fear you not?

125. (an ... al-'imān) Verily I am unto you a trusted messenger;

126. (fa'tu ... wa-al-mujāzīn) so fear Allah and obey me;

127. (wa ... al-lālīn) and I ask of you no wage for it; my wage is but with the Lord of the worlds.

268. (if they are insincere, and are feigning belief in prospect of some worldly advantage).

269. (as you suggest me to do in order to win you over).

270. i.e., ark filled with living creatures. See P. XII. n. 104.

271. i.e., in the ultimate triumph of Noah and the destruction of his rebellious people.

272. (of Our power).

273. See P. VIII. n. 523.
128. (اتنون... تبون) Do you build on every eminence a landmark in vanity?
129. (وتخدون... تخدون) And do you take for yourselves castles that perhaps you may abide?
130. (ردا... جارين) And when you seize you seize like unto tyrants.
131. (قفاوا... واطعون) So fear Allah and obey me.
132. (قفاوا... تلونون) And fear Him who has aided you with all that you know.
133. (امدكم... وبين) He has aided you with the cattle and sons;
134. (وحدكم... وعون) and gardens and springs.
135. (إن... مطم) Verily I fear for you the torment of a mighty Day.
136. (قفاوا... الرعون) They said: it is equal to us whether thou admonishest or art thou not of the admonishers.
137. (آن... الاكين) This is but a custom of the ancients; and we are not going to be tormented.
138. (وما... بمدين) And they belied him; so We destroyed them.
139. (نكذبكم... ومدين) Verily in this story is a sign; yet most of them are not believers.
140. (وان... الرقم) And verily thy Lord! He is the Might, the Merciful.

SECTION 8

141. (كذب... المرسلين) The Thamûd belied our envoys;
142. (اذ قال... تنفرن) when their brother Sâlih said unto them: fear you not?
143. (إن... آمن) Verily I am unto you a trusted messenger.
144. (قفاوا... واطعون) So fear Allah and obey me.

274. i. e., a monument indicative of splendour and commemorating deeds of valianec.
275. (therein for ever).
276. (any creature of God).
277. i.e., with utter callousness, and not at all with a view to amending and reforming the offender.
278. i.e., with gifts both material and immaterial.
279. (both in your individual and collective capacity).
280. 'The 'Aad lived in the most fertile part of Arabia, viz. Yaman and Ḥadramaut, spreading from the coasts of the Persian Gulf to the then borders of Mesopotamia.
281. The form of the words implies: We have had plenty of admonishers like you.
282. (preaching of yours).
283. This sounds curiously similar to the modern contempt for every 'revivalist' movement.
284. i.e., in the ultimate destruction of the rejectors.
285. See P. VIII. n. 542.
And I ask you no wage for it, my wage is but with the Lord of the worlds.

Will ye be left secure in what is before us;

in gardens and springs;

and cornfields and palm-trees of which the spathes are fine?

And do you hew out in the rocks houses skilfully?

so fear Allah and obey me.

And do not follow the bidding of the extravagant, who act corruptly in the land and do not rectify.

They said: thou art but one of the bewitched.

Thou art but a human being like us. So bring thou a sign if thou art of the truthful.

He said: yonder is a she-camel; to her is a drink, and to you is a drink, each on a day known.

And do not touch her with an evil, lest there take hold of you the torment of a mighty Day.

Then they hamstrung her; then they became regretful.

So the chastisement overtook them. Verily in this story is a sign, yet most of them are not believers.

And verily thy Lord! He is the Mighty, the Merciful.
287. See Şurat-ul-ʿAraf, verse 74. (P. VIII).

288. The Thamudites, like modern nations of Europe, were great artists and architects. See P. VIII. n. 548.

289. i. e., of those who exceed the ordinances of God.

290. (and as such cannot be a prophet). A mere mortal, who is neither a demi-god nor an angel, cannot be expected in the polytheistic ideologies to be a conveyer of any Divine message.

291. i. e., a wonder; a miracle.

292. See P. VIII. n. 546 ff.

293. (at their want of belief and piety, as they perceived the doom).

294. (of His might and majesty).
SECTION 9

160. Then people of Lut belied Our envoys;

161. (اذ قال . . . تعون) When their brother Lut said to them: fear you not?

162. (إِنَّا لِلَّهِ وَإِنَّنَا إِيَاهُ) Verily I am unto you a trusted messenger.

163. (فَلَوْ كَانَ لَكُمْ مِنَ الْخَبَرِينَ) So fear Allah and obey me.

164. (وَلَمْ يَشْتَقِّهَا) And I ask of you no wage for it; my wage is but with the Lord of the worlds.

165. (وَذَٰلِكَ لَآيَةٌ لِّلنَّاسِ) Do you go in, of all creatures, unto the males?

166. (أَنْ تُنْزِرُوا . . . عَدْنَى) And do you leave your spouses your Lord has created for you? Aye! you are a people trespassing.

167. (فَنَبَّأْنَاهُمْ) They said: if thou desistest not, O Lut! thou shalt be of those driven forth.

168. (وَقَالَ الْأُثْمَانُ) He said: verily I am of those who abhor what you do.

169. (رَبَّ . . . يَعْلُونَ) Lord! deliver me and my household from what they work.

170. (فَسُحْدَرَنَا) So We delivered him and his household all;

171. (وَلَا . . . النَّامِعْ) save an old woman among the lingerers.

172. (ثُمَّ . . . الأَخْرَى) Thereafter We annihilated the rest.

173. (وَعَطَرَتْنَا . . . المُدَذِّرِينَ) And We rained on them a rain—ill was the rain on those warned.

174. (وَأَنَّ هَذَا نَزْعِيَةٌ) Verily in this story is a sign yet most of them are not believers.

175. (وَأَنَّ رَبِّي الْعَزِيزِ) And verily thy Lord! He is the Mighty, the Merciful.

See P. VIII. nn. 561, 562.
296. Like many of the moderns, Lot's people were addicted to sexual perversities, specially homo-sexuality. See P. VIII. n. 564.

297. (all limits) See P. VIII. n. 565.

298. (from thy sermonising).

299. See P. VIII. n. 567. 'Banishment... is the punishment of expelling an offender from his native land... The easiest way, short of summary execution, to rid the State of an evil-doer was to expel him from its boundaries. We find evidence of this in the records of all ancient nations.' (ERE. II. p. 346).

300. (and so do not expect that my remonstrances and denunciations will ever cease).

301. When the frightful eruption shook the Jordan Valley, when on that distant morning the mountains fell apart to form the semi-tropical cleft that runs north into Galilee, Lot's wife, unable to bring herself to part from the ease and the comfort of the good days, and disregarding the command, 'Look not behind thee', paused in her flight. She turned to gaze back on the city, wishing perhaps that she could run back and take something from the burning walls of her home. And in that unfortunate moment she became the pillar. (Morton, Women of the Bible, p.29) Salt formations are common near the Southern end of the Dead Sea. Jobel Usdum, 'Mount Sodom', is a ridge of rock salt, 5 m. long and several hundred feet high. Near its base are numerous detached pinnacles of salt, and at different times particular pillars have been popularly identified with Lot's wife. (NSBD. p. 522).

304. i.e., in this wholesale destruction of a wicked people.

305. (of God's judgment).
SECTION 10

176. (اذ قل ... الملسمين) The dwellers of the wood belied Our envoys.

177. (اذ قل ... تنون) When their brother Shu‘a‘ib said to them: fear you not?

178. (أي ... أمين) Verily I am unto you a trusted messenger;

179. (قالوا ... والطيمون) so fear Allah and obey me.

180. (وما ... الظلمين) And I ask you no wage; my wage is but with the Lord of the worlds.

181. (أومنوا ... الخضرين) Give full measure, and be not of those who cause others to lose.

182. (وزنوا ... المسمم) And weigh with a straight balance.

183. (ولا ... الخادنين) And defraud not people of their things, and commit not corruption on the earth.

184. (وافقوا ... الأولين) So fear Him who created you and the former generations.

185. (قالوا ... المحرنين) They said: thou art but of the bewitched.

186. (وما ... الظلمين) And thou art but a human being like us, and we consider thou to be of the liars.

187. (فأسفظ ... الصدقين) So cause thou a fragment of the sky to fall upon us, if thou art of the truthful.

188. (قال ... تعملون) He said: My Lord is the Best Knower of what you work.

189. (فكذبوه ... عظيم) Then they belied him. Wherefore there seized them torment of the day of shadow. Verily it was the torment of a mighty Day.

306. (near Madyan). ًًًًًًًً signifies ‘The thicket, or collection of tangled trees, or the tangles of luxuriant, or abundant and dense trees.’ (LL) See P. VIII. n. 575; P. XVII. n. 392.

317. 'The punishment of the day of clouds beneath which was a hot wind; or an overshadowing cloud, beneath which they collected themselves together, seeking protection thereby from the heat that came upon them, whereupon it covered them, and they perished beneath it.' (LL)

318. According to the commentators, God first plagued them for seven days with such intolerable heat that all their waters were dried up, and then brought a cloud over them, whose shade they eagerly sought, when they were all destroyed by a hot wind and fire which proceeded from it.
Verily in this\textsuperscript{319} story is a sign;\textsuperscript{320} yet most of them are not believers.

And verily thy Lord! He is the Mighty, the Merciful.

SECTION 11

Verily it\textsuperscript{321} is a revelation of the Lord of the worlds.

The Trusted Spirit\textsuperscript{322} has brought it down;\textsuperscript{323} upon thy heart,\textsuperscript{324} that thou mayest be of the warners.\textsuperscript{325}

in plain Arabic speech.\textsuperscript{326}

And verily it\textsuperscript{327} is\textsuperscript{328} in the Scriptures of the ancients.\textsuperscript{329}

Is it not an evidence\textsuperscript{330} with them\textsuperscript{331} that the learned among the Children of Isra'\textsuperscript{332} know it?

And had We Revealed it to any of the non-Arabs,\textsuperscript{333} and he had read it unto them,\textsuperscript{334} even then they\textsuperscript{335} would not have been believers in it.

In this wise We have made way for it\textsuperscript{336} into the hearts of the culprits.

They will not believe in it\textsuperscript{337} until they see the afflictive torment.\textsuperscript{338}

It shall come unto them suddenly, and they will not perceive.\textsuperscript{339}

Then\textsuperscript{340} they will say: are we to be respited?

Do they then wish to hurry\textsuperscript{341} Our chastisement?

Think!\textsuperscript{342} if We let them enjoy\textsuperscript{343} for years;

320. (of the vindication of His apostles).
321. i. e., the Holy Qur'ān.
322. i. e., the angel Gabriel, who is entrusted with the divine revelations.
323. (so that there is no possibility of any tampering with the Holy Text).
324. (O Prophet! so that the Divine Message is exactly, accurately imprinted on thy mind).
325. (like the prophets of old to their own nation). The holy Prophet of Islam had a double office. He was, like all other prophets, an apostle to his nation, the Arabians. And he was an apostle to the mankind in general. The argument that is here being developed refers to his first aspect, and it is the pagans of Arabia that are here directly addressed.
326. Which has also been the language of the holy patriarchs and of the ancient Hebrews. 'One might assume, as some scholars have done, that the Israelites' language in patriarchal times was Aramaic. Hommel maintains that Aramaic was but an Arabic dialect; and that originally the Israelites spoke Arabic.' (JE. VI. p. 307) 'The Arabic language is on the whole nearest to the primitive Semitic speech as it is by far the oldest and purest of all living tongues and its speakers in Arabia belong to the oldest and purest of races.' (DB. V. p. 87).
327. i. e., the Holy Qur'ān.
328. i. e., has found honourable mention.

331. i. e., the Makkans pagans.
332. i. e., the learned Jews themselves know and acknowledge that the advent of the Prophet of Islam is foretold in their sacred books. Some amongst the Jews not only encouraged the Prophet 'in the idea that he might be' but 'even affirmed that he was that Prophet whom the Lord their God should raise up unto them of their brethren.' (Muir, op. cit., p. 98).
333. (and he being a non-Arab, the miracle of the excellence of the language of the Qur'ān would have been all the greater).
334. (as a teacher and expositor).
335. i. e., the Makkans pagans.
336. i. e., obstinate infidelity.

207. those shall not avail them what they enjoyed.
208. Not a city We destroyed but it had its warners;
209. by way of admonition, and We have never been unjust.
210. And it is not the devils who have brought it down.
211. Neither it behoves them, nor they can.
212. Verily very far from its hearing are they removed.
213. So call not thou upon another god along with Allah lest thou be doomed
214. And warn thou thy clan, the nearest ones.
215. And behave thou with meekness towards those who follow thee as believers.
216. And if they disobey thee, say thou: I am quit of what you do.
217. And rely upon the Mighty, the Merciful.
218. Who sees thee when thou stand up;
219. and thy movement among those who fall prostrate.
220. Verily He! He is the Hearer, the Knower.
221. Shall declare to you upon whom the devils descend?
222. They descend upon every calumniator, sinner.
223. who give ear, and most of them are liars.

344. i.e., the doom.
345. (of this life).
346. (so as to inflict punishment without ample warning).

347. (as to the Makkans imagine).

348. i. e., a Book so elevating.

349. How is it possible that devils should have anything to do with a Book so lofty in its conception, so perfect in its execution, and so excellent in its teachings?

350. (produce such a Book even if they willed). The pagans maintained that the Qur’an was prompted by the devils. The Qur’an answers, that, in the first place, it was preposterous to assume that the propagators of darkness would prompt a Book that is Light in its entirety; and, secondly, it was beyond their powers, even if they willed. Neither it is meet for them, nor it is within their power.

351. (the discourse of the angels in heaven).

352. (in the first place, O Prophet!).

353. ‘What is very striking in the religious career of Muhammad,’ remarks an eminent Orientalist, ‘at the beginning of his activity, is that the first converts he made were among the members of his own family and relatives. I believe that he is the only founder of religion who had the privilege of gaining to his cause those nearest to him either through blood or through close connection.’ (Edouard Montet, quoted in Dr. Zaki Ali’s Islam in the World, p. 5) ‘The missionary spirit of Islam is no after-thought in its history; it interpenetrates the religion from its beginning,’ says another Christian scholar, ‘As soon as the Prophet was convinced of his divine mission, his earliest efforts were directed towards persuading his own family of the truth of the new doctrine. . . . The first convert was his faithful and loving wife Khadijah. . . . Among the earliest believers were his adopted children Zayd and ‘Ali, and his bosom friend Abū Bakr.’ (Arnold, Preaching of Islam, pp. 11-12) ‘The life of the Prophet himself presented, for succeeding generations, an example of Muslim missionary activity. When he began his prophetic career, his first efforts were directed towards persuading his own family; his earliest converts were his wife, Khadijah, his adopted children, Zaid and ‘Ali, and some members of his immediate circle.’ (ERE. VIII. p. 746).

354. Lit., And lower thou thy wings.

355. (and accept thy warning).

356. (and reject thy warning).

357. i.e., I am free of responsibility for your doings.

358. (disregarding the threats of thy powerful enemies).

359. (for prayer).

360. (in prayer and outside it).
361. (in prayer) i.e., Who watches thee when thou risest up to spend the night in prayer and devotion and thy solicitude for the Muslims' exact observance of their duty.

362. ——say thou, O Prophet!——

363. (O people!).

364. (who according to your malicious suggestion have inspired the Qur'ān).

365. A description diametrically opposed to the holy, pure, and virtuous life of the Prophet, and exactly fitting his opponents.

366. (to the words of the devils).

367. (by nature or by habit).
As for the poets, it is the deluded who follow them.

Dost thou not see, that they wander aimlessly in every vale.

and that they say, what they do not act.

save those who believe and work righteous deeds and remember Allah much and vindicate themselves after they have been wronged. And those who do wrong shall presently come to know by what overturning they are being overturned.

Who, in pagan Arabia, were held in esteem and awe. The poets, when under inspiration, were believed to be under the power of Jinn. This gave them great distinction. They were, before Islam, often the leaders and representatives of those tribes. Honour was accorded them, not from appreciation of intellectual endowment or of artistic genius but because of their uncanny connection with the supernatural. (ERE. X. p. 135) ‘The poets,’ in Arabia, were the ‘men of knowledge’ for their people. Their incantations held good as oracles, first of all for their several tribes, but no doubt extending their influence often beyond their own particular septs.’ (De Boer, History of Philosophy in Islam, p. 2) ‘As his office developed the poet acquired a variety of functions. In battle his tongue was as effective as his people’s bravery. In peace he might prove a menace to public order by his fiery harangues. His poems might arouse a tribe to action in the same manner as the tirade of a demagogue in a modern political campaign. As the press agent, the journalist, of his day his favour was sought by princely gifts, as the records of the courts of al-Hirah and al-Ghassān show. He was . . . . , both moulder and agent of public opinion. Qat al-lisān (cutting off the tongue) was the formula used for ‘subsidizing him and avoiding his satires.’ (Hitti, op. cit., pp. 94-95).

i. e., those straying in the course of evil; the wicked; those having no relation with the realities of life.

(in their wild fancies, bereft of their sense of reality).

(O reader!).

i. e., the poets.
373. i.e., always indulging in fancies and phantasms divorced from real life. The Arab poets very often painted a vicious thing so vividly and alluringly as to excite passions and to darken the intellect. Poetry unless kept under control by reason or Revelation, is apt to lead to mental unbalance and hysteria, and is the fountain-head of false values.

374. i.e., living in an imaginary world of their own their deeds do not at all conform with their professions.

375. (of the poets).

376. (in their poetry; thus vindicating the religion of God thereby).

377. (even in their satirical invectives when overpowered by grave provocation). Poetry, with its usual concomitant of imagination running riot, is condemned outright. An exception is made in favour of such poets as enjoin the true faith and piety and vindicate and promulgate the religion of God or write satirical verse in sheer self-defence.

378. (among the infidels).

379. (to their own souls by their impiety and irreligion).
Sūrat-un-Naml

The Ant. XXVII

(Makkan, 7 Sections and 93 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (طب ... مبين) Tā. Sīn. These are the verses of the Qur'ān and a Book luminous—

2. (هم ... الظلمين) a guidance and glad tidings to the believers;

3. (الذين ... القرآن) who establish the prayer and pay the poor-rate, and of the Hereafter they are convinced.

4. (ان الذين ... يضرون) Verily those who do not believe in the Hereafter —fair-seeming to them We have made their works, so that they wander perplexed.

5. (اولئك ... الاخسرون) Those are they for whom there will be an ill chastisement, and in the Hereafter they will be the greatest losers.

6. (ر انك ... علم) And surely thou art receiving the Qur'ān from before the Wise, the Knowing.

380. See P. I. n. 28.
381. (bereft of all peace and tranquillity of mind).
382. (at their death).
383. (never to be redeemed).
384. (O Prophet!).
385. —— a gift so precious ——
386. (so in contemplation of this, the highest gift, do not grieve over the fate of the infidels)
7. Re-call when Musa came to his household and said: verily I see a fire afar; I shall forthwith bring you tidings thereof, or bring you a brand lighted therefrom, haply you may warm yourselves.

8. Then when he came to it, he was cried unto thus: Blessed is whosoever is in the fire and whosoever is around it, and hallowed be Allah, the Lord of the worlds.

9. O Musa! it is really I, Allah, the Mighty, the Wise.

10. And cast down thy rod. Then when he saw it wriggling as though it was a serpent, he turned in flight and did not look back. Musa! do not be alarmed, in My presence the sent ones do not fear; excepting any who may have done wrong and thereafter changes evil for good, then verily I am Forgiving, Merciful.

11. And put thy hand into thy bosom: it shall come forth white, without any hurt: among nine signs to Fir'awn and his people. Verily they have been a people transgressing.

12. Then when Our signs came to them illuminating, they said: this is a magic manifest.

387. The night was dark and snowy. See P. XVI. n. 258.
388. (regarding our way) Moses had lost his way.
389. See P. XVI. n. 257.
390. (by a voice).
391. i.e., chosen of God; recipient of special favour from Him.
392. (of the angels).
393. i.e., Moses.
394. i.e., far removed from being circumscribed by space.
395. How foolish of men then to identify such a One with fire! This required special emphasis in view of the very extensive cult of Fire.' Fire-worshippers were found in many lands and civilizations. To-day the chief cults based upon fire-worship are those of the Parsees. Fire also plays an important part in Hiduism.'
(Law, Romance of Fire, pp. 10, 11). See also P. XXVII. n. 402.
396. (calling unto you, and not fire).
397. i.e., above all conditions; and not fire, which is a material physical object.
398. See P. XVI. n. 266.
399. See P. XVI. n. 267.
400. (and therefore he apprehends God's anger).
401. (as was the case with Moses who had undesignedly killed an Egyptian).
402. (of thy robe). چب is an 'opening at the neck and bosom of a shirt and the like.' (LL).
403. 'And the Lord said unto Moses... And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, and multiply my signs and my wonders in the land of Egypt.' (Ex. 7: 1-3).

405. 'And when Our signs came to them, making them to have sight, or to have mental perception, or knowledge, or skill, explained by یسر or giving light; shining; or illuminating; or being conspicuous, manifest, or evident.' (LL).
406. (denying the divine origin of these miracles altogether).
And they gainsaid them,⁴⁰⁷ out of spite and arrogance,⁴⁰⁸ although their souls were convinced thereof.⁴⁰⁹ So behold! what has been the end of the corruptors.⁴¹⁰

SECTION 2

And assuredly We vouchsafed to Dā'ūd and Sulaymān, a knowledge,⁴¹¹ and the twain said:⁴¹² praise be to Allah who has preferred us⁴¹³ to many⁴¹⁴ of His believing bondmen!⁴¹⁵

And Sulaymān inherited from Dā'ūd,⁴⁴⁶ and he said: O mankind! we⁴¹⁷ have been taught the language of birds,⁴¹⁸ and we have been vouchsafed of everything,⁴²⁰ and surely this is an evident grace.⁴²¹

And there were gathered unto Sulaymān his hosts of jinns and mankind and birds,⁴²² and they were set in bands.⁴²³

And when they came to the valley of the ants,⁴²⁴ an ant⁴²⁵ said: ants! enter your habitations lest Sulaymān and his hosts may crush you⁴²⁶ while they perceive not.⁴²⁷

⁴⁰⁷. i.e., those manifest signs.

⁴⁰⁸. Or, in the language of the Bible, through their hard-heartedness. See Ex. 7, 8, 9, 10.

⁴⁰⁹. ‘And Pharaoh sent, and called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them, I have sinned this time: the Lord is righteous, and I and my people are wicked. Entreat the Lord (for it is enough) that there be no more mighty thunderings and hail. . . And when Pharaoh saw that the rain and the hail and the thunders were ceased, he sinned yet more and hardened his heart. he and his servants.’ (Ex. 9: 27, 28, 34).

⁴¹⁰. (both in this world and the Hereafter).

⁴¹¹. (of Divine laws and worldly wisdom) Cf. the OT:—‘And God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and largeness of heart, even as the sand that is on the seashore. And Solomon’s wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of the east country, and all the wisdom of Egypt. For he was wiser than all men... And his fame was in all nations round about.’ (1, Ki. 4: 29-31) ‘Solomon is particularly extolled by the Rabbis for having asked in his dream nothing besides wisdom, which they declare served him as a shield against sinful thoughts. In this respect Solomon’s wisdom was even superior to that of his father.’ (JE. XI. p. 439) See also P. XVII. n. 168.

412. (in grateful acknowledgment of God’s favours).
413. (by gifts and favours, both spiritual and temporal; by making us prophets as well as great kings).
414. ‘Many’ but not all, as some of His prophets are superior even to David and Solomon (peace be on them!).
415. This is to emphasize the highly religious and moral character of these two prophets of God, and to defend them against the blasphemous charges levelled against them in the Bible.
416. (his material kingdom as well as his spiritual eminence). ‘Now the days of David drew nigh that he should die; and he charged Solomon his son, saying, I go the way of all the earth: be thou strong therefore, and show thyself a man... Then sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and his kingdom was established greatly.’ (1, Ki. 2: 1, 2, 12) ‘Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father, and prospered; and all Israel obeyed him.’ (1, Ch. 29: 23).
417. ‘there is a plural of majesty, and does not imply that there were others besides Solomon who knew the language of birds.
418. (by special grace of God).
419. ‘And all the earth sought to Solomon, to hear his wisdom, which God had put in his heart.’ (1 Ki. 10: 24) ‘He wandered into the fields, and he heard the voices of the animals; the ass brayed, the lion roared, the dog barked, the rooster crowed, and behold he understood what they said, over the other.’ (Polano, op. cit., p. 196) ‘Solomon was the wise king par excellence... He is said to have understood the languages of the beasts and the birds.’ (JE. XI. p. 439). See also P. XVII. n. 168.
420. (requisite for the ruler of a great empire) ‘So king Solomon exceeded all the kings of the earth for riches and for wisdom... And they brought every man his present, vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and garments, and armor, and spices, horse, and mules, a rate year by year.’ (1, Ki. 10: 23, 25) ‘And all Israel obeyed him. And all the princes, and the mighty men, and all the sons likewise of king David, submitted themselves unto Solomon the king. And the Lord magnified Solomon exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and bestowed upon him such royal majesty as had not been on any king before him in Israel.’ (1, Ch. 29: 23-25) ‘And the Lord his God was with him, and magnified him exceedingly
(2, Ch. 1: 1) ‘Solomon was rewarded with riches and unprecedented glorious reign.’ (JE. XI. p. 439) ‘He developed commerce, and the products of other countries, Egypt, Arabia, and lands beyond, passed through Israel and brought the Hebrews increased wealth. . . . . He sent a fleet to Ophir, in the south, which brought back gold and other rare and precious products. Solomon also cultivated the arts, particularly literature, architecture, and music.’ (VJE. p. 610). ‘Even allowing for the exaggerations of a later age, . . . he was clearly ruler over a larger territory than any other Israelite monarch. His court was splendid and he was allied by marriage to the Egyptian royal house. Trade was fostered and was made possible by the comparative peace of his reign. The country was thoroughly organised and a large civil service administered the affairs of the land.’ (UHW. II. p. 817) ‘Solomon . . . sought not imperial expansion but material wealth; and the wealth accumulated under his long rule has become proverbial.’ (I. p. 677) ‘The king’s annual revenue is stated as 666 talents of gold, which would perhaps be £5,000,000 of our money. This did not include the profits of his commerce, whether derived from “merchantmen” . . . or from the tribute of the subject people; or from all the kings of the mingled people, or the governors of the provinces.’ (Farrar, Solomon: His Life and Times, pp. 127-128).

421. (from God) Solomon, as befits a true man of God, ascribes every good he has to God.

422. ‘His realm is described by the Rabbis as having extended . . . over the upper world inhabited by the angels and over the whole of the terrestrial globe with all its inhabitants, including all the beasts, fowls, and reptiles as well as the demons and spirits.’ (JE. XI. pp. 439-440).

423. (owing to their enormous number).

424. So called from the large number of ants gathered there.

425. A species of animals well-known not only for industry but also for wisdom and foresight. ‘Classical writers often refer to the industry, forethought, and ingenuity of the ant.’ (EBi. c. 175) ‘The industry of the harvesting ants, and the amount of work they accomplish, justify their being held up as examples of untiring energy . . . Their great sagacity is shown in numerous ways. . . . Their habit of laying-up food for the future, . . . places them with the bees and wasps, as regards intelligence, second only to man in the animal kingdom.’ (c. 177) ‘Lubbock thus sums up the evidence that “ants are exceedingly wise;” ‘The anthropoid apes no doubt approach nearer to man in bodily structure than do other animals, but when we consider the habits of ants, their social organisation, their large communities and elaborate habitations, their roadways, their possession of domestic animals, and even, in some cases, of slaves, it must be admitted that they have a fair claim to rank next to man in the scale of intelligence.’ (DB. I. 103) ‘It seems impossible to doubt that in many cases ants behave in a manner that must be considered intelligent, that they learn by experience and that they possess memory. Lubbock goes so far as to conclude the account of his experiment with the remark that "It is difficult altogether to deny them the gift of reason . . . their mental powers differ from those of men, not so much in kind as in degree"' (EBr. II. p. 88, 11th Ed).

426. (under foot).

427. 'While sailing over a valley where there were many swarms of ants, Solomon heard one ant say to the others, "Enter your houses; otherwise Solomon's legions will destroy you"' (JE. XI. p. 440).
19. So, amused at her speech, he smiled and said: Lord! dispose me that I should be grateful for the favour wherewith Thou hast favoured me and my parents, and that I should work righteous pleasing Thee; and out of Thy mercy enter me among Thy righteous bondmen.

20. And he sought after the birds and said: what is the matter that I do not see the hoopoe is he among the absentees?

21. I shall chastise him surely or I shall slaughter him unless he offers me a good explanation.

22. But he tarried not long, and said: I have comprehended what thou hast not yet comprehended, and I came to thee from Saba with a sure tiding.

23. I have found a woman ruling over them, and she has been vouchsafed of everything and hers is a mighty throne.

24. I have found her and her people adoring the sun instead of Allah, and Satan has made their work fairest to them and has barred them from the way, as they are not guided.

25. So that they adore not Allah who brings forth the hidden in the heavens and the earth, and knows what you conceal and what you declare.

26. Allah! there is no god but He! the Lord of the Magnificent Throne.

428. (and marvelling).

429. (so full of sagacity).

430. (overpowered with feelings of gratitude to his Creator).

431. ‘Although he ruled as an absolute monarch... he was a man of peace—the most peace-loving, perhaps, of the Hebrew kings; and under his sway there was for about forty years in Palestine... such peace as the Hebrew nation had never known before or was ever to know again.’ (DB. IV. p. 560).
432. i.e., keep me entered.

433. i.e., the prophets and the saints. So that Solomon remained a true Muslim and a prophet of God till the end of his time. This is expressly to refute the Christian charge that he had become ungodly in the later part of his life.

434. (taking a number of them).

434-A. Apparently of feeble wing-power, the bird 'is capable of very extended flight, as is testified by its wandering habits (for it occasionally makes its appearance in places very far removed from its usual haunts), and also by the fact that when pursued by a falcon it will rapidly mount to an extreme height and frequently effect its escape from the enemy.' (EBr. XIII. 676, 11th Ed.) 'A Palestinian bird. It winters in and near Egypt, and returns to Palestine in March... The Arabs, who call it hud-hud, from its cheery cry, ascribe to it the power of discovering water and of revealing secrets. In the late Jewish legends respecting Solomon the hoopoe plays a great part in connection with the queen of Sheba.' (EBi. c. 2107).

435. i.e., some reasonable excuse for his absence.

436. (coming up to Solomon).

437. (so far) i.e., I have known a certain territory in all its circumstances, which thou hast not known so far.

438. Sheba of the Bible. The Sabaeans were 'the ancient dwellers in South-West Arabia, in the parts now called Yemen, Hadramaut, and Asir... The land produced spices and incense and was a stage on the trade road from India, the Malaya archipelago and Africa... Marib, 100 km. east of Sanaa was its capital.' (EBr. XIX. pp. 784, 785) Recent researches 'which have disclosed elaborate architectural remains, and brought to Europe hundreds of inscriptions, the work of Sabaeans, more than confirm the ancient fame of Sheba, and vindicate its claim, not only to wide commerce and a productive soil, but to an influential empire as well.' (DB. V. p. 85) 'Its ancient capital was Ma'rib, though San'a three days' journey to the west, was a city of greater renown... Thus the Sabean kingdom long comprised the whole of Tihāma, the S. W. coastland of Arabia. It also extended itself far both to the east and north.' (ib). 'In March 1934, a report appeared in the press that M. Malraux, a French aviator had discovered a city, still intact, which he identified with Saba (Sheba). It is said to be about 80 miles north of Marib, which in turn is north of Aden at the south end of the Red Sea. M. Malraux is reported to have gained glimpses of twenty or more square towers or temples of a Semitic type of architecture. Photographs of these ruins taken from the air... have been seen by the author.' (Marston, The Bible is True. p. 76).

439. (and was thus absent not on my own account but in thy service). Here is a Jewish version of the story. 'One day, the king, observing that the mountain-cock or hoopoe was absent, ordered that the bird be summoned forthwith. When it arrived it declared that it had for three months been flying hither and thither seeking to discover some country not yet subjected to Solomon, and had at length found a land in the East, exceedingly rich in gold, silver, and plants, whose capital was called Kitor, and whose ruler was a woman, known as the Queen of Saba.’ (JE. XI. p. 443).

440. The reference is to a queen named Bilqis. From a newspaper report (dated Sept. 1951) of a speech of Wendell Phillips, leader of an American Archaeological expedition to South Arabia:—‘About the Queen of Sheba herself Phillips said there was no reason to doubt that she was a historical person who ruled a prosperous and well-organised kingdom. She definitely travelled north by camel to visit king Solomon and the journey must have had very great commercial importance.’

441. (which a ruler can require).

442. ‘The wealth and luxury of the Yemen were proverbial among the Greeks and Romans, and their tales had a solid foundation. The monuments show the stools; chairs, and coaches of which they speak, and tell of gold (gilded ?) statues. The buildings and inscriptions that cover the country tell of its wealth, and show that the people were skilled masons. They must have been capable engineers to build the dam at Marib and the tanks at Aden.’ (ERE. X. p. 883) ‘The capital of Yemen . . . was Mareb, two days’ journey north-east of a city called Sana, and great numbers of finely cut stones, inscriptions, coins and jewels still give evidence that a city of importance once stood there.’ (Gilman, op. cit., p. 10) ‘The story of the Queen of Sheba is found in detail in the Second Targum to Esthar . . There, as in the Koran, it is the hoopoe that directed Solomon’s attention to the country of Sheba and to its queen. The dust of that land was more precious than gold, and silver was like dirt in the streets.’ (JE. XI. p. 235).

443. ‘Over 100 gods and many temples are named . . . Sams, the sun, is the famine and perhaps all goddesses are forms of it . . . There are indications that the moon, sun and Venus formed a divine family.’ (EBR. XIX. p. 786) ‘Her people were Sabians; they stood on their rich wadies and on their lonely sands, and gazed up to heaven in wonder, as the stars, the sun and the moon shone out upon them, and they thought that such bright lights must be gods. Then they bowed their heads and worshipped the hosts of heaven.’ (Gilman, op. cit., p. 10) For the general prevalence of sun-worship see P. XXIV. n. 365.

444. حُبَّ الْأَرْضُ یَنْتَفِعُ یَتَمَرَّ. (LL).

445. (O created beings!).

446. (before which the throne of the queen of Sheba pales into insignificance).
27. (قال:...) "Sulaimān said: we shall now see whether thou hast spoken the truth or whether thou art of the liars.

28. (اذْعَبْ...ىَجُومُ)" "Go thou with this letter of mine, and cast it down unto them and turn aside from them, and see what they return.

29. (قَالَ...كَرَمٍ)" "She said: O Chiefs! there has been cast to us an honourable epistle.

30. (إِنَّهُ...الرَّحْمُ)" "It is from Sulaimān, and it runs: In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

31. (الَّذِينَ...مُسْلِمِينَ)" saying: rise not against me, and come to me submissive.

SECTION 3

32. (قَالَ...كَرَمٍ)" "She said: O Chiefs! counsel me in the affair. I do not resolve on any affair until you counsel me.

33. (قَالُوا...تَسَاءَلُونَ)" "They said: we possess great force and great might; but thine is the command, we shall see what thou commandest.

34. (قَالَ...تَعَلَّمُونَ)" "She said: verily the kings when they enter a city, and make its most powerful inhabitants the most abased; so they also will do.

35. (وَلَوْنَ...المُسْلِمِينَ)" Therefore I am going to send them a present, and see with what answer the envoys come back.

447. (in describing her splendour and her religion).

448. The use of birds as letter-carriers need not surprise the modern mind. 'The use of homing pigeons to carry messages is as old as Solomon and the ancient Greeks, to whom the art of training the birds came probably from the Persians, conveyed the names of Olympic victors to their various cities by this means. Before the electric telegraph this method of communication had a considerable vogue amongst stockbrokers and financiers.' (EBr. XVII. p. 921).

449. Solomon, accordingly, caused a letter to be tied to the hoopoe's wing, which the bird delivered to the queen toward the evening as she was going out to make her devotions to the sun.' (JE. XI. 443).

450. (an answer to us after deliberation).

451. (to the nobles of her court and her ministers). 'Having read the letter, which was couched in somewhat severe terms, she immediately convoked a council of her ministers.' (JE. XI. p. 443).

452. i.e., worthy of respect as is evident from its contents.

453. i.e., and it is to the effect that—. لَا is a particle denoting حَصْبْيُض i.e., when followed by a future, exciting to an action, and seeking or desiring or demanding the performance of it.' (LL).

454. (to the true faith). Notice the Solomon, as befits his prophetic office, exhorts the queen to accept true monotheistic faith. The text of the letter as given in the Talmud is as follows: 'From me, king Solomon, peace to thee and thy government. Let it be shown to thee that the Almighty God has made me to reign over the whole world, the kingdom of the North, the South, the East, and the West. Lo, they have come to me with their congratulations, all save thee alone. Come thou also, I pray thee, and submit to my authority, and much honour shall be done thee; but if thou refusest, behold I shall by force compel thy acknowledgement. To thee, Queen Sheba, is addressed this letter in peace from me, King Solomon, the son of David.' (Polano, op. cit., p. 202).

455. (and approve thereof). 'In terror she consulted with her elders and princes, who, however, knew nothing of Solomon, (JE. XI. p. 235) 'Now when Queen Sheba received this letter, she sent in haste for her elders and counsellors to ask their advice as to the nature of her reply.' (Polano, op. cit., p. 202).

456. (so we are ready to make head against Solomon).

457. (thyself).

458. (and which we are ready to obey). 'They spoke but highly of the message and the one who sent it.' (Polano, op. cit., 202).

459. (as conquerors).

460. i.e., thus will Solomon and his army act towards us, if they happen to get the upperhand.

461. (instead of entering into a war with them). 'But the queen did not regard their words.' (Polano, op. cit., p. 202).

462. 'Then she freighted several vessels with all kinds of treasures, and selected 6000 boys and girls, all of the same age, stature, and dress, and sent them with a letter to Solomon, acknowledging her submission to him and promising to appear before him within three years from that date.' (JE. XI, p. 443) 'She sent a vessel, carrying many presents of different metals, minerals and precious stones, to Solomon' (Polano, op. cit., p. 202).
36. (نَفَّذَ) Then when he\textsuperscript{463} came to Sulaimān,\textsuperscript{464} he said: are you going to add riches\textsuperscript{465} to me\textsuperscript{466}—while what Allah has vouchsafed to me\textsuperscript{467} is better than what He has vouchsafed to you.\textsuperscript{468} Aye! it is you who exult in your present.\textsuperscript{469}

37. (إِرْجِعُ . . . مَنْزُولًا) Go thou back to them\textsuperscript{470} Surely we shall come upon them\textsuperscript{471} with hosts which they cannot withstand and we shall drive them forth from their place abased and they will be humbled.\textsuperscript{472}

38. (كَالْ . . . مَلِك) Sulaimān said:\textsuperscript{473} Chiefs! which of you will bring me her throne\textsuperscript{474} before they\textsuperscript{475} come to me surrendering themselves.\textsuperscript{476}

39. (كَالْ . . . إِمَام) A giant\textsuperscript{477} from the jinn said: I shall bring it to thee before thou arisest from thy seat;\textsuperscript{478} surely I am strong enough for test and am reliable.\textsuperscript{479}

40. (كَالْ . . . كَرِيم) But one who had some knowledge of the Book said: I shall bring it to thee before thy eye twinkles.\textsuperscript{480} Then when Sulaimān saw it placed before him,\textsuperscript{481} he said:\textsuperscript{482} this is of the grace of my Lord that He may\textsuperscript{483} test me whether I thank Him or am ingrate. Whosoever gives thanks only gives thanks for his own soul, and whosoever is ungrateful, then my Lord is Self-sufficient, Munificent.

\textsuperscript{463} i. e., the queen’s embassy.
\textsuperscript{464} (with the presents).
\textsuperscript{465} (instead of submitting to the true religion).
\textsuperscript{466} i. e., are you going to allure me with worldly goods?
\textsuperscript{467} (of His guidance).
\textsuperscript{468} (of some worldly goods).
\textsuperscript{469} (because to you the special object of glory is this showy, tranitory world).
\textsuperscript{470} (with the presents that thou hadst brought).
\textsuperscript{471} (if they still refuse to accept the true religion).
472. (and shall be treated as a subject nation).
473. (after the embassy had departed).
474. (noted for its beauty and grandeur).
475. i.e., the queen with her retinue.
476. This wonder Solomon wanted to be performed for demonstrating his power over nature—a great divine gift.
477. غشريت signifies anything that exceeds the ordinary bound; ... غشريت is properly applied to jinnee, and signifies evil in disposition, and wicked or malignant.’ (LL).
478. i.e., seat of justice. Solomon used to sit in judgment everyday till noon.
479. i.e., although the throne is very heavy, I am well able to perform the feat, and although it is greatly bejewelled, I may be trusted to bring it here intact.
480. i.e., instantaneously; without the loss of a single moment. Literally, ‘I will bring it to thee before thy look at a thing shall revert to thee, or be withdrawn by thee therefrom’ (LL).
481. Literally, ‘standing in his presence.’
482. (as befitted a prophet of God).
483. (by His endowing me with such powers).
He said: 484 disguise her throne, 486 so that we may see whether she is guided or is of those who are not guided. 486

Then when she arrived, 487 it was said: 488 is thy throne like this? She said: 489 it is as though it were it; 489 and we have been vouchsafed the knowledge 490 before this, 491 and we have been Muslims. 492

And there hindered her what she worshipped instead of Allah; indeed she was of an infidel people. 494

It was said to her: enter the palace. 495 Then when she saw it, 496 she imagined it a pool and 497 bared her shanks. 498 He said: it is a pavilion smoothed of crystal. 499 She said: Lord! I have wronged my soul, 500 and I surrender myself together with Sulaimān to Allah, the Lord of the worlds. 501

SECTION 4

And assuredly We sent to Thamūd their brother Sālih, 608 saying: worship Allah Then lo! they became two parties 563 contending.

He said: my people! why do you seek to hasten the evil before the good? 564 Why do you not seek the forgiveness of Allah, that haply you may be shown mercy? 565

484. (to his servants).
485. i.e., change it out of recognition.
486. Solomon intended thereby to test the intelligence of the queen. If intelligent and of good common-sense she was the more likely to see her way to the Truth.
487. For a very different account of the visit of the queen of Sheba to Solomon in the Bible see 1, Ki, 10: 1-13.
488. (to her by Solomon's attendants).
489. i.e., though altered in form, it is substantially the same.
490. i.e., the truth of thy prophethood.
491. (particular miracle).
492. (at heart already).
493. (from a public declaration of belief). It was not lack of intelligence, but merely a deep-rooted habit of idolatry that had so far prevented her from public profession of Islam or the religion of Unity.
494. (and brought up amongst them). The purport is that her continuance in paganism was not specially a fault of her own, but due to her faulty upbringing and to her vicious associates.
495. (of which the pavement was of transparent glass laid over running water).
496. i. e., its floor.
497. (in lifting up her robe to pass through it).
498. 'On being informed of her arrival, Solomon sent his chief minister Benaiah, to meet her, and then seated himself in a glass pavilion. The queen, thinking that the king was sitting in the water, lifted up her dress, which caused Solomon to smile.' (JE. XI. p. 443) 'On her arrival he received her in a glass house. Thinking that Solomon was sitting in the water, she lifted up her skirt, whereupon he noticed hair on her feet.' (p. 236) Solomon prepared to receive his visitor in an apartment laid and lined with glass, and the queen at first was so deceived by the appearance that she imagined the king to be sitting in the water.' (Polano, op. cit., p. 203) 'In the Second Targum on the Book of Esther we read that Solomon received the queen seated on a throne upon a floor of glass. She thought that he was sitting in the midst of water.' (Farrar, Solomon: His Life and Times, p. 135).
499. 'Solomon made the whole building entirely of white stone, and cedar wood, and gold, and silver. He also adorned the roofs and walls with stones set in gold, and beautified them thereby in the same manner as he had beautified the temple of God with the like stones.' (‘Ant.’ VIII. 5: 2).
500. (by my idolatry). 'She confessed that she had been unable to believe the rumours which had told of the king’s wisdom and prosperity, but that the reality exceeded the fame. Happy were the servants and courtiers who stood by him, and heard his wisdom; blessed was the Lord his God who delighted in him, and who out of love for Israel had given them such a king to do judgment and justice among them.' (Farrar, Solomon: His Life and Times, p. 136).
501. This is the queen’s public, formal, declaration of faith, although she had been a Muslim at heart earlier. See verse 43:—وكا مسلمین. Cf. the Bible:—‘And she said to the king. . . . Blessed be the Lord thy God, which delighted in thee, to set thee on the throne of Israel.’ (1, Ki. 10: 6-9) Also 2 Ch: 9: 8. ‘And when the queen had tested Solomon’s wisdom, and witnessed his significance, she said: . .
Blessed be the Lord thy God, who hath placed thee on a throne to rule righteously and in justice." (Polano, op. cit., p. 203) Later reports add that this queen was married to Solomon and bore him a son, a progenitor of the whole race of the Ethiopian kings. 'Every legitimate neguson negust, or King of kings, traces his descent from the union of king Solomon with the Queen of Sheba. The substance of the claim is supported by the presence to-day of some 70,000 Jews in the southern provinces of Abyssinia.' (UHW, VI. p. 3404).

502. See P. VIII. n. 542.

503. (concerning the doctrine preached by Sāleḥ) i.e., some believing in him and others rejecting.

504. i.e., why do you urge and defy the divine vengeance?

505. i.e., the divine vengeance may be averted.
47. (قَالَ فُرقُونَ) They said: we augur ill of thee and of those who are with thee.

48. (وَكَانُوا بِصَلَونٍ) And there were nine of a group in the city, who spread corruption in the land and did not rectify.

49. (قَالَ فُرقُونَ) They said: swear by God one to another that we shall surely fall upon him and his household by night; and thereafter we shall tell his heir: we did not see the destruction of his household, and we are truthful.

50. (وَمِكَرُوا . . . بِسَرُونٍ) And they plotted a plot, and We plotted a plot, and they perceived it not.

51. (فَنَظَرْنَ) So behold thou how was the end of their plot. Verily We annihilated them and their nation all together.

52. (ذَلِكَ . . . بِسَرُونٍ) Yonder are their houses overturned, for they did wrong. Verily herein is a sign for a people who know.

53. (أَوْ أَرْحَمْ . . . بِصَرُونٍ) And We rescued them who believed and were wont to be God-fearing.

54. (ذُلُولَةً . . . بِصَرُونٍ) And recall Lut when he said to his people: do you commit indecency while you see its enormity?

506. i.e., we take you people as an evil presage.

507. i.e., your own misdeeds, which shall prove to be the cause of your ultimate ruin, are registered with God.

508. (and doomed to punishment).

509. (more than the rest of the population).

510. i.e., the Prophet Sālēḥ.

511. (and slay them).

515. (when he demands justice).

513. So all the conspirators were to tell lies together.
514. (against the prophet).
515. (against the conspirators).
516. (O Prophet!)
517. The conspirators were themselves killed by a huge piece of a rock falling on them, when they miserably perished.
518. i.e., on the way of the Makkah caravan to Syria.
519. (and empty) i.e., in ruins.
520. (of Our vindication of justice).
521. (and understand).
522. i.e., while ye fully recognise its enormity? Observe and compare the increasingly complacent attitude of the modern civilization towards sexual invert and perverts and the growing tendency among contemporary physicians and legislators to condone and make light of even the most atrocious homo-sexual practices.
55. Would you go in lustfully to men instead of women? Ayel! you are a people addicted to pagan ways?

56. There was no answer of his people save that they said: drive forth the family of Lut from your city. They are a people clean indeed.

57. Then We rescued Lut and his family except his wife. Her We destined to be of the lingerers.

58. And We rained upon them a rain, ill was that rain upon the warned.

SECTION 5

59. Say thou: all praise to Allah, and peace upon His bondmen whom He has chosen. Is Allah Best, or what they associate with Him.

523. See p. VIII. n. 564.
524. Or ‘followers.’ of a person is not only his family, but also his followers. (LL).
525. See P. VIII. n. 567.
526. (and consider us impure!) ‘The verb is used derisively.’ (LL).
527. (from Our sentence).
528. (who persisted in her infidelity and unbelief).
529. See P. VIII. n. 571.
530. (of stones). See P. VIII. n. 572.
531. i.e., those who were warned but remained heedless.
532. (O Prophet!).
533. (to be His messengers).
534. i.e., polytheists.
535. (with Him as objects of adoration and worship).
PART XX

60. Is not He best Who has created the heavens and the earth, and Who sends down water for you from the sky whereby We cause beautiful orchards to grow up and the trees of which it was not possible for you to cause to grow up? Is there any other god along with Allah? Nay! yet they are a people who equalise.4

61. (اس من) Is not He best Who has made the earth a fixed abode and has placed the rivers in its midst and has placed firm mountains on it, and has placed a barrier between the two seas? Is there any other god along with Allah? Nay! yet most of them do not know.

62. (اس من تذكرون) Is not He best Who answers the distressed when he calls unto Him and averts the evil, and has made you the successors in the earth? Is there any other god along with Allah? Little do you reflect.

63. (اس من خرکن) Is not He best Who guides you in the darknesses of the land and the sea and Who sends the winds as heralds before His mercy? Is there any other god along with Allah? Exalted be Allah above what they associate with Him.

1. (as the object of worship and devotion).
2. (such as a sky-god, earth-god, rain-god, vegetation-god, etc.) Neither a Demeter nor Zeus (as according to the Greeks), nor a Father Mars, Jupiter and Saturn (as according to the Latins).
3. i.e., the polytheists.
4. (others with their Lord as co-partners). See P. VII. nn. 226-28; P. VIII. n. 147. In Vedic religion, for instance, 'both Heaven and Earth are regarded as gods and as the parents of gods (deva-patra), even although they are said to have been generated by gods. Sometimes one god,—Indra, or Agni, or Rudra, or Soma,—sometimes all the gods together, are said to have generated or created heaven and earth, the whole world.’ (ERE. IV. p. 156).

5. خَلَطِ of which the plural is خَلَطْلِ, is ‘An interstice, an interspace or intervening space, a break, a breach, a chink, or a gap, between two things.’ (LL).

6. See P. XIX. n. 75.

7. (such as earth-god, river-god, mountain-god, etc.).

8. ‘With the advent of monotheism, prayer reaches a new dignity and power. Belief in the one Deity, sovereign of the universe, carries with it a sense of security and of elevation which has an ennobling influence on thought and life. It makes man strong and free in the world. Here is the secret of the transformation which Islam effects for the African animist.’ (ERE. X. p. 171).

9. (which distressed him). It is absolutely forbidden in Islam to address prayers to any other being than God. Contrast with this the frankly quasi-polytheistic practice of the Christian Churches.

10. (of your forefathers).

11. (such as His son, Mother, Consort, or any tutelar saint).

12. رَحْمَة ‘also means... rain.’ (LL).

13. (such as light-god, wind-god, etc.).

14. Once an erring humanity has formed conception of a multiplicity of gods, there is no end of god-manufacturing. ‘It is the first step that costs: once you have got the idea of a god fairly evolved, any number of extra gods may be invented or introduced from all quarters. A great pantheon readily admits new numbers to its ranks from many strange sources... The Romans, indeed, deified every conceivable operation of nature or of human life; they had gods or goddesses for the minutest details of agriculture, of social relations, of the first years of childhood, of marriage and domestic arrangements generally.’ (Allen, Evolution of the Idea of God, p. 21).
64. Is not He best Who originates creation, and shall thereafter restore it, and Who provides for you from the heavens and the earth? Is there any other god along with Allah? Say thou: bring you proofs if you are truthful.

65. Say thou: none in the heavens and the earth knows the Unseen save Allah, nor can they perceive when they will be raised.

66. Aye! their knowledge does not attain to the Hereafter. Aye! they are in doubt about it. Aye! they are blind to it.

SECTION 6

67. Those who disbelieve say: when we have become dust, we and our forefathers; shall we, for sooth, be brought forth?

68. Assuredly we have been promised this before, we and our forefathers. Naught is this, but the fables of the ancients.

69. Say thou: travel in the land and behold how has been the end of the culprits.

70. Grieve thou not over them, nor be straitened on what they plot.

71. And they say: when will this promise be fulfilled, if you say sooth?

72. Say thou: perhaps close behind you may be what you would hasten on.

15. Contrast this with the openly polytheistic teaching of the NT. ‘Giving thanks unto the Father, hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son: Who is the image of the invisible God, the first born of every creature: for by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him: and he is before all things, and by him all things consist: For it pleased the Father that in him should all fulness dwell.’ (Col. 1: 12-19).
16. (by means of rain).
17. (by means of vegetation).
18. (as co-Creator, co-Restorer, or co-Sustainer).
19. (unto the polytheists, O Prophet!).
20. i.e., all the arguments derived from the observation of nature and of human mind lead to Monotheism; where is the argument for polytheism,—for the plurality of gods? ‘Long before the days of modern science, in fact, and quite apart from Jewish or Christian influences, the brooding mind of man had felt the unity in things, and behind the “gods many” of popular belief had been feeling its way to the oneness of God.’ (Gore. op. cit., p. 51).
21. (O Prophet! in answer to those who deny the fact of the Resurrection).
22. (and the knowledge of the time of Resurrection is one of the things hidden).
23. i.e., ‘the rejecters.’
24. (at all) i.e., their knowledge falls short of the fact itself, let alone its time.
25. Not content with their ignorance, some go to the length of doubting the very occurrence of the Resurrection.
26. Some go even further; they positively deny the fact of the Resurrection.
27. (from the grave).
29. See P. VII. n. 322.
30. (O Prophet!).
31. i.e., find for yourself by looking at these ruins.
32. (in this very world).
33. (in thy extreme commiseration, O Prophet!).
34. (against thee and thy Message).
35. (to the Muslims in derision).
36. (of our punishment).
37. (to the Makkan pagans, O Prophet!).
38. i.e., the worldly portion.
73. (وán . . . ينكورون) Verily thy Lord is full of grace for mankind, yet most of them give not thanks.

74. (وán . . . يعلون) Verily thy Lord knows what their breasts conceal and what they disclose.

75. (وán . . . مين) And naught there is hidden in the heaven and the earth but it is in a Book manifest.

76. (ان . . . يختانون) Verily this Qur’ân recounts with truth to the Children of Isrá’il much of what they contend with.

77. (وán . . . اللومين) And verily it is a guidance and a mercy to the believers.

78. (ان . . . العلم) And verily thy Lord shall decide between them by His Judgement, and He is the Mighty, the Knowing.

79. (فوكول . . . البين) So put thy trust in Allah; verily thou art on manifest truth.

80. (اللک . . . مديرين) Surely thou canst not make the dead hear, nor canst thou make the deaf hear the call when they flee turning their backs.

81. (بما . . . مسلون) Nor canst thou lead the blind out of their error. Thou canst make none hear save those who believe in Our signs and who have submitted themselves.

82. (وادا . . . بوقرون) And when the word concerning them shall come to be fulfilled, We shall bring forth a beast of the earth speaking to them, that of Our signs the people have not been convinced.

39. (and therefore He is granting them respite).

40. (of deeds).

41. (among themselves). The Holy Qur’ân corrects many of their misconceptions and pronounces final judgment on many of their controversies.

42. (with regard to its precepts).
43. (with regard to the results obtained by acting on its precepts).
44. (demonstrably on the Day of Judgment).
45. (and rest assured of Divine succour, O Prophet!).
46. (profitably).
47. The infidels steeped in contumacy are compared to the dead and the deaf.
48. (when they do not exert their will to extricate themselves).
49. (to Us in Islam).
50. i.e., the Hour will be drawing near.
51. This to be one of the signs of the approaching Last Day.
52. (existing at he time, who will be infidels).
SECTION 7

83. (idhrum... 'umrun) And remind them of the Day on which We shall gather from every community a troop of those who belied Our signs, and they will be held in order.\(^{53}\)

84. (hini... tumun) until when they will have come,\(^{54}\) He will say: did you believe My signs when you could not comprehend them in your knowledge?\(^{55}\) nay, what else was it that you have been working?\(^{56}\)

85. (ru'um... minmun) And the word\(^{57}\) concerning them shall be fulfilled because they did wrong\(^{58}\) and they shall not be able to speak.\(^{59}\)

86. (al... 'umrun) Do they not consider that We have made the night\(^{60}\) that they may repose in it, and the day sight-giving.\(^{61}\) Verily in them\(^{62}\) are signs\(^{63}\) for those who believe.

87. (ru'um... darin) And remind them of the Day on which the Trumpet shall be blown,\(^{64}\) and terrified shall be those who are in the heavens and the earth,\(^{65}\) save him whom Allah wills.\(^{66}\) And all shall come to Him lowly.\(^{67}\)

88. (u 'arad... tumun) And thou\(^{68}\) shalt see\(^{69}\) the mountains thou deemst solid\(^{70}\) passing away as the passing away of the clouds,\(^{71}\) the handiwork of Allah Who has perfected everything. Verily He is Aware of all that you do.\(^{72}\)

89. (san... 'umrun) Whosoever will bring good\(^{73}\) shall have better\(^{74}\) than its worth; and they will be secure from the terror\(^{75}\) of that Day.\(^{76}\)
59. (in their defence).
60. (symbolic of death).
61. (symbolic of life).
62. i. e., in these phenomena of day and night.
63. (of the fact of Resurrection).
64. See P. VII. n. 520.
65. (and thereafter killed).
66. (to exempt from general consternation).
67. (as all arrogance will vanish).
68. (on the Day, O reader!).
69. (in their present state).
70. (and firmly rooted in their present state).
71. i. e., with the same rapidity; as lightly as.
72. (and shall requite each accordingly).
73. (on that Day). 'Good' is here synonymous with belief.
74. (as his reward).
75. i. e., the fear of damnation.
76. This Day of Judgment which shall come into being at the second blowing of the Trumpet is entirely different from the Last Day which shall begin from the first sounding of the Trumpet. So the fears on the Last Day are in no way incompatible with the sense of security on the Judgment-Day.
90. And whosoever will bring evil—their faces shall be cast down in the Fire. Are you being requited aught save what you have been working?

91. I am commanded only to worship the Lord of this city which He has sanctified, and His is everything, and I am commanded to be of the Muslims;

92. and that I should recite the Qur’ān. And whosoever receives guidance, receives it for his own soul, and as for him who strays, say thou: I am only of the warners.

93. And say thou: all praise to Allah. Presently He will show you His signs, so that you will recognise them. And your Lord is not heedless of what you do.

77. ‘Evil’ is here synonymous with infidelity.
78. (O dwellers of Hell!)
79. i.e., are you punished any more than what your deserve?
80. ‘Say thou, O Prophet!’ is understood.
81. (of Makka), i.e., the first city to receive the universal message of God.
82. i.e., He is the Lord of the universe.
83. i.e., to preach His message.
84. (after I have announced the true doctrine).
85. (and have nothing to do with the results).
86. (O Prophet!).
87. (and its proper time).
88. i.e., the approaching signs of the Judgment Day.
89. (and He shall requite each accordingly).
Su'rat-ul-Qasas

The Narratives. XXVIII.
(Makkan, 9 Sections and 88 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. ( Nel'm) Ta. Sîn. Mîm.
2. (نلک...المین) These are verses of the manifest Book.
3. (أئلحا...ومومنون) We recite to thee of the story of Mūsā and Fir'awn with truth, for a people who believe.
4. (إن...المستدين) Verily Fir'awn exalted himself in the land and made its people in sects weakening a party among them, slaying their sons and letting their women live. Verily he was of the corrupters.
5. (ودِرْي...الورثين) And We intended that We should be gracious to those who were weakened in the land, and We should make them leaders, and We should make them the inheritors.
6. (وَرِضِّكنَ...يَدُ رَبِّنَا) And We should establish them in the land, and We should let Fir'awn and Hāmān and their hosts receive from them what they dreaded.

90. (O Prophet!).
91. i.e., somewhat of; a portion of.
92. i.e., for the benefit of.
93. i.e., who have will to believe.
94. See P. XVI. n. 271.
95. (with a view to make them serve him).
96. i.e., the Children of Israel.
97. See P. I. nn. 207, 208.
98. (of mankind in faith).
99. (of land).
100. The name has puzzled the Christians and the Jews, and has led some of their scholars to admit that 'the origin of the name Hāmān is uncertain.' (DB, II. p. 289). Hāmān does not seem to be a personal name, but on the analogy of 'Pharaoh,' it may well be only an official designation. That there was a great Egyptian god by the name of Amon admits of no doubt. 'He was originally only the local divinity of Thebes; but on the accession of the eighteenth dynasty, became the supreme ruler of the Egyptian pantheon, and official god of the empire.' (JE. I. p. 526) 'Amon became the great god of the most important age of Egypt—the XVIIIth—XXth dynasties.' (ERE. V. p. 247) 'Later, Amon obtained pre-eminence and, with the rise of Thebes, became the official chief god of Egypt.' (EBI. c. 3429) And it is quite likely that the official acting as the high priest, in the king's absence, of Amon's temple may have borne a title closely akin to what in Arabic pronunciation is known as Hāmān.' This is all the more probable when we remember that it was impossible for the Egyptian king, who was the responsible head of a highly complex system of Government, to exercise his high-priestly functions except on rare occasions; he accordingly was obliged to depute them to the heads, or higher members, of the various local priesthoods.' (ERE, X. p. 294). Hāmān is here coupled with Pharaoh, as the former, next to the king, was the highest dignity of the state. 'The Theban, High Priest of Ammon, was recognized as beyond dispute the chief of the sacerdotal order, and the next person in the kingdom after the king.' (Rawlinson, Ancient Egypt, p. 289). See also P. XXIV. nn. 196, 197 and also Appendix IV at the end of Sūrat-ul-Qasas.
101. i. e., at their hand.
102. (and frantically tried to avert) i. e., the ruin of their kingdom as foretold by some diviners.
7. And We inspired the mother of Mūsā, saying: suckle him, then when thou fearest for him, cast him into the river and hast no fear or sorrow; verily We are going to restore him to thee, and shall make him one of Our envoys.

8. (the household of Fir'awn picked him up, that he may ultimately prove an enemy and a grief. Verily Fir'awn and Hāmān and their hosts were sinners)

9. (And the wife of Fir'awn said: a comfort to me and thee! slay him not, perhaps he may be of benefit to us or we may take him for a son. And they did not perceive)

10. (And the heart of Mūsā's mother became void, and she had well-nigh given up the secret; had We not fortified her heart that she might remain one of the believers)

11. (And she said to his sister: follow him thou. So she watched him from afar, and they perceived not)

103. i.e., Moses, the new-born child.
104. As midwives were instructed to kill Israelite babes.
105. (of his being drowned).
106. (over his separation).
107. 'And when she could no longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink.' (Ex. 2: 3) Mark that there is no trace of God's intervention in the Biblical account.
108. (from the ark).
109. ——Providence designing——
110. (eventually).
111. (and deserved to be perished by his hands). Or may mean that they greatly erred inasmuch as they brought up one who was to be the cause of their undoing.
112. Not his daughter. Another instance of the Qur'ān correcting the Bible. It is quite conceivable, however, that the Pharaoh may have married his own daughter, as what we call incest was very common in the royal families of ancient Egypt. 'In many ancient civilizations the marriage of near relatives, so far from being taboo, was openly encouraged. In ancient Egypt the royal houses were hotbeds of incest. Amhose I was married to his sister, so was Amenhotep I.' (Scott, Encyclopaedia of Sex, p. 169). Also see note 3 of Appendix III to Surah Maryam.

113. (this infant is).

114. i. e., of use; serviceable; friendly instead of being inimical like the rest of his people.

115. (the consequence of what they were doing).

116. (of patience, and became disquieted after she had cast him into the river).

117. i. e., she was on the point of making it known that she was his mother.

118. (with faith).

119. (in Our promise).

120. The eldest of the family, named Miriam, and regarded by the Jews as the 'saviour of Israel.' (JE. VIII. p. 609) According to the rabbinical beliefs, she like Moses and Aaron, 'died by a kiss from God, for the angel of death could not take her, and worms did not touch her body.' (ib). She was a prophetess according to the Bible. (Ex. 15:20).

121. i. e., trace him that thou mayest know his case.

122. (that she was his sister and that she was watching him). 'And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him.' (Ex. 2:4) So the river received the child, and carried him along. But Miriam, the child's sister, passed along upon the bank over against him, as her mother had bid her, to see whither the ark would be carried.' ('Ant.' II. 9:4).
12. And We had already forbidden other foster-mothers for him; so she said: shall I direct you to a household who will rear him for you and who would be to him good counsellors.

13. So We restored him to his mother that she might be comforted and not grieve, and that she might know that the promise of Allah is true. Yet most of them know not.

SECTION 2

14. And when he attained his full strength and became firm, We vouchsafed to him wisdom and knowledge, and thus We reward the well-doers.

15. And he entered the city at a time of unawareness of its inhabitants, and he found two men fighting therein, one being of his own party, and the other of his enemies. And he who was of his party called him for help against the one who was of his enemies. So Müsä struck him with his fist, and put an end of him. Müsä said: this is of the work of Satan, verily he is an enemy, a misleader, manifest.

16. Müsä said: Lord! verily I have wronged my soul so forgive. So He forgave him. Verily He is Forgiving, the Owner of Mercy.

I shall never more be a supporter of the culprits.

123. So that he refused to take the breasts of nurses who were provided. ‘Thermuthis bid them bring her a woman that might afford her breast to the child; yet would not the child admit of her breast, but turned away from it, and did the like to many other women.’ (‘Ant.’ II. 9: 5).

124. (taking advantage of the favourable situation). ‘Now Miriam was, by when this happened, not to appear to be there on purpose, but only as staying to see the child, and she said, “It is in vain, that thou, O Queen, callest for these women for the nourishing of the child, who are in no way of kin to it; but still if thou wilt order one of the Hebrew women to be brought, perhaps it may admit the breast of one of its own nation."' ("Ant." II. 9:5).

125. Her offer was accepted, so that she brought his mother, and he took her breast.

126. 'Now the child gladly admitted the breast and seemed to stick close to it; and so it was, that at the queen’s desire, the nursing of the child was entirely entrusted to the mother.' ("Ant." II. 9:5).

127. (for certain, and experience for herself).

128. i.e., of mankind.

129. (a thing to obvious).

130. (in mind and body).

131. (in religion and piety before he was endowed with prophethood). This implies that he was pious and righteous from early manhood, and was at no time of his adult life an unbeliever.

132. (of Memphis) Largest city of ancient Egypt, situated about ten miles south of modern Cairo, west of the Nile. It 'was one of the most ancient cities of Egypt, at least near it was the earliest residence of those Pharaohs who ruled over both Upper and Lower Egypt.' (DB. III. p. 338) It 'was the most important city of Egypt and the principal royal residence until the rise of the eighteenth dynasty. The kings of the eighteenth dynasty began to neglect Memphis; but they still resided there occasionally, and the second place among all Egyptian cities remained undisputed to it.' (EBi. c. 3433).

133. i.e., at the hour of the noon-sleep.

134. i.e., an Israelite; of his own religion and nation; one of the downtrodden, oppressed people suffering for years and years the bitterest and most cruel persecution.

135. i.e., an idolatrous Egyptian; one of the oppressing, persecuting people.

136. (after ineffectual verbal remonstrance). 'The oppressor turned a deaf ear to remonstrance, and persisted in his ill-usage of an unfortunate Hebrew labourer, despite all that Moses could say to him.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 57).

137. (accidentally and without intending his death). 'Then the pent-up fire which was consuming him burst forth. Moses raised his hand and smote the Egyptian and slew him. It was a hasty and rash act, the result of a violent excess of indignation, which made him strike with a force which he had not intended, and produced a result that he had not anticipated.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 57) Cf. the Bible:—'And it came to pass in those days, when Moses was grown that he went out unto his brethren, and looked on their burdens: and he spied an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew, one of his brethren. And he looked this way and that way, and when he saw that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand." (Ex. 2: 11, 12).

138. (being sorry at the unintended effect of his action).
139. (who prompted me to take a rash action).
140. (of mankind).
141. Inasmuch as he deprives one of the opportunity of full deliberation and cool calculation of the result of one's actions.
142. (in penitence befitting a future prophet of God).
143. (by this negligent and hasty action of mine).
144. (in the past).
145. (profiting by this experience).
18. And in the morning he was fearing and looking about in the city when lo! he who had asked his succour yesterday was crying out to him. Müssa said: thou art a manifest seducer.

19. And when Müssa sought to seize him who was an enemy to them both, he said: O Müssa! wouldst thou slay me as thou didst slay a person yesterday? Thou seekest to be a tyrant in the land, and not to be of the reconcilers.

20. And there came a man running from the farthest part of the city. He said: O Müssa! the chiefs are counselling together regarding thee, that they might slay thee; so depart thou verily I am to thee of the advisers.

21. So he went forth from thence fearing, looking about. He said: Lord! deliver me from the ungodly people.

SECTION 3

22. And when he betook himself towards Madyan, he said: perchance my Lord will guide me even way.

146. i. e., as one apprehensive of danger.
147. (for what might happen to him on account of the person slain).
148. (for help a second time against another Egyptian).
149. (exasperated at the quarrelsome nature of this fellow).
150. (after this remonstrance).
151. i. e., the Israelite.
152. (wrongly imagining that Moses was going to strike him).
153. Cf. the Bible:—And when he went out the second day, behold, two men of the Hebrews strove together, and he said to him that did the wrong, wherefore smitest thou thy fellow! And he said, Who made thee a prince and a judge over us? intendest thou to kill me as thou killedst the Egyptian?' (Ex. 2: 13, 14).

154. (of quarrels). The news that the killer was Moses naturally spread rapidly and reached the ears of Pharaoh. 'A secret once divulged ceases to be a secret; and it was not long before Moses found that his homicide was bruited abroad. . . . Known it was, and not only to his own people but also to the Egyptians, and the Egyptians who heard it carried the news to the king.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 58).

155. (believer at heart).

156. (where the council was held).

157. 'Verily the chiefs command one another respecting thee, to slay thee; or consult together against thee to slay thee; or purpose against thee to slay thee.' (LL) Cf. the Bible:—'Now when Pharaoh heard this thing, he sought to slay Moses.' (Ex. 2: 15).

158. (from the land of Egypt). Moses' only chance of safety obviously lay in making good his escape from the boundaries of Egypt and in taking refuge in a land beyond the influence of the Egyptian government.

159. i.e., apprehending his arrest by pursuers. 'And Moses feared.' (Ex. 2: 14) 'Such an act as that which Moses had perpetrated, was an offence against the law, which could not well be condoned. . . . His arrest would, under the circumstances have been, beyond any doubt, followed by his execution.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 58).

160. 'But Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh and dwelt in the land of Midian.' (Ex. 2: 15) Madyan is 'a town on the east side of the Gulf of Akaba. . . . According to Burton the whole district between 29° 28' and 27° 40' is called Ard Madyan.' (El. III. p. 104) 'In the geographies we find Madyan only as a town near the coast, six days' journey from Tabuk; it was the second halt on the pilgrims' road from Aila to Madina and was a dependency of Madina. In the sixth century Ya'kubi speaks of its position in a district rich in springs and watercourses, gardens and date groves and of its mixed population.' (ib) It 'brought the traveller, after the lapse of some weeks, to the vicinity of the Elanitic Gulf, or eastern arm of the Red Sea, which seems in early times to have been the proper country of the southern Midianites.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 59) See P. VIII. n. 575; P. XVII. n. 392.

161. (to comfort himself as he did not know the way thither). 'And because the public roads were watched, he took his flight through the deserts and where his enemies could not suspect he would travel.' ('Ant.' II. 11: 1) 'The route which he took was probably very much the same as that by which he afterwards led the Israelites to Mount Sinai. . . . It avoided the Egyptian posts and settlements.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 59).
23. (روآ ... كبر) Then when he arrived at the waters of Madyan\textsuperscript{168} he found there a community of people watering.\textsuperscript{168} And he found, apart from them, two women, keeping back their flocks.\textsuperscript{164} He said: what is the matter with you two?\textsuperscript{165} They said: we\textsuperscript{166} do not draw water until the shepherds have driven away their flocks, and our father is a very old man.\textsuperscript{167}

24. (ننى ... نفير) Then he watered their flocks for the twain.\textsuperscript{168} Then\textsuperscript{169} he turned aside into the shade, and said: Lord! I have need of the good which Thou mayest send down for me.

25. (الغليف ... العدين) Then one of the two came to him walking bashfully,\textsuperscript{171} and said: my father invites thee that he may recompense thee with a wage for that thou didst water the flocks for us.\textsuperscript{172} Then when he had come to him and recounted to him the whole story,\textsuperscript{172} he said: have no fear; thou hast escaped from the wrong-doing people.\textsuperscript{174}

26. (قال ... الابن) And said one of them: father I hire him,\textsuperscript{174} for the best that thou canst hire is a strong and reliable person.\textsuperscript{175}

27. (قال ... الصليح) He said: I wish I would marry one of these two daughters of mine provided that thou hirest thyself to me\textsuperscript{176} for eight years,\textsuperscript{177} then if thou completest ten it will be of thy own accord,\textsuperscript{178} and I would not make it hard for thee;\textsuperscript{178} thou shalt find me, Allah willing, of the righteous.\textsuperscript{160}

162. ‘And when he came to the city of Midian, which lay upon the Red Sea, and was so denominated from one of Abraham’s sons by Keturah, he sat upon a certain well, and rested himself there after his laborious journey and the affliction he had been in. It was not far from the city; and the time of the day was noon.’ (‘Ant.’ II. 11: 1). ‘Iståkhri says it is larger than Tabuk and describes from his own observations the spring there from which Moses watered the flocks of Shuaib. It was now covered by a house which had been built over it,’ (El. III. p. 104) ‘There are traditions there of Moses’ residence. As long ago as the days of the Crusades, one writer says: ‘Near Madyan is the well and at it a rock which Moses uprooted.’ (Marston, The Bible is True, p. 186).
163. (their animals). 'That country having but little water, the shepherds used to seize on the wells before others came, lest their flocks should want water.' ("Ant." II. 11:2) 'Having reached this remote district, weary, thirsty, and travel-stained, Moses sat himself down upon the margin of a well. . . . Around it were "troughs" or tanks, prepared for the watering of their flocks by the Bedouin herdsmen of the neighbourhood.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, pp. 59-60).

164. The wells of Palestine and Sinai have been till very recently what they were centuries ago. 'The shepherds may still be seen leading their flocks of sheep and goats to their margin; the women still come with their pitchers and talk to those who sit by the well; the traveller still looks forward to it as his resting-place for the night'. (Stanley, Sinai and Palestine, pp. 147-48).

165. (that you do not water your flocks). Here once more the Qur'an corrects the Bible. The number of the daughters was not seven, as given in Ex. 2: 16 but two.

166. (as befits modest maidens).

167. (who cannot come here to help, so we have to do the work). He was at once priest and king of his tribe. . . . It does not at all militate against this view of the rank of Reuel that his daughters watered their father's flock; for, in the simplicity of ancient times, chief's daughters, and even princess, condescended to such an occupation.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, pp. 61-62).

168. (as befitted a chivalrous man like him). Cf. the Bible;—'And the shepherds came and drove them away: but Moses stood up and helped them, and watered their flock.' (Ex. 2: 17) 'He "delivered" the maidens from the shepherds, drove them off by threats or blows, and enabled his protegees to complete their watering without further molestation.' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 60).

169. (after the maidens had gone back).

170. —a hungry, homeless wanderer as he then was——

171. (with the sleeve of her shirt over her face). This was Zipporah, who eventually became wife of Moses and mother of Gershom.

172. i.e., that he may recompense thee for the trouble which thou hast taken in watering our sheep for us. 'And he said unto his daughters. And where is he? why is it that ye have left the man? Call him, that he may eat bread.' (Ex. 2: 20) 'The brave action naturally led to the damsels' father inviting Moses into his tent, to "eat bread" with him, in the homely phrase of the time' (Rawlinson, Moses: His Life and Times, p. 60).

173. (of his having inadvertently killed the Egyptian and then leaving the country in fear).

173-A. As the territory of Madyan lay beyond the Egyptian control.

174. i.e., engage him on wages to tend our sheep in our stead.

175. (and he is both).
176. (to tend my sheep).

177. This ancient Hebrew system of obtaining a wife by services rendered to her father is still extant in several parts of the world. This practice, with which the man generally has to go and live with the family of his future spouse for a certain time, during which he works as a servant. The period of service varies greatly among different peoples; it seldom lasts less than a year, and may even last as many as ten or twelve or fifteen years.' (Westermarck, op. cit. p. 158).

178. (and an act of grace on thy part).

179. (by imposing on thee the terms of ten years as a condition).

180. i. e., those who are faithful to their covenants.

SECTION 4

29. (نا) When Măsă had fulfilled the term and was journeying with his family,\(^{183}\) he saw a fire on the side of Tăr.\(^{184}\) and said to his family: bide you here; I see a fire afar,\(^{185}\) haply I may bring to you news of it,\(^{186}\) or a brand out of the fire, haply you may warm yourselves.\(^{187}\)

30. (نا) Then when he had arrived thereto,\(^{188}\) he was called from the right side\(^{189}\) of the valley in the ground blessed with the tree:\(^{190}\) Măsă \(^{191}\) verily I I am Allah, the Lord of the worlds;

31. (نا) And when he saw it stirring as though it were a serpent, he turned in flight and looked not back. Măsă \(^{192}\) draw nigh, and fear not; thou art of the secure ones

\(^{181}\) (the covenant).

\(^{182}\) (if I then quit thy service). ‘It has been said that Moses was Reuel’s “slave”; but this is entirely to misapprehend his position. He was a refugee whom an Arab sheikh had taken under his protection and received into his household out of compassion and kindness. He naturally placed his services at the disposal of his benefactor, and employed himself as his benefactor suggested. But he continued a free-agent. . . . Reuel after a time gave him one of his daughters to wife, and having thus become a member of the tribe and of the family, it was natural that he should make his permanent home in the tents of his new kindred.’ (Rawlinson, \textit{Moses: His Life and Times}, p. 62).

\(^{183}\) (to Egypt). The household or family comprised of his wife and two children. ‘And Moses took his wife and his sons and set them upon an ass.’ (Ex. 4: 20) ‘And he took with him his Zipporah, the daughter of Reuel, whom he had married, and the children he had by her, Gershom and Eleazar' ("Ant." II. 13: 1).

184. See P. XVI. n. 255.
185. See P. XVI. n. 255, 256.
186. (regarding our way). They had lost the way.
187. See P. XVI. n. 257.
188. (by a Voice).
189. i. e., from the right-hand side of Moses.
190. 'And he had the flock to the back side of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb. And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and, behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed,' (Ex. 3: 1-2).

191. The epithet 'Lord of the Worlds' is added to emphasize the fact that God is not to be located to any particular spot, much less to a 'burning bush.' He is beyond all space, transcending all objects. See also P. XVI. nn. 260, 261; P. XIX. n. 395.

192. See P. XVI. n. 266.
32. (ملك... فغين) Slip thy hand in thy bosom, it will come forth white without hurt and draw back the arm to thee for fear. These will be two evidences from thy Lord for Fir'awn and his chiefs; verily they have been a people given to transgression.

33. (قال... يلعن) He said Lord! I have slain a man among them, and I fear they may slay me;

34. (واني... بكذبون) and may brother Ḥārūn! He is more eloquent than I in speech. So send him with me as a support to corroborate me, verily I fear they will belie me.

35. (قال... النير) Allah said: We shall indeed strengthen thy arm with thy brother, and We shall give to you authority, so that they shall not be able to come up to you. Go forth with Our signs! You twain and those who follow you shall be the victors.

36. (ناما... الآراء) The when Mūsā came to them with Our manifest signs, they said: this is naught but magic fabricated, and we heard not of this in our fathers of old.

37. (وقال... الأظلم) And Mūsā said: my Lord best knows him who brings guidance from before the Lord and him whose will be the happy end of the Abode. Verily the ungodly shall not thrive.

193. (by way of a miracle). See also P. XVI. nn. 268, 269.
194. ‘For fear’ is tantamount to ‘to drive away fear,’ ‘to guard against fear,’ i.e., if thou be frightened with this miracle of thee.
195. i.e., evidences such as the Egyptians could understand.
196. See P. XVI. n. 271.
197. (before I get time to deliver the message). ‘Moses and Aaron, when they appeared before him, took their lives in their hands. He was an irresponsible despot. . . . There was no security against an outbreak of irrepressible anger, if the petition was considered an improper one, and, during the outbreak, a sign might be made, or a word spoken, dooming the petitioners to death.’ (Rawlinson, \textit{Jesus: His Life and Times}, p. 89).

198. See XVI. n. 276.

199. (and then a debate will ensue when eloquence of speech is greatly needed).

200. (and prestige in a special degree). \textit{Cf.} the Bible:—‘And the \textbf{Lord said unto Moses}. \textit{See, I have made thee a god to Pharaoh: and Aaron thy brother shall be thy prophet. Thou shalt speak all that I command thee: and Aaron thy brother shall speak unto Pharaoh, that he send the children of Israel out of his land. And I will harden Pharaoh’s heart, and multiply my signs and my wonders in the land of Egypt. . . . And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I stretch forth mine hand upon Egypt, and bring out the children of Israel from among them.’ (Ex. 7: 1-5).

201. \textit{i. e.,} wonders and miracles.

202. (denying the divine origin of those miracles altogether).

203. The idolatrous Egyptians were total strangers to the ideas of true Godhead, messengership, revelation, in short, to all element of true religion.

204. (and He is my witness).

205. (of bliss) \textit{i. e.,} whose end will be the best in the \textit{Hereafter}.

206. \textit{i. e.,} those who are not on the path of true religion.
38. And Fri‘awn said, O chiefs! I know not of a god for you except me. So light thou for me, Hamân130 and make for me a lofty tower110 that I may ascend to god of Mûsâ; and surely I imagine him to be of liars.111

39. And he and his hosts were stiff-necked in the land unjustifiably and imagined that they would not be brought back to Us 813

40. So We seized him and his hosts and flung them into the sea. So behold thou what has been the end of the ungodly!

41. We have made them leaders calling to the Fire, and they shall not be succoured on the Day of Resurrection.

42. And We caused a curse117 to pursue them in this world and on the Day of Resurrection they will be of the castaway.

SECTION 5

43. And assuredly We vouchsafed to Mûsâ, after We had destroyed the generations of old, the Scripture, enlightenment to mankind and a guidance and a mercy, that haply they be admonished.

207. Pharaoh-worship was very much akin to Mikado-worship, and the 'divinity' of the ancient Egyptian Imperial House bore close resemblance to that of the present-day Japanese Imperial House. The Pharaoh was a veritable Incarnate Deity. 'The king in that first monarchy was the visible god upon earth. The only thing like it that has been since seen is the deification of the Roman emperors. No pure monotheism would for a moment have been compatible with such an intense exaltation.' (Stanley, Sinai and Palestine, Intro. p. XXXI). 'It is a well-known fact that the Egyptians, from the earliest traceable period of their history, believed their kings to be embodied forms of certain gods. . . . The reigning king was regarded as “Horus” (the national god of Lower Egypt in prehistoric times, and, later, of the whole kingdom). . . . The reigning king was styled “the good god,” or, at an earlier day, “the great god,”’ (ERE. VI. p. 647) Pharaoh ‘was not merely looked upon as the earthly representative of the god Horus . . . but he was actually regarded as a form or manifestation of that god. The king was therefore a god, and indeed was commonly spoken of as the “good god.” Moreover, by the time of the Vth dynasty the king was believed to be the physical son of the sun-god, the State-god of Egypt.’ (ERE. X. p. 294) See also P. XIX. nn. 181, 182; P. XXX. 75.

208. See n. 100 above and Appendix IV at the end of the Chapter.

209. (into bricks). Note that brick, rather than stone, was the general building material used in ancient Egypt, and the Egyptians were well-known for brick-making. ‘The two countries of brick-makers and brick-builders were Egypt and Mesopotamia. . . . Egyptian bricks were usually twice the size of our modern ones. Many of them (from dynasty 18 onwards) were stamped with the name of a king, to show that they belonged to public buildings. . . . Stamps as well as moulds have been preserved to modern times, and bricks with the name of Rameses II, “the Pharaoh of the oppression,” are shown in our museum.’ (EBI. c. 609) ‘Egypt has yielded numerous examples of bricks, manufactured in the earliest and subsequent dynasties.’ (EBR. IV. p. 111).

210. Note that Pharaoh directs Hāmān, who was most presumably the Theban High-Priest of Amon (see n. 100 above) to undertake this work of construction. It is distinctly interesting to learn further respecting this god Amon: ‘There is also a superior chief scribe for Amon, who keeps the roll of the sanctuary’s possessions. And since in a great temple of the New Kingdom the erection of new buildings and the works of restoration are never interrupted, he has also his own administration of construction, to which all works are subordinated. . . . To secure order in the temple and on the estates, the god keeps his own military forces with superior and inferior officers, and since amongst these dependents very secular proceedings often take place, he has also his own prison.’ (HHW. I. 227).

211. The idea was not so fantastic to the Egyptians as it appears to us. ‘From the earliest days there was a craving for association with the gods. . . . The association with the gods was the way of protection against the evils of the future life. The sky-goddess, Nut, was besought to guard the dead that came to her. The desire to ascend to the gods in the sky was expressed by wanting the ladder to go up, an image naturally adopted by a people accustomed to go up ladders to their homes in the trees, as in the East Africa at present, and as shown by the figures of the huts in the land of Punt.’ (Petrie, Religious Life in Ancient Egypt, pp. 208-209) ‘Thumis had the stairway to the sky, which was kept by Set.’ (p. 84).
212. (in his assertion that there exists a Supreme All-Powerful Lord of the Universe).

213. (for judgment).

215. (O Prophet!)

216. (by their precept and practice).

217. A curse which is the lot of every ungodly person.

218. Not only the people of Pharaoh but also other and earlier ungodly peoples.
44. And thou wast not on the western side when We decreed the affair to Mūsā, and thou wast not of the witnesses.

45. And We produced generations and life was prolonged unto them, nor wast thou a dweller among the people of Madyan, reciting to them Our revelations, but it is We Who were to send.

46. Nor wast thou beside the Tūr when We called, but thou art sent as a mercy from thy Lord that thou mayest warn a people to whom no warner came before thee, that haply they might be admonished.

47. And lest an affliction had visited them for what their hands had sent before, they should have said: our Lord! why did not Thou send a messenger unto us, so that we might have followed Thy revelations and been of the believers.

219. (of Sinai where Mount Tūr stands, O Prophet!).

220. (so We are acquainting thee with these facts by Revelation).

221. (after generations since the time of Moses).

222. i. e., long ages passed over them, and they forgot the teachings of the prophets.

223. i. e., thy contemporaries.

224. (regarding that remote past).

225. (thee as a prophet fully instructed in every particular). The plural number of Musliim is expressio of Majesty.

226. (to Moses; yet thou art relating every particular with perfect exactitude).

227. (for generations past). The reference is to the pagans of Makka, who had had no prophet sent to them since the time of Ismā‘īl. The holy Prophet, in addition to being the universal Prophet, was also in a special degree an Arabian prophet. He had a dual office: one to reform mankind, the other to reclaim his own nation. It is in the latter capacity that he is spoken of here.

228. i. e., as the inevitable result of their misdeeds.

229. (by way of excusing themselves).
48. Yet when the truth is come to them from before Us, they say: why has he not been vouchsafed the like of what was given to Mūsā? Did they not disbelieve in what was given to Mūsā before? They say: two magics supporting each other. And they say: we are disbelievers in all such things.

49. Say thou: then bring a Book from before Allah that is better in guidance than these two, and I shall follow it—if you are truthful.

50. Then if they do not answer thee, know thou that they only follow their own desires; and who is farther astray than he who follows his own desire without a guidance from Allah? Verily Allah does not guide a wrong-doing people.

SECTION 6

51. And assuredly We have caused the Word to reach them in succession, that haply they may be admonised.

52. Those unto whom We vouchsafed the Book before it—they believe therein.

53. And when it is rehearsed to them, they say: we believe therein, verily this is the truth from our Lord; verily We have been even before it of those who submit themselves.

54. These shall be vouchsafed their wage twice over, because they have persevered, and they repel evil with good, and expend of what We have provided them.

230. (in the form of the Qur'ān).
231. i.e., Revealed like the Torah all at once. (Th).
232. (regarding the Torah and the Qur'ān).
233. The reference is to the pagans' total rejection of Revelation.
234. i.e., can produce no such Book, and yet refuse to believe in Islam.
235. i.e., those who do wrong deliberately.
236. (so that each time they may have a fresh impetus to belief).
237. i. e., the just and fair-minded amongst the people of the Book.
238. i. e., in the Holy Qur'ān.
239. i. e., such Jews and Christians as intended to embrace Islam.
240. i. e., so consonant with the fundamentals of our Scriptures and attested to by them.

241. Look at the grudging and very amusing admission of a modern Jew,—a rank reviler of the Prophet. ‘Moḥammed . . . had received considerable encouragement from certain Jews in Mekka. Some had accepted Islam; others, doubtless, had flattered him, or even hailed him as a prophet, in the hope of bringing him over to Judaism.’ (Torrey, Jewish Foundation of Islam, p. 128).

242. i. e., the Jews and Christians who have become Muslims.
243. (in their belief in the face of persecution).
244. i. e., persecution.
245. i. e., patience and forbearance.
246. (in alms).
55. (ر و اذا ... الجهلين) And when they hear a vain discourse, they withdraw therefrom and say: to us our works, and to you your works; peace be to you; and we do not seek the ignorance.

56. (الله ... المهمدن) Verily thou canst not guide whomsoever thou likest, but it is Allah Who shall guide whomsoever He will. And He knows best who are the guided.

57. (قالا ... لا يعلمون) And they say: were we to follow the guidance with thee, we shall be snatched away from our land. Have We not established for them an inviolable sanctuary to which are brought all manner of fruits a provision from Our presence? Yet most of them know not.

58. (ملك ... الوزراء) And how many a city have We destroyed that exulted in their living, and yonder are their dwellings which have not been inhabited after them unless for a little while; and verily We have been the inheritors.

59. (درا كان ... ظلمون) Nor was thy Lord to destroy the cities until He had raised up in their mother-city a messenger reciting to them Our revelations. Nor were We to destroy the cities unless their inhabitants had been ungodly.

247. (regarding themselves or their faith).

248. (firmly yet politely).

249. This in intended not as a salutation, but as the waiving of further argumentation.

250. i.e., we seek not an argument with them.

251. (so grieve not if thy efforts to win over thy dearest ones to the cause of the true religion remain abortive, O Prophet!).

252. It is beyond the power of man—even of the greatest man—to make any one see the right path. It is God alone who can, and does guide in accordance with His infinite wisdom.

253. Far from having the power to show the path of guidance to others, no mortal has even the knowledge of those who shall be guided.
254. i. e., the Quraish tribe of Makka.
255. (to the Prophet).
256. ——and we believe that thou preachest the truth— —
257. (and shall be expelled from Makka like the rest of the followers). This implies that the Arab pagans did in the heart of their hearts believe in the truth of the Holy Prophet, but considerations of material loss prevented them from openly accepting his guidance. ‘As glorifier of his Lord, admonisher to his people, messenger and prophet (nabi) of Allah, Muhammad was gaining few converts. . . . Abū-Sufyān, representing the aristocratic and influential Umayyad branch of Quraysh, stood adamant. What they considered a heresy seemed to run counter to the best economic interests of the Quraysh as custodians of al-Kabah, the pantheon of multitudinous deities and centre of a pan-Arabian pilgrimage.’ (Hitti, op. cit., p. 113).
258. i. e., the sacred territory of Makka —— a place protected by God and revered by man. So why should you be afraid of molestation?
259. i. e., merely out of Our providence. So why should you be afraid of destitution?
260. i. e., understand not these ways of the Providence.
261. (and rolled, like Makkān, in riches). It is wholly erroneous to think of the pagan Makkans as a people poverty-ridden and constantly on the verge of starvation. On the contrary their affluence was marked. ‘Their poverty is a myth. They were given to the most lucrative of professions—foreign trade. Referring to the overflowing life led by most of them, observes a modern French Arabist:—‘It is as if we caught the humming of a human hive or found ourselves in the vicinity of a modern Stock Exchange. There is the same constant agitation, the same money-fever, the same frenzied speculation, and also the same succession of rapid fortunes and sudden catastrophes. Makka became the Paradise of stock-brokers, of middle-men, of bankers with their money-loans placed at rates of interest which were usurious.’ (Lamensens, o. p. cit., p. 15).
262. i. e., have remained desolate and in ruins ever since.
263. For instance, by the travellers staying there for a few brief hours to rest and refresh themselves.
264. (of their wealth; they never being left to enjoy it).
265. (at their first iniquity).
266. i. e., their inhabitants.
267. (even after the preaching of the apostles).
268. i. e., until they have become confirmed in their ungodliness.
60. And whatever you are vouchsafed is an enjoyment of the life of this world and its adornment; and what is with Allah is better and more lasting. Will you not then reflect?

SECTION 7

61. Is he, then, whom We have promised an excellent promise which he is going to meet like him whom We have allowed the enjoyment of this world awhile, then on the Day of Resurrection he shall be of those arraigned?

62. And on the Day when He will call unto them and say: where are My partners whom you were wont to assert?

63. those on whom the sentence will be pronounced: our Lord: these are they whom we seduced; we seduced them even as we ourselves were seduced; we declare ourselves quit of them before Thee; not ourselves they were wont to worship.

64. And it shall be said: call upon your associate-gods. And they will call upon them, and they shall not be answered, and they shall see the torment. Would that they had received the guidance!

65. And on the Day when He shall call unto them and say: what answer did you give to Our envoys?

66. Bedimmed unto them on that Day shall be all excuses and so they shall not be able to ask one of another.

67. However, however, who will repent and believe and work righteous deeds—perchance he will be of the thrivers.

269. (of wealth and substance).
270. (bound to perish with the life of this world).
271. (of the merits of your works).
272. i.e., much superior in quality.
273. i.e., much superior in quantity.
274. (of eternal bliss).
275. (for judgment and doomed to eternal punishment).
276. i.e., co-sharer of My divine power.
277. i.e., the devils.
278. (of eternal damnation, as the author of all evil and mischief).
279. (half confessing and half concealing their guilt).
280. (without any compulsion on our part: it is they themselves who willingly acted upon our evil suggestions).
281. (without any external compelling agency).
282. (alone, or in the first instance).
283. (to the polytheists).
284. (staring them in the face).
285. (while still in this world).
286. i.e., their minds in extreme consternation and bewilderment shall be perfectly blank, and they shall not be able to return any answer at all.
287. (in this life).
68. (و ربك ...) يشركون
And thy Lord creates whatsoever He wills and chooses; no choice\textsuperscript{288} is to be for them.\textsuperscript{289} Hallowed be Allah and exalted above what they associate!\textsuperscript{290}

69. (و ربك ...) يبدلون
And thy Lord knows what their hearts conceal\textsuperscript{291} and what they disclose.\textsuperscript{292}

70. (و هو ...) تترجمن
He is Allah! there is no god but He! His is all praise in the first\textsuperscript{293} and in the last;\textsuperscript{294} and His is the command,\textsuperscript{295} and to Him you shall be returned.\textsuperscript{296}

71. (قل ...) نسمون
Say thou:\textsuperscript{287} think you, if Allah made night continuous for you till the Day of Resurrection, what god is there beside Allah, who would bring you light? Do you not hear?\textsuperscript{298}

72. (قل ...) تعبرون
Say thou:\textsuperscript{298} think you, if Allah made for you day continuous till the Day of Resurrection, what god is there, beside Allah, who would bring you night in which you have repose? Do you not see?\textsuperscript{299}

73. (و من رحمة ...) تذكر
It is of His mercy that He has made for you night and day, that in them\textsuperscript{300} you may have repose and that you may seek\textsuperscript{302} of His grace,\textsuperscript{303} and that haply you may give thanks.\textsuperscript{304}

\textsuperscript{288} (in regard to His laws, whether they are physical or moral) \textsuperscript{289} i.e., the created beings.
\textsuperscript{290} (with Him). He is above all restrictions and limitations that ignorant philosophers of Greece and other polytheists have sought to impose on His illimitable, infinite power, potency, and majesty.
\textsuperscript{291} (of secret malice towards Islam).
\textsuperscript{292} (of open hostility).
\textsuperscript{293} i.e., in this world.
\textsuperscript{294} i.e., in the Hereafter.
295. (in this world and the Next).

296. He is the Supreme, All-Pervading, Omniscient—not one of the gods but the sole God.

297. (O Prophet!).

298. (to such arguments of His undivided, undisputed suzerainty).

299. (O Prophet!).

300. (such evident proofs of His omnipotence).

301. i. e., in the former. See P. XXI, n. 131; XXX. n. 9.

302. (in the day-time).

303. i. e., obtain provision. See P. XXX, n. 11.

304. (by recognizing His unity).
74. And on the Day when He shall call unto them, and say: where are My associates whom you were wont to assert?

75. We shall take out from every community a witness. We shall say: come forth with your proof; then they will know that the truth was Allah's, and astray will go from them what they were wont to fabricate.

SECTION 8

76. Verily Qaṭīn was of the people of Mūsâ, then he behaved arrogantly towards them. And We had vouchsafed him of the treasures that of which the keys would have weighed down a band of strong men. Recall when his people said to him: exult not; verily Allah does not like the exultant.

77. And seek the abode of the Hereafter with what Allah has vouchsafed thee and forget not thy portion in the world, and be thou generous and Allah has been generous to thee, and seek not corruption in the land verily Allah approves not corrupters.

305. i.e., the polytheists.
307. (of the infidels to bear testimony against them).
308. i.e., the prophet sent to that particular people.
309. (of your false doctrines).
310. i.e., come to realise.
311. (conveyed to them through His prophets).
312. i.e., Korah of the Bible.
313. (and a near relative of his). He belonged to the family of Levi and was a cousin of Moses.
314. But *بَعْثَ إِلَيْهِ is also 'He envied his brother; he wished that a blessing, or cause of happiness, or an excellence, might become transferred from his brother to himself.' (LL). The Bible gives a rather meagre account of his 'rising' against Moses and Aaron (on them be peace!) ‘And they rose up before Moses, with certain of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, famous in the congregation, men of renown: And they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them, Ye take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the Lord is among them: wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the Lord’? (Nu. 16:2, 3) Josephus supplies some details:—‘Corah, an Hebrew of principal account, both by his family and by his wealth . . . saw that Moses was in an exceeding great dignity, and was uneasy at it, and envied him on that account, (he was of the same tribe with Moses, and of kin to him,) being particularly grieved, because he thought he better deserved that honourable post on account of his great riches, and as not inferior to him in his birth. So he raised a clamour against him among the Levites, who were of the same tribe, and especially among his kindred, saying that . . . . if God had determined to bestow that honour on the eldest tribe that of Reubel might have it more justly: and then Dathan and Abiram, and (on the son of) Paleth, would have it, for these are eldest men of that tribe, and potent on account of their great wealth also?’ (‘Ant.’ IV. 2:2).

315. ‘Would weigh down the company of men possessing strength.’ (LL) ‘Korah is represented as the possessor of extraordinary wealth, he having discovered one of the treasuries which Joseph had hidden in Egypt. The keys of Korah's treasuries alone formed a load for three hundred mules’ (JE. VII. p. 556). A great banker and financier as he was, he must have employed a large staff of cashiers, accountants, ledger-keepers and peons.

316. (in the abundance of thy riches).

317. (by expending thy wealth in the service of God).

318. (of riches).

319. (by working therein for the Next world). Wealth, in Islam, in not to be regarded as an excuse for vanity and luxury, but is to be held as an opportunity for giving freely to the service of God and humanity.

320. (unto mankind).

321. (by infringing the laws of God).
78. He said: I have achieved all this because of the knowledge I possess. Did he not know that Allah had destroyed before him, of the generations, who were stronger than he in might and larger in respect of following? And the culprits will not be questioned of their sins.

79. Then he went forth before his people in his pomp. Then those who sought the life of this world said: would that we had the like of what has been vouchsafed to Qarūn? Surely he is the owner of a great fortune.

80. And those were given the knowledge said: woe be to you! the reward of Allah is best for him who believes and works righteously, and none shall attain it except the steadfast.

81. Then We sank the earth with him and his dwelling-place. And he had no host to defend him against Allah, nor was he of those who could defend themselves.

322. i.e., what is this foolish talk about the grace and bounty of God? I have earned all this wealth on account of my own skill in the art of making money.

323. (on the Day of Judgment).

324. (for the purpose of arriving at a decision, sins are already known to God). Culprits would be questioned only to add to their anguish and chagrin.

325. i.e., in the pride of his worldly glitter, attended perhaps by many dependents and sycophants.

326. (envying his apparent happiness).

327. (of worldly riches).

328. That Korah was joined by a large number of malcontents is borne out by the Jewish tradition, 'Korah incited all the people against Moses, arguing that it was quite impossible to endure the laws instituted by the latter,' (JE. VII. p. 557).

329. (to their less discerning brethren).
330. (in the Hereafter).
331. i. e., a thousand times better than all this worldly pomp and glitter.
332. i. e., those who restrain themselves from the greed of this world.
333. 'And We made the ground to sink with, and swallow up, him and his mansion.' (LL).
334. (although he presumed on the large number of his supporters and followers).
335. Cf. the OT:—'The ground clave asunder that was under them: And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their houses, and all the men that appertained unto Korah, and all their goods. They, and all that appertained to them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed upon them: and they perished from among the congregation.' (Nu. 16: 31-33) See also "Ant". IV. 3: 3, 4. 'At the time of Korah's engulfment, the earth became like a funnel, and everything that belonged to him, even linen that was at the launderer's and needles that had been borrowed by persons living at a distance from Korah, rolled till it fell into the chasm. According to the Rabbis, Korah himself underwent the double punishment of being burned and buried alive.' (JE. VII. p. 557).
82. And those who had coveted his lot the day before now began to say: Ah! Allah expands the provision for whomsoever of His bondmen He wills, and also stints.\(^{336}\) Had not Allah been gracious to us, He would have sunk the earth with us also.\(^{337}\) Ah! the infidels do not thrive.\(^{338}\)

SECTION 9

83. This is the abode of the Hereafter;\(^{339}\) We assign it to those only who do not seek exaltation\(^{340}\) or corruption\(^{341}\) in the land; and the happy end is for the God-fearing.\(^{342}\)

84. Whosoever brings good\(^{343}\) shall have better than it,\(^{344}\) and whosoever brings evil, then those who work evil deeds shall only be rewarded for what they have been working.\(^{345}\)

85. Verily He who has imposed the Qur’ān\(^{346}\) on thee is surely to bring thee back home.\(^{347}\) Say thou: my Lord knows best as to who brings guidance and who is in an error manifest.\(^{348}\)

\(^{336}\) (for whomsoever He will; and this is no criterion of a man’s good fortune).

\(^{337}\) ‘And all Israel that were round about them fled at the cry of them: for they said, Lest the earth swallow us up also.’ (Nu. 16: 34).

\(^{338}\) (in the end).

\(^{339}\) (which alone is worth striving after).

\(^{340}\) (of themselves).

\(^{341}\) The word, as contrary of صلاح, includes every sort of evil and wrong.

\(^{342}\) This verse was recited by the Prophet at the end of his last public address.

\(^{343}\) (in the Hereafter).

\(^{344}\) i.e., the reward shall far exceed the merit of the deed.

\(^{345}\) i.e., shall be rewarded only according to the merit.

\(^{346}\) i.e., imposed its rectical and preaching and the acting on its statutes and ordinances.

\(^{347}\) (O Prophet!).

\(^{348}\) i.e., Makka. The verse was revealed to comfort the Prophet on his Hijrat journey at a place between Makka and Medina.

\(^{349}\) i.e., He is the final Arbiter.
86. (ودم كَتَب.... فَكَفَرْنَا) And thou wast not expecting that the Book would be inspired in thee, but it is a mercy from thy Lord; so do not be thou a supporter of the infidels.

87. (وَلَا... المُشْرِكِينَ) And let them not turn thee aside from the signs of Allah after they have been sent down unto thee. And call thee mankind to thy Lord, and do not be thou of the associators.

88. (وَلَا... تَجُوعُونَ) And do not invoke thou any other god along with Allah. There is no god but He. Perishable is everything save His Face. His is the judgement, and to Him you all shall be returned.

350. (in thy pre-prophetic period).
351. The gift of prophethood is a purely and absolutely Divine gift, which no mortal can reckon beforehand.
352. (undreamt of by thee).
353. (in the future as thou hast not been in the past).
354. (in any way) i.e., never be hesitant or halting; go on preaching the true doctrine conscious of the help of God, and disregardful of all opposition and persecution.
355. (by joining hands with them even in trivial matters of faith).
356. Many of the Arabian pagans fondly hoped that the Prophet acting on the policy of ‘give and take’ might be persuaded to make a compromise with them in some matters of faith at least. The verse in the text was to put an end to all such fancies and delusions.
357. He alone is Immortal, Ever-living; all else is perishable. In the whole of the universe everything is slippery, doubtful; death alone is certain. This also negatives the immortality of soul, matter or anything except God. ُهُوَ لَهُمُ السَّمَاعُمُ نَسِيَةً يُطْرِعُونَهَا، literally, ‘His countenance’ signifies ‘His self’ or ‘Him.’

APPENDIX—IV

Historicity of the Hamans mentioned in the Quran and the Bible

( XXVIII-Surat-ul-Qasas, Verse 6, No. 100 )

Sher Mohammad Syed

1. Introduction: Controversy has prevailed since 1698 A.D. about historicity of the Haman who, according to the Quran, was associated with the court of the Pharaoh to whom Moses was deputed as a Prophet by Almighty Allah. Marraccio, George Sale, Rev. E. M. Wherry, Encyclopaedia Britannica and Encyclopaedia of Islam are some of the noteworthy critics in this regard. They were inspired by the biblical book of Esther in which a mythical Haman figures as a principal character. We propose to examine here various aspects of the controversy in the light of recent historical researches and archaeological discoveries in order to assess the justifiability or otherwise of the criticism of the various orientalists.

2. Mention of The Haman in the Quran: Let us first see what the Quran says about the Haman in question. He has been mentioned at six places in the Holy Quran. Reproduced below is Pickthall’s translation of the verses containing reference to Haman:

(a) “Lo! Pharaoh exalted himself in the earth and made its people castes. A tribe among them he oppressed, killing their sons and sparing their woman. Lo! he was of those who work corruption. And We desired to show favour unto those who were oppressed in the earth, and to make them examples, and to make them the inheritors, and to establish them in the earth, and to show Pharaoh and Haman and their hosts that which they feared from them.”

(b) “And the family of Pharaoh took him up, that he might become for them an enemy and a sorrow. Lo! Pharaoh and Haman and their hosts were ever sinning.”

(c) “And Pharaoh said: O chiefs! I know not that ye have a god other than me so kindle for me (a fire), O Haman, to bake the mud, and set up for me a lofty tower in order that I may survey the God of Moses; and Lo! I deem him of the liars.”

(d) “And Korah, Pharaoh and Haman! Moses came unto them with clear proofs (of Allah’s sovereignty), but they were boastful in the land. And they were not winners (in the race).”
(e) "And verily we sent Moses with Our revelation and a clear warrant, unto Pharaoh and Haman and Korah, but they said: A lying sorcerer! And when he brought them the Truth from Our presence, they said: Slay the sons of those who believe with him, and spare their women. But the plot of the disbelievers is naught but error."

(f) "And Pharaoh said: O Haman! Build for me a tower that haply I may reach the roads, the roads of the heavens, and may look upon the God of Moses, though verily I think him a liar. Thus was the evil that he did make fairseeming unto Pharaoh, and he was debarred from the (right) way. The plot of Pharaoh ended but in ruin."

3. Criticism of Western Scholars: The Western Scholars have not been able to identify correctly the Haman of the Quran and hence their criticism about his historicity. The first critic to enter the lists in this behalf was Marraccio, confessor of Pope Innocent XI. Criticism of other orientalists is by and large based on his critical note. We reproduce hereunder their critical observations:—

(a) English rendering of critical note appearing at page 526 of Marraccio's Latin translation of the Quran.

"Mahumet has mixed up sacred stories. He took Haman as an adviser of Pharaoh whereas in reality he was adviser of Ahasuerus, king of Persia. He also thought the Pharaoh ordered construction for him of a lofty tower from the top of which he could see the God of Moses, which if true would be inferior to him. There is no doubt that he borrowed the story of this tower from the story of the tower of Babel. It is certain that in the Sacred Scriptures there is no such story of the Pharaoh. Be that as it may, he (Mahumet) has related a most incredible story."

(b) George Sale and Wherry have stated:—

"Haman: This name is given to Pharaoh's Chief Minister, from which it is generally inferred that Muhammad has here made Haman the favourite of Ahasuerus, king of Persia, and who indisputably lived many ages after Moses, to be that Prophet's (Moses') contemporary. But how-so-ever probable this mistake may seem to us, it will be very hard, if not impossible, to convince a Muhammadan of it."

Palmer and Rodwell in their translations of the Quran (p. 329 and p. 243, London 1953 and 1948 respectively) and Hughes in his Dictionary of Islam (London p. 160) have also criticised the Quran in this respect.

(c) Professor Torrey has indulged in criticism to the effect that the Prophet Muhammad drew upon the Rabbinic legend of Esther and even adapted the story of the tower of Babel.

(d) Professor Lammens has mentioned, "the most glaring anachronism" and "the confusion between Haman, minister of King Ahasuerus and the minister of Moses' Pharaoh."
More-over it may be mentioned in passing that Professor Lammens, ruefully bewailed that even after the death of Prophet Muhammad, the scribes of the Quran dared not revise the “qirava Mushhura” or the textus receptus in order to remove inter alia such a “glaring anachronism”, which he alleged to exist. Thus he indirectly admitted that unlike the various books of the Bible including the book of Esther which were significantly altered in later periods, the original text of the Quran as revealed remained in its pristine purity, which in fact, is a unique feature of this Holy Book as is admitted by all of its critics.

(e) Raphael Patai in his book entitled “The Arab Mind” has talked of “anachronism and Koranic ahistoricity” which according to him displays “lack of historical sequence”. In support of his contention, he has inter alia given the example of Haman.11

(f) Rodinson has also talked of anachronism and has alleged that the book of Esther is the source of the story of Haman which he, moreover, alleged to have been distorted by Muhammad in the course of transmission.12

(g) In his History of The Arabs, P.K. Hitti has sarcastically remarked that Haman, the favourite of Ahasuerus himself appears as the minister of Pharaoh 13

(h) Dr. Kaufmann has referred to “confusions” about mixing up “the stories of Moses and the Tower of Babel by having Pharaoh ask Haman to build for him a tower.”14

(i) Encyclopaedia Britannica (1927 and 1960 editions) also alleged that confusion existed in the Quran in respect of Haman.15

(ii) The Encyclopaedia of Islam (1927 edition) states: “Haman, the Persian minister hostile to the Jews in the Book of Esther, according to the Koran (XL : 25 i.e. (e) of para 2 above) acted with Karun (Korah) on Firaun’s council and filled the office of grand-vizier. These two learned of the approaching birth of Musa and advised that the boys should be slain and the girls allowed to live. When Musa appeared as a prophet of God, they called him a liar. Firaun said, O, Haman, build me a tower, on which I shall reach the paths to heaven, and ascend to the God of Musa (XL : 36 et seq. i.e. f. of para 2 above). That Muhammad placed Haman in this period betrays his confused knowledge of history.”16

(ii) The Shorter Encyclopaedia of Islam re-echoes the above criticism.17

(iii) The latest edition (1971) of Encyclopaedia of Islam records: “Haman, name of a person whom the Kuran associates with Pharaoh (Firaun) because of a still unexplained confusion with the minister of Ahasuerus in the Biblical book of Esther.”18

Before proceeding further, we would like to emphasise that the information given by the Encyclopaedia of Islam as reproduced at (i) above is replete with grave blunders which are misleading. In the first place the Quran does not at all describe Haman as "Grand Vizier" or "Chief Minister" of Pharaoh. Moreover it has nowhere stated that Karun (Korah) was Pharaoh's minister. To both is applicable the Quranic term "Mala" of the Pharaoh. What is worst is that verse 25 of Surah XL does not at all relate to the period preceding the birth of Musa as erroneously presumed. On the contrary, it relates to the period following Musa's presentation of his credentials as a Prophet to the Pharaoh, the Haman and Korah whereupon the three rejected his commission, dubbing him a lying sorcerer. Not only that, they plotted also to kill sons of his followers, sparing their daughters. What immediately follows in verses 26 of the above mentioned Surah is obviously the considered proposal of the Pharaoh, to kill Musa himself. It is moreover significant to state that the Quran does not support the statement to the effect that these two (namely the Haman and Qarun) learned of the approaching birth of Musa and advised that the boys should be slain and the girls allowed to live. Obviously realising the utter untenability of these statements made in the first edition of the Encyclopaedia of Islam, its editors deleted them in the subsequent edition. The unfounded allegation of confusion relating to Haman is retained in the latest edition which we shall deal with hereafter.

4. Identification of the HAMAN of the QURAN: A. We give hereunder extracts from the works of famous historians and eminent archaeologists of ancient Egypt to establish identity of the Haman who was contemporary of the Pharaoh and Moses:

(a) Professer Sir Flinders Petrie writes: "The dispersion of the worship of Amen is noted above as pointing to its coming through the (Libyan) oases; and there seems no reason to question that the primitive Oasis worship of Ammon or Hammon, was the origin on the one hand of the Egyptian Amen or Amun, and on the other of the Carthaginian Baal Haman". 19

(b) Impersonation of the god Amen, which is the same as Haman, as is clear from (a) above is also a well established fact. That the high priest of Amen used to impersonate the god Amen is clear from the following quotation from a world famous authority. Professor (later Sir) Flinders Petrie states in "The Religion of Ancient Egypt:"

Possibly the combination arose from the priests wearing the heads of animals when personating the god, as the high priest wore the ram's skin when personating Amon." 20

B. An important question that arises is: — Was it only the supreme god Amon (Haman) whose high priest impersonated that god? The answer is that priests and priestesses of ancient Egypt as a rule actually impersonated their respective gods and goddesses. Not only that, they also exercised their functions. 21

This is also evidenced by researches of eminent Egyptologists like Sir Wallis Budge and professor Jaroslav Cerny whom we quote below:—
Sir Wallis Budge has stated in his "Egyptian Religion":

"This chapter may be fittingly ended by a few extracts from the songs of Isis and Nephtys which were sung in the temple of Amen-Ra at Thebes by two priestesses who personified the two goddesses "(Isis and Nephtys)\(^\text{22}\)

According to Professor Jaroslav Cerny the practice of impersonation of divinities was, in earlier times the prerogative of the Pharaoh but with the passage of time it spread to priests and later even to other mortals who officiated for the priests at the rites. This is established by the following quotation from Cerny’s "Ancient Egyptian Religion":

"After the end of the Old Kingdom a vast wave of democratization passed through Egyptian religious and funerary ideas and conceptions and all those privileges of the kings were now transferred to other mortals, every dead person was now identified with Osiris, and his son or any officiant performing the rites in his stead was regarded as Horus".\(^\text{23}\)

In short, god Amon’s (Haman’s) high priest, who was contemporary of Moses and the then Pharaoh, was the Haman of the Quran. Identity of the Haman of the Quran having thus been established beyond any doubt, it is absolutely clear that the mythical Haman, of the romantic fable of the Book of Esther, of a much later age has nothing to do what-so-ever with the Haman of the Quran. We fail to understand how and why the Western critics have confounded the two despite knowing full well that there was a gap of many centuries between the age of the Pharaoh and Moses on the one hand and on the other the age of a mythical Persian king Ahasuerus and his unhistorical minister Haman. Rodinson’s suggestion that the story of the Haman of the Quran was drawn from the Book of Esther which was distorted in transmission and his astonishment at the supposed anachronism are therefore quite unjustified.

Variants of the name Amon or Haman: It should be borne in mind that just as Pharaoh was the generic title of the kings of ancient Egypt and not the proper name of any particular king, so exactly was Amon or Haman the generic title of the high priests when impersonating the god Amon. It was not the personal name of any such high priest. Amon is variously spelt as Aman, Amen, Amon, Ammnn, Amun, Haman, Hammon, etc. as mentioned in paragraph 4-A above.\(^\text{24}\)

It was through Haman, the high priest of Amon at Siwa that Alexander received the oracle legitimising his claim to the Egyptian throne.

5. Sacerdotal and Political Status Of The Haman (Amon): Identity of the Haman of the Quran having been established, it is now appropriate to examine what independent and impartial authorities have stated as to his status, titles and functions. That Amon (or Haman) was a very powerful and influential god whose high priest, impersonating him as described above, wielded great power and pelf, will be clear from a perusal of the following extracts from the works of impartial historians and archaeologists:—

(a) Professor Dr. Breasted remarked: "He was regarded by the people as their great protector and no higher praise could be proffered to Amom than when addressed by a worshipper to call him the poor man's vizier who does not accept the bribe of the guilty." 26

(b) Professor Breasted adds: "The high priest (of Amom) appears as viceroy of Kush. Already... Amon had gained possession of the Nubian gold country; the High Priest has now gone a step further and seized the whole of the great province of the Upper Nile. The same inscription calls him also Overseer of the double granary, who... was the most important fiscal officer of the state, the chief treasurer himself. There is now nothing left in the way of authority for the High Priest to absorb. He is commander of all the armies, viceroy of Kush, holds the treasury in his hands, and executes the buildings of the gods." 26

(c) Professor Steindorff has written: "Thus the 'First Prophet' or the High Priest of Amon was at the same time the 'Great Superintendent of Works' and in this capacity was required to take under his charge the extensive building operations connected with the temple, and to provide splendour in his sanctuary. As a 'General of the Troops of the God' he commanded the military forces of the temple, like a mediaeval Archbishop, and as 'Perfect of the Treasury' had under his control by no means the simple administration of the finances. Nor did his authority extend only over the Amon temple and its priesthood. He was also 'Prefect of the Prophets of the Gods of Thebes' and 'Prefect of the Prophets of all the Gods of the South and the North'. This can mean nothing else than that all the priests of the country were subordinate to him and that he was the supreme spiritual authority of the realm. Of this power he knew to make good use; and it not infrequently happened that the offices of high priests in other temples, for example, that of the sun-god of Heliopolis, together with his special subordinate members of the college of Amon, were filled in accordance with his choice. In this manner not only was great political power concentrated in the hands of the Theban priesthood, but real material advantages accrued to it as well, since the rich revenues of the old temple lands flowed into the chest of a single body of priests." 27

(d) We would like to add the following extract from Professor Sir Flinders Petrie's Religious Life in Ancient Egypt—

"The priesthood of Amon received a seventh of the cultivated land of Egypt, fiftieth of the population of foreign slaves, and half a million of cattle. This was in addition to all that the previous kings had bestowed. As all the property was free of taxes the strain on the rest of the country must have been very heavy. It is no wonder that the high priests seized the office as an hereditary possession, and that they ruled upper Egypt. There was practically no independent king after Rameses III, rest of the family were increasingly in the hands of hereditary priesthood, which was the wealthiest force in the land.”

6. Creed of the Ladder to the Sky. A. Let us now proceed to examine the significance of the command of the Pharaoh to the Haman to burn the mud bricks and to erect therewith a sky-high tower with a stairway. The question arises: was the suggestion to ascend to the sky to survey if there really existed Allah of Moses made by way of sarcasm or it conformed to the prevailing religious notions of that hoary past?

(a) The idea of the Pharaoh going up the ladder to reach the sky to see the God of Moses, is in consonance with the mythology of ancient Egypt. “The ladder leading to the sky was originally an element of the Solar faith.”

(b) “The desire to ascend to the gods in the sky” was an article of ancient Egyptian religion.

B. A critical reader would naturally ask the question: Were mud bricks made and burnt in Egypt in those remote times? It is a well-known fact borne out by archaeological research that mud bricks and baked bricks were manufactured in those remote ages in Egypt and Babylon as is clear from the following facts culled from the works of well-known authorities:

(a) When Moses accompanied by Aaron (Harun) confronted the Pharaoh with the divine massage, he (the Pharaoh) dismissed them with the sharp phrase “Get you unto your burdens” implying thereby that they “ought to be at work at the kilns or in the brick fields.”

(b) “Burned bricks, no doubt, had already been produced simply by containing a fire with mud bricks. In Ur the potters discovered the principle of the closed kiln, in which heat could be controlled.”

That there existed intercommunication between Ur and ancient Egypt is borne out by the travels of Abraham and his tribesmen to and back from Egypt much earlier than the time of Moses.

(c) “The elements which Egypt borrowed from her eastern neighbour (Mesopotamia) are quite clear. There was monumental architecture, using bricks in a decorative panelling, a technique which can be traced to its origin in Mesopotamia but which appeared fully developed in Egypt at this final pre-dynastic Period.”

(d) “Several most unusual occurrences of burnt bricks in buildings of the 19th and 20th dynasty were discovered at Nabeshah and Defenneh by Sir Flinders Petrie.”

It is thus in the very nature of things for the Pharaoh to have commanded the Haman, the high priest of Amon, who as mentioned in preceding para 5 (c) was the “Great Superintendent of Works,” to prepare mud bricks and then to bake them so as to build a sky-high tower with a ladder in order to enable him to go up into the sky to see if there really was the God of Moses, though in his heart of hearts he (the Pharaoh) believed that Moses was a lying sorcerer.
7. Confrontation between the PHARAOH and MOSES: The next question that arises is: why did the Pharaoh and the Haman reject the divine message of Moses?

(a) "It is an indisputable fact of history that by the long usage of the country the Pharaoh was looked upon as a "god upon earth"—neter nefer, the "good god" and neter aa, "the great god"—"son of the Sun", "the living Horus", who inherited from his father the idea that he was actually at par with the greatest of the recognised divinities, with Re and Tum, with Ptah and Amon and Horus .......... No pure monotheism (as preached by Moses) would for a moment have been compatible with such an intense exaltation".35 .......... and with the number of gods and goddesses included into "the pantheon running over two thousand."36 ..........

(b) The high priest of Amon (i.e. Haman) himself impersonated the most influential god Amon and often deputised for the Pharaoh (who was in fact the chief priest). The divine message of Moses from the One and only Allah, the Sole Creator and Sustainer of the whole universe was a threat to the authority of the two who marshalled all their strength, stratagem and stupendous resources to defeat it. But wonderous are the ways of Allah who worked miracles to smash the designs of the Pharaoh and the Haman and ultimately drowned them both with their hosts. The corpse of the former was, however, recovered and mummiified and buried, and his mummy which was excavated in 1881 A.D. was exhibited in the Cairo museum, fulfilling the revelation made fourteen centuries ago in verse 92 of Surah Al-Yunas (X) which states: "But this day we save thee in thy body that thou mayest be a portent (example/sign) for those after thee."37

Unlike the Bible, the Quran is surely the greatest miracle of all times.

8. Critical Examination of (i) The Controversy Raised by Orientalists, and (ii) Historicity of the Biblical Haman: A. We hope we have adduced impartial corroborative evidence to establish historicity of the Haman as mentioned in the Quran. Let us now proceed to examine historicity of the sources of information of our worthy orientalists with a view to assessing validity of their criticism which draws its inspiration only from the Book of Esther as incorporated in the Old Testament. We cite below the comments of well-known Jewish and Christian authorities on its spurious historicity which unfortunately our critics adopted as their model of authentic chronicle.

(a) "The majority of scholars, however, regard the book as a romance reflecting the customs of later times, and given an ancient setting to avoid giving offence. They point out that 127 provinces mentioned are in strange contrast to the historical twenty Persian satrapies; that it is astonishing that while Mordecai is known to be a Jew, his ward and cousin, Esther, can conceal the fact that she is a Jewess; that the known queen of Xerxes (Amestris) can be identified with neither Vashti nor Esther; that it would have been impossible for a non-Persian person to have been appointed prime minister, or for a queen to be selected except from the seven highest noble families; that Mordecai’s ready access to the palaces is not in consonance with the strictness with which the Persian harems were guarded; that the laws of the Medes and the Persians were never irrevocable; and that the state of affairs in the book, amounting practically to civil war, could not have passed unnoticed by historians if this had actually occurred. The very tone of the book itself, its literary craftsmanship and the patness of its situation, point rather to a romantic story than historical chronicle.

“Some scholars even trace it to a non-Jewish origin entirely; it is, in their opinion, either a reworking of a triumph of the Babylonian god Marduk (Mordecai) and Ishtar (Esthar) over the Elamite god Humman (Haman) and Mashti (Vashti), or the suppression of the Magians by Darius I, or even of the resistance of the Babylonians to the decree of Artaxerxes II. According to this view, Purim is a Babylonian feast which was taken over by the Jews, and the story was given a Jewish coloring.

“The Book of Esther did not get into the Biblical canon without a struggle. The apocryphal additions to Esther, now combined into the rest of Esther, seem to have been added by the Hellenistic Jews of Egypt to supply the lack of religion in the Biblical book of Esther which the rabbis of Palestine had noticed. These additions are similar to the liberties which the Hellenistic Jews took with other books of the Hagiography, such as Daniel and the Chronicles. They represent attempts to round out the story and to give a more religious tone to the narrative.”

This furnishes proof of the original text of various books of the Bible having been subsequently tampered with.

(b) “Comparatively few modern scholars of note consider the narrative of Esther to rest on historical foundation. The vast majority of modern expositors have reached the conclusion that the book is a piece of pure fiction, although some writers qualify their criticism by an attempt to treat it as a historical romance. Most of the proper names in Esther which are given as Persian appear to be rather Semitic than of Persian origin. In view of all evidence the authority of the Book of Esther as a historical record must definitely be rejected.”

(c) “Various historical and chronological inaccuracies and improbabilities lead to the conclusion that the book is something less than dependable history. Significant also is the fact that as yet no fragment of the book has been found in the Dead Sea Scrolls, produced by the Qumran community that existed ca. 150 B.C. - A.D. 70, nor is there any quotation or allusion to it in the N.T.”

(d) “Neither Jews nor Christians, however, have been happy with the presence of the book in the canon of the holy Scriptures. Its status was hotly debated by the rabbis all through the first two centuries A.D. and they obviously accepted it only because of the demand by the masses. Among Christians also there was question about its status. Martin Luther declared that he wished it did not exist. It must be admitted that without the popularity of the festival of Purim the book would have had little to recommend it for a place in the canon.

This is too profane a criterion for determining canonicity of a sacred book like Esther of the Bible.

(e) "The story as such has not been confirmed by any Persian records, and it is often supposed that it cannot be fitted into what is known of Persian history."

(f) Above all the story of the book of Esther has been adjudged as a "tissue of improbabilities and impossibilities.... Further notwithstanding the dates which he gives us, the author had in reality no notion of chronology.... That the book of Esther cannot be regarded as a genuine historical work is avowed even by many ecclesiastical traditionalists.... The most essential parts of the story... are altogether unhistorical and we are forced to the conclusion that the whole narrative is fictitious.""}

B. (a) From the foregoing quotations it is quite clear that no historian can place any reliance on the fable of the Book of Esther and no scholar can say that its characters, particularly the Haman of Esther, had any historical existence. The scene of the romantic fable of Esther was laid in the reign of the so-called king named Ahasuerus. There is wide divergence of opinion among the authorities as to the correct identity even of this allegedly Persian king. Some authorities are of the opinion that he was Artaxerxes, others assert with confidence that he was Artaxerxes I, while still others would have us believe that it was Artaxerxes II, Artaxerxes III, Cambyses, or even Darius I. Hoschander has made elaborate arguments in favour of Artaxerxes II (404-309 B.C.) suggesting that the other name was used because the Jews did not want to offend the Greeks whom Artaxerxes had assisted."

This is a concrete case of deliberate anachronism and ahistoricism.

(b) Webster's Biographical Dictionary contains the following note on Ahasuerus: "Name, as used in the Bible, of two unidentified kings of Persia;

(i) the great king whose capital was at Shushan, modern Susa, sometimes identified with Xerxes the Great, but chronological and other data conflict;

(ii) the father of Darius the Mede."

There is no denying the facts that:

(i) the integrity of the text of the Book of Esther was violated by subsequent additions:

(ii) our worthy critics unjustifiably adopted the fictitious Haman of this Book of Esther as their model of historicity to adjudge historicity of the Haman of the Quran. And no wonder their judgement was grossly erroneous not only in the context of historicity but also chronology.

(iii) Above all, other than having the name and anti-Jewish bias there is nothing in common between the two Hamans in respect of character, status and functions.

9. Conclusions. In the light of recent historical researches and archaeological discoveries made by independent and impartial world-famous authorities we hope that we have convincingly established historicity of the Haman of the Quran who enjoyed an eminent position in the court of the Pharaoh who was confronted by Moses (peace be upon him). In this connection there is no question of any anachronism or ahistoricity. Statements made in the Quran as far as fourteen centuries ago are thus quite unassailable. Of course Muhammad, the Unlettered Prophet ("An-Nabi-ul Ummi", peace be upon him) was not the author of the Quran, which was, of course, revealed to him by the Omniscient and Omnipotent Allah. In this connection verse no. 99 of Surah Ta Ha (xx) states: "Thus do We relate to thee (Muhammad) some stories of what happened before; We have sent thee a message from Our Presence."

It will not be out of place to add that some orientalists have been making groundless allegations about Jewish and Christian foundations of Islam or about the "prettended inspiration" or imposture of the Prophet of Islam. This concrete instance of the Haman of the Quran proves to the hilt the utter untenability of all such allegations. One is struck with wonder to find that the current Jewish and Christian Scriptures make not even a passing mention of the Haman in question, although he figures so prominently in the "Oppression" of the Israelites in Egypt and during their "Exodus" from Egypt under the leadership of Moses. What is most remarkable is the fact that whereas the Old Testament makes mention of only the perishing of the Pharaoh by drowning it is to the unique credit of the Quran, which was revealed fourteen centuries ago, that the Almighty Allah had that fateful day ordained the recovery of his corpse, its preservation by mummification and exhibition in the Cairo Museum about thirty-one centuries after the memorable event. Of course no human author of the Bible could have foretold it so many centuries in advance, as the revealed Quran did, about this significant event which is in fact most striking. Evidently, to say nothing of the rabbis and monks of old whose knowledge was confined to their Scriptures, even the present day learned editors of the relevant articles on the subject appearing in the Encyclopaedia Britannica as well as the Encyclopaedia of Islam, who relied only on the romantic but unhistorical book of Esther regarding it as gospel truth, have been ignorant of the facts about the Haman of the Quran or of the Pharaoh of the Exodus. Even Hitti, the eminent modern historian of the Arabs, displayed deplorable ignorance in this behalf. The philosopher Kaufmann and the scholar Rodinson also gravely blundered.

It is remarkable that what the indefatigable labours of Western archaeologists of Egyptian antiquities and irrefutable researches of historians of ancient Egypt discovered in modern times, was already revealed in the Quran fourteen centuries ago, when the whole world was totally in the dark about them. That Christian and Jewish scholars or Scriptures had nothing of note to lend to or to teach Muhammad of Islam in this behalf, is absolutely clear as stated by Dr. Bunsen and Thomas Carlyle. We reproduce hereunder their views on the subject which form an interesting and enlightening reading:

(a) “We cannot accept the vague and contradictory traditions about Muhammad having been instructed by a Christian monk alternately called Bahira, Sergius, Georgius, and Nestor or by a slave Jabr”.\(^{46}\)

(b) “I know not what to make of that Sergius, the Nestorian monk whom Abu Taleb and he (Mahomet) are said to have lodged with; or how much any monk could have taught one still so young”.\(^{47}\)

(c) “The lies which well-meaning zeal has heaped around this man (Mahomet) are disgraceful to ourselves only. When Pococks inquired of Grotius, where the proof was of that story of the pigeon, trained to pick peas from Mahomet’s ear and pass for an angel dictating to him, Grotius answered that there was no proof. It is really time to dismiss all that.”\(^{48}\)

Thus is fully established historical proof of the genuineness of the revelation of the Quran by the All Merciful Allah to His Prophet Muhammad. It would no doubt be appreciated that the Quran has been revealed essentially not as a book of history or a story book but as a religious Guide to mankind, and that whenever it makes mention of an historical event or person, the objective is to bring home to mankind religious teachings and articles of the Universal Faith, Al-Islam.

24. The variants of the name Amen, Aman, Amon, Ammon have appeared in the quotations given by authorities mentioned at 19 and 20 above. The initial vowel i.e. “A” in these names is interchageable into “HA” so as to give the variants Hamen, Hamon, Hammon etc., as per illustration given on pp. 100, 101 of wall’s Proofs of the Interpolation of the Vowel Letters in the Text of the Hebrew Bible published in 1857 in London indicating how HaBel first became “Habel” and ultimately “Abel”. “Harun” is similarly a variant of “Aaron”. The Westminster Dictionary of the Bible, 1944, page 223 also gives the variant Humman and Humban. Smith’s Classical Dictionary, London, 1858, p. 44 and Oxford Dictionary of Classical Literature may also be referred to.

37. Ayat No 92 of the tenth Surah (Al-Yunas) is noteworthy. It lays down the verdict of Allah: "But this day we save thee in the body that thou mayest be a portent (example on sign) for those after thee". This Quranic statement was made fourteen centuries ago about the preservation by mummification of the corpse of Ramses II, the Pharaoh of the Exodus (who had been drowned thirteen centuries before Christ). His mummy was recovered in 1881 A.D and exhibited in the Cairo Museum as mentioned at p 482 of the Egyptian Antiquities by Baikie (London, 1932) is a publicity which even he would scarcely have relished. This furnishes a further sure proof of the Quran being a revealed book as contrasted with the existing Bible. Verses 6, 8; 10, 23 of the chapter 14 of its Book of Exodus read with verses 11 and 15 respectively of Psalms 106 and 136 clearly state that Pharaoh and his hosts perished by drowning. What is stated above about the mummy of Ramses is true of the mummy of any other Pharaoh e.g. Merenptah or Tuthmoses who may have been the Pharaoh of Exodus, though at present the majority of opinions is in favour of Ramses II, in view of the facts that:

(i) Moses is supposed to have composed the Book of Exodus which describes the events in which he himself took the leading part; and

(ii) Moses had been brought up and educated like a prince in the Pharaoh's palace and knew full well that the corpses of the Pharaohs and nobles used to be preserved by mummification whereafter the mummies used to be buried;
One would pause and ponder as to why the Book of Exodus is conspicuous by its silence about the recovery of the corpse of the drowned Pharaoh, its mummification and burial and its exhumation many centuries later and its ultimate exhibition in the Museum. It is, however, a hard fact and a stern reality that the Omniscient Allah in His Inscrutable Wisdom reserved its revelation to the last of His true prophets, Hazrat Mohammad (peace be upon him). This wonder of wonders strikes a death knell to the utterly untenable allegations of critics among Orientalists to the effect that the legends described in the Quran have been borrowed from Jewish and/or Christian Scriptures or to the allegation of imposture of Muhammad, the true Prophet of Allah.

359. This refers to some of the weak-hearted Muslims in the early days of Islam, who were distressed by their persecution by the pagans.
360. (and subjected to patient endurance of trials and tribulations). Cf. the NT:—'And others had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover, of bonds and imprisonments: They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword: they wandered about in sheepskins and goatskins; being destitude, afflicted, tormented.' (He. 11:36-37).
361. (i.e., believing men of past generations).
362. (demonstrably).
363. (by afflicting their persons and possessions).
364. (and prevent Us from taking vengeance on them).
365. (and let him not lay to heart these passing, fleeting afflictions).
366. (of your words).
367. (of your deeds).
368. (in the cause of God).
369. (and therefore he ought to be more alert). 'For himself' is equivalent with 'for the benefit of his own soul'.
370. (and therefore not needing for Himself the homage of anybody). He is Self-Existent as well as Self-Sufficient. The fact so obvious to a Muslim needed to be emphasized in view of the pagan conceptions. The ordinary tribal gods of the polytheistic peoples existed with and through those very peoples; and if those worshippers ceased to be, the gods were at least degraded from divine rank. The God of Islam is not dependent on the Muslims or on any other created beings. He is Absolute, Independent, and Self-Existent in every sense of the words.
7. And whosoever believes and works righteous deeds, We shall purge away the evil deeds from them, and shall recompense them the best of what they have been working.

8. And We have enjoined on man kindness to parents, but if they strive to make thee associate with Me that of which thou hast no knowledge, do not thou obey them. To Me is your return, and I shall declare to you what you have been doing.

9. And those who believe and work righteous deeds—We shall surely make them enter among the righteous.

10. Of mankind are some who say: we believe in Allah, then if they are afflicted in the way of Allah, they take the persecution of men as the torment of Allah, and then, if succour comes from thy Lord they say: verily we have been with you. Is not Allah the Best Knower of what is in the breasts of the creatures?

11. And surely Allah will come to know those who believe, and surely He will come to know the hypocrites.

371. (out of Our grace)
372. See P. XV. nn. 65, 68.
373. i.e., if they endeavour to pervert them to idolatry.
374. (in this particular respect). 'The Prophet, consistent with his whole teaching, regards obedience and faithfulness to God of greater importance than even filial duty.' (Roberts, op. cit., p. 46) 'While he lays great stress upon one's duty to honour and obey his parents, still can this only be expected in what is reasonable and consonant with one's duty to God.' (p. 49). Cf. the OT:—'Ye shall fear every man his mother, and his father, and keep my sabbaths: I am the Lord your God. Turn ye not unto idols, nor make to yourselves molten gods: I the Lord your God." (Le. 19: 3, 4).

375. (into Paradise).

376. (in gravity and take leave of the true faith).

377. (mendaciously to the Muslims).

378. (all along in faith and religion).

379. (and so He is well aware of their mendacity).

380. Of course this does not mean that there will be an addition to His knowledge, or He will come to know something of which He was previously ignorant. The only meaning is that He will test, He will demonstrate.
12. (وَقَالَ لَكُمْ إِنَّنَا نَحْنُ نَمُةٌ لِلَّذِينَ كَذَّبُوا مَا فِي الْقُرْآنِ) And those who disbelieve say to those who believe, follow our way, and we shall surely bear your sins; whereas they shall not bear aught of their sins; verily they are the liars.

13. (وَلَيَسْتَبْخَسُوا مَا فِي الْقُرْآنِ) And assuredly they shall bear their loads and other loads besides their own loads, and surely they shall be questioned on the Day of Resurrection concerning what they were wont to fabricate.

SECTION 2

14. (وَرَأَى نُوحُ نَحْنُ نَمُةٌ لِلَّذِينَ كَذَّبُوا مَا فِي الْقُرْآنِ) And assuredly We sent Nūh to his people. Then he stayed among them for a thousand years, less fifty years, and then the deluge overtook them, while they were wrongdoers.

15. (وَتَبَيَّنَ لَهُمُ الْجَاثِيَةُ لِلْأُلَّمِينَ) Then We delivered him and those with him in the ark, and made it a sign to the worlds.

16. (وَآتَاهُمْ تَرْجُومًا) And We sent Ibrāhīm. Recall when he said to his people: worship Allah and fear Him; that is best for you if you but know.

17. (إِنَّكُمْ لَا تُعْبِرُوا إِلَّا الدِّينَ الْحَقَّ) You worship only images instead of Allah, and it is a fiction you have created. Verily those whom you worship instead of Allah own no provision for you. So seek provision with Allah and worship Him, and to Him give thanks; to Him you shall be returned.

381. Perhaps quite frivolously, perhaps as a matter of false doctrine.
382. (of sins). ‘also signifi es ... Sins’ (LL).
383. i.e., the guilt of seducing others, which shall be added to the guilt of their own obstinacy, without diminishing the guilt of such as shall be seduced by them.
384. See P. VIII. n. 509.
385. 'And all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years: and he died.' (Ge. 9: 29) According to the Jewish traditions, 'Noah should have lived 1000 years; but he gave Moses fifty years.' (JE. IX. p. 322).

386. See P. XII. n. 115.
387. (and persisted in infidelity).
388. i.e., the story of Noah.
389. See P. VII. 527.
390. i.e., your excuse that they are indispensable for your national support is purely fictitious.
391. (as He is the only Nourisher, the only Provider, the only Sustainer).
392. (as He is the only God).
393. (so He alone can inflict punishment).
18. (وان ... المناين) And if you believe me, then communities before you have believed, and naught is upon the messenger but a manifest preaching.

19. (الم لم ... بكبر) Do they not see how Allah originates creation? And then He shall restore it; surely that is easy for Allah.

20. (قل ... فين) Say thou: go about in the land, and see how He originated creation, and then Allah will bring another production; verily Allah is Potent over everything.

21. (عجب ... قلانون) He shall chastise whom He will, and shall show mercy to whom He will: you shall be returned.

22. (وما ... ضرير) And you cannot escape in the earth nor in the heaven, and for you there is no friend and helper besides Allah.

SECTION 3

23. (والذين ... الم) Those who disbelieve in the signs of Allah and in their meeting with Him, they shall despair of My mercy, and they shall be an afflictive torment.

24. (فأكان ... يومر) Then the answer of his people was naught but that they said: slay him, or burn him. Then Allah rescued him from the fire, herein are signs for a people who believe.

394. (their apostles likewise).
395. i. e., the Makkah pagans. These five intervening verses from 19 to 23 are parenthetical, addressed by God to the Makkans.
396. (from nothing).
397. (on the Day of Resurrection).
398. (O Prophet!).
399. (in the Hereafter).
400. (in His justice).
401. (in His mercy).
402. (and unto none else).
403. (so He is the sole Arbiter).
404. (His reach).
405. (by hiding yourself thereunto).
406. (by fleeing thereto). Cf. the OT:—'Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there; If I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. (Ps. 139: 7, 8).
407. (on the Judgment-Day). When they are face to face with reality and come to realise that they have no capacity left in themselves to receive the loving-kindness of their Creator.
408. i.e., Abraham’s. The narrative that was left at verse 18 is now resumed.
409. (among themselves).
410. See P. XVII. nn. 148, 149.
411. (of His Omnipotence).
25. (Qal... Thumma) And he said: you have taken images instead of Allah out of affection between you in the life of this world; but on the Day of Resurrection you will deny each other and you shall curse each other; and your resort shall be the Fire, and you shall have no helpers.

26. (Qat'a... Al-Mu' minim) And Lût believed in him. And he said: verily I will flee to my Lord; verily He is the Mighty, the Wise.

27. (Rum... Al-Mudsin) And We bestowed on him Is-hāq and Yaqūb, and We assigned prophecy and the Book to be among his posterity, and We vouchsafed to him his reward in this world, and in the Hereafter he shall be of the righteous.

28. (Wawdaa... Al-Mudsin) And Lût Recall when he said to his people: you commit an indecency in which none has preceded you in the worlds.

412. i.e., for mutual regard and friendship. National and tribal gods are very often maintained with a view to preserving national unity and to cement tribal solidarity.

413. (when face to face with stern realities).

414. (forsaking and denying one another).

415. i.e., Abraham.

416. (away from my home).

417. i.e., for a place which my Lord has commanded me, ‘Now the Lord had said unto Abraham, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father’s house, unto a land that I will shew thee.’ (Ge. 12: 1).

418. i.e., Able to protect me.

419. i.e., Able to guide me.

419-A. So his progeny alone have been the progenitors of Revealed religions.

419-B. i.e., blessed him with Our grace.

420. See P. VIII. n. 561.

421. See P. VIII. n. 563.
29. You go in indeed to males, and you rob on the highway, and you commit what is disreputable in your assembly. The answer of his people was naught but that they said: bring thou Allah's chastisement on us, if thou art of the truthful.

30. He said: Lord! give me victory over the corrupt people.

SECTION 4

31. And when Our envoys came to Ibrāhim with the glad tidings, they said: we are about to destroy the inhabitants of that city; verily its inhabitants have become wrongdoers.

32. He said but there is Lūt. They said: we know very well who is therein; we are to deliver him and his household, save his wife; she is to be of the lingerers.

33. And when Our envoys came to Lūt, he was distressed on their account and felt straitened on their account. They said: have no fear and do not grieve; verily we are to deliver thou and thy household save thy wife; she is to be of the lingerers.

34. Verily we are about to bring down upon the inhabitants of this city a scourge from the heaven, for they have been transgressing.

422. See P. VIII. n. 564.

423. The sodomites either robbed and murdered the foreigners, or they unnaturally abused their bodies.

424. Their meetings were scenes of obscenity and indecency. They conducted themselves riotously in public.

425. (defiantly).

426. i.e., angels in human form.

427. (of the birth of his son Isaac).
428. i. e., comprising the populations of Sodom and Gomorrah. (See P. VIII. n. 572; P. XII. n. 212.

434. (relieving him of anxiety).

435. (as the messengers of God).

436. (and have continued to be ungodly and defiant).
35. And assuredly We have left of that a manifest sign for a people who reflect. 437

36. And to Madyan We sent their brother Shuaib. 448 He said: my people! worship Allah and fear the Last Day, and do not commit evil on the land as corrupters.

37. Then they belied him, so an earthquake seized them and they lay in their dwellings, crouching. 441

38. And 'Abd and Thamud! 449 Of a surety their destruction is apparent to you 446 from their dwellings. 444 Satan made their works fair-seeming to them, and so kept them off from the path, 447 while they were ended with sight 448

39. And Qarun 450 and Fir'awn 451 and Hūd 452 And assuredly there came to them Mūsā with evidences, 453 yet they were stiff-necked in the land. 454 And they could not outstrip Us. 455

437. i.e., the desolate ruins on the east side of the Dead Sea. The Sea itself has certain very curious peculiarities. 'Ocean water contains on an average 4.6% of salts. Dead Sea water contains 25%. . . . Owing principally to the large proportion of chloride and bromide of magnesia no animal life can exist in its water. Fish . . . die in a very short time if introduced into the main waters of the lake.' (EBr. VII. p. 879. 11th Ed.) 'The water of the Dead Sea is intensely saline, . . . The chloride of magnesium, largely held in solution, gives water its nauseous taste. . . . No animal life can exist in its waters. Fish brought down by the Jordan die and furnish food for the sea-birds . . . . The tradition that the Dead Sea covers Sodom and Gomorrah dates from Josephus. . . . That in this bituminous region a violent earth tremor—to which, indeed, the Ghon and its borders are peculiarly liable—should have brought into play eruptive forces whose catastrophic effects are indicated in the Bible narrative, is more than probable.' The recent (1924) joint expedition of the Xenio seminary and the American School of Oriental Research sent out to locate the Cities of the Plain are convinced that three of them, Sodom, Gommarrah and Zoar, stood in the south-east corner of the Dead Sea, . . . but now of course beneath the sea.' (EBr. VII. pp. 99-100) See P. VIII nn. 572, 574; P. XII. n. 251.

438. See P. VIII. n. 576.

445. (even now). The Arab caravans used to pass by the ruins of these peoples when travelling to and from Syria and Yemen.

446. i.e., from what yet remains of their dwellings.
447. (of religion and piety).
448. 'And they were endowed with perceptive faculties of the mind, or of knowledge, or of skill; or they clearly perceived when they did what they did, that the result thereof would be their punishment.' (LL). Or it may mean: Although they were men of intelligence and understanding yet as they did not exert their will to believe, they remained strayed. (Th).

453. (of his apostleship).
454. (and therefrom they blinded themselves to the evidences of God).
455. i.e., Our vengeance.
40. Each of them We laid hold of for his sin. Of them were some on whom We sent a violent wind; and of them were some who were overtaken by a shout; and of them were some with whom We sank the earth; and of them were some whom We drowned. Allah was not such as to wrong them, but themselves they were wont to wrong.

41. The likeness of those who take other patrons than Allah is as the likeness of the spider which takes to herself a house and the frailest of all houses is the spider’s house, if they but knew.

42. Verily Allah knows whatsoever they invoke beside Him. And He is the Mighty, the Wise.

43. And these similitudes! We propound them for mankind and none understands them save men of learning.

44. Allah has created the heavens and the earth with a propose, verily in them is a sign for the believers.

---

456. ب here is demonstrative of cause, signifying ‘for’ or ‘because of’.

457. (like the people of Aād).

457-A. (like the people of Thāmūd)—

457-B. (like Korah).

457-C. (like the people of Pharaoh and Hāmān).

458. (in frailty and speedy destruction). Spiders are cosmopolitans, being found in about every country. ‘Except in the extreme north and south, and on the top of the highest mountains, where there is no insect life as food-supply, spiders are found all over the world, even in isolated oceanic islands.’ (EBr. XXV. p. 663, 11th Ed.) The number of these varieties ‘in Palestine and Syria is very large.’ (DB. IV. p. 611) According to the Jews, the spider is the creature most hated of man.’ (JE. VI. p. 607).

459. ‘So are the paths of all that forget God; and the hypocrite’s hope shall perish: whose hope shall be cut off, and whose trust shall be spider’s web. He shall lean upon his house, but it shall not stand: he shall hold it fast, but it shall not endure.’ (Job. 8: 13-15) ‘They hatch cockatrice’ eggs, and weave the spider’s web. . . . Their webs shall not become garments, neither shall they cover themselves with their works: their works are works of iniquity, and the act of violence is in their hands. (Is. 59: 5, 6).

460. 'The spider's web is twice referred to in the Old Testament as an emblem of useless doings and vain hopes. . . . The Talmūd likewise uses the cobweb in a comparison: "Passion is at first like the web of the spider, but afterwards it grows as strong as the ropes of a wagon." ' (JE. VI. p. 606).

461. i. e., had they known this they would not have worshipped the idols at all.

462. i. e., profit by them.

463. i. e., perfect in every little detail of design and execution.

464. i. e., in this superb act of Creation.

465. (of His omnipotence).
PART XXI

SECTION 5

45. (اَلْمَآذِرِ) Recite thou what has been Revealed to thee of the Book and establish thou the prayer; verily prayer forbids indecency and dis-honour. And the remembrance of Allah is the highest. And Allah knows what you perform.

46. (وَلاَ مَثْلَهُ مِثْلَكَ) Do not dispute with the people of the Book unless in the best manner, save with those of them who do wrong, and say: we believe in what has been sent down to us and in what has been sent down to you, our God and your God is One, and to Him we are submissive.

47. (وَلَكَ نَصِيرًا) Likewise We have sent down the Book to thee, so those to whom We vouchsafed the Book believe in it, and some of these also believe in it. And none gainsay Our signs except the infidels.

48. (دَمَّرَ) And before it thou hast not been reading any book nor hast thou been inscribing it with thy right hand, for then followers of falsehood might have doubted.

1. (to the people by way of preaching).
2. (O Prophet!).
3. (to serve as a model in practical religion).
4. i. e., the Islamic prayer, as contradistinguished from the pagan worship.

5. This brings to mind, by way of contrast, the strong connection that has very frequently existed between obscenity and the acts of worship as ordained by the so-called religions of the world. In many of them even prostitution appears to have been not merely tolerated but encouraged. 'In Egypt, Phoenicia, Assyria, Chaldea, Canaan and Persia, the worship of Isis, Moloch, Baal, Astarte, Mylitta and other deities consisted of the most extravagant sensual orgies, and the temples were merely centres of vice. In Babylon some degree of prostitution appears to have been even compulsory and imposed upon all women in honour of the goddess Mylitta. In India the ancient connection between religion and prostitution still survives.’ (EBr. XXV, p. 458, 11th Ed.) ‘The Kedeshoth mentioned in the Bible were prostitutes attached to the Canaanite temples, and were held in the highest reverence by the worshippers. Temple prostitutes, in all countries, and at all times, have been highly thought of.’ (Scott, History of Prostitution, p. 10) ‘In its earlier phases prostitution was always associated with religion; and there seem strong grounds for the assumption that the first brothels were run by priests.’ (p. 59).

6. That the Islamic prayer is a powerful means of moral elevation and the purification of the heart has been recognised at all hands, and is almost a truism. But its value in other spheres is also well-merited. ‘Von Kremer rightly sees in the salat’, says Noeldeke, ‘a substitute, to some extent, for military drill. In the ceremony the Arabs, hitherto wholly unaccustomed to discipline, were obliged en masse to repeat the formulae with strict exactitude after their leader and to copy every one of his movements, and any man who was unable to perform the salat with the congregation was none the less bound to strict compliance with the form of prayer in which he had been instructed.’ (HHW. VIII. p. 14) And in the words of a distinguished American psychologist: ‘All historians declare that the amazing success of Islam in dominating the world lay in the astounding coherence or sense of unity in the group, but they do not explain how this miracle was worked. There can be little doubt that one of the most effective means was prayer. The five daily prayers, when all the faithful wherever they were, alone in the grim solitude of the desert or in vast assemblies in the crowded city, knelt and prostrated themselves towards Mecca, uttering the same words of adoration for the one true God and of loyalty to His Prophet, produce an overwhelming effect upon the spectator, and the psychological effect of thus fusing the minds of the worshippers in a common adoration and expression of loyalty is certainly stupendous.’ (Dennison, Emotion as the Basis of Civilization, 274-275).

7. (which the Islamic act of prayer involves from the beginning to the end).

8. i. e., highest in estimation and rank.
9. (and shall requisite accordingly).
10. (O Muslims!).
11. i. e., without ill language or passion; in the mildest manner.
12. (to you, and are wantonly aggressive).
13. i. e., old Scriptures.
14. (and the same proclaimed by the same set of prophets).
15. (so you also ought to submit to Him and His religion).
16. i. e., as to the older prophets.
17. This refers to the fairminded section of the Jews and Christians.
الكتب is here used in the generic sense, and means the class of revealed Books.

18. i.e., in the Qur'ān.
19. i.e. Arab pagans.
20. (after Our clear arguments and evidences).
21. i.e., the most obstinate and inveterate enemies of the truth.
22. (O Prophet!).
23. i.e., before the revelation of the Qur'ān. That the holy Prophet was illiterate, and could neither read nor write is an admitted historical fact, questioned only by a few modern traducers of Islam. See Appendix IV at the end of the Surah.
25. ‘His youth had never been instructed in the arts of reading and writing.’ (GRE. VI. p. 220) ‘As to acquired learning, it is confessed he had none at all.’ (SPD. p. 73) ‘It is probable that he could neither read nor write.’ (Palmer, ‘The Quran.’ Intro. p. XLVII) ‘There is no evidence that he was able to read.’ (EBr. XIII. p. 483) ‘It is certain that he had neither read the Bible nor any other books.’ (HHW. VIII. p. 11).
26. (the Divine origin thereof). Thus testifies a modern Christian:—‘If he was indeed the illiterate person the Muslims represent him to have been, then it will be hard to escape their inference that the Koran is, as they assert it to be, a standing miracle.’ (Rodwell, ‘The Koran,’ Preface p. XIII) مبطل is ‘one who says a thing in which is no truth or reality; one who embellishes speech with lies; one who says, or does, false, or vain things.’ (LL).
49. Aye! it is itself manifest signs in the breasts of those who have been vouchsafed knowledge; and none gainsay Our signs except the wrong-doers.

50. And they say, why are not signs, sent down unto him from his Lord? Say thou: signs are with Allah only, and I am but a manifest warner.

51. Does it not suffice with them that We have sent down to thee the Book to be recited to them? Verily herein is a mercy and an admonition to a people who believe.

SECTION 6

52. Say thou: Allah suffices as a witness between me and you. He knows whatever is in the heavens and the earth; and they who believe in falsehood and disbelieve in Allah, these! they shall be the losers.

53. And they ask thee to hasten on the torment. And had there not been a term appointed, the torment would surely have come to them. And surely it shall come upon them while they perceive not.

54. They ask thee to hasten on the torment; and verily the Hell is about to encompass the infidels.

41. (for that doom in the foreknowledge of God).
42. Or ‘hath (already) encompassed.’
55. (روم ... عملون) on the Day whereon the torment shall cover them from above them and from underneath their feet, and He shall say: taste what you have been working!

56. (بابى ... فاعلون) O May bondmen who believe! verily My earth is wide, so worship Me alone.

57. (كل ... ترجعون) Every soul shall taste of death, then unto Us you shall be returned.

58. (ود الجن ... الطلمن) And those who believe and work righteous deeds—them We will surely settle in lofty dwellings of the Garden whereunder rivers flow; they shall be abiders therein. Excellent is the reward of the workers who persevere and trust in their Lord.

59. (الدين ... يعون) And how many a moving creature there is that bears not its provision. Allah provides for it and for you. And He is the Hearer, the Knower.

60. (واتى ... يعون) And wert thou to ask them: who has created the heavens and the earth and has subjected the sun and the moon? they would surely say: Allah. How then are they deviating?

61. (الله ... علم) Allah expands provision for whom He will of His bondmen and stints it for him. Verily Allah is the Knower of everything.

43. (the fruits of).

44. i.e., if you cannot practise the true religion in one particular city or country, emigrate into another, where you may serve God properly; for the earth is wide enough and you can easily find a place of refuge.

45. A warning to the infidels and a glad tidings to the believers.

46. (for requital).

47. (for ever).

48. (of righteousness).

49. (with patience, and endure hardships in the cause of God).
50. (on its back, and yet is sustained by God).

51. So why will He not provide for those who emigrate from their homes for the sake of religion. Cf. the NT:—‘Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are you not much better than they?’ (Mt. 6:26) ‘Consider the ravens: for they neither sow nor reap; which neither have store house nor barn; and God feedeth them: how much more are ye better than the fowls!’ (Lk. 12:24) Cf. also in the OT, Job. 38:41, and Ps. 147:9.

And this life of the world is but sport and play. Verily the home of the Hereafter — that is life indeed, if they but know!

So when they mount upon the ship they call on Allah making faith pure for him; then when He delivers them safely on the land, lo! they associate.

So that they become ingrate for what We have vouchsafed to them, and that they enjoy themselves; but presently they shall know.

Do they not see that We have appointed an inviolable sanctuary, while men are being snatched away round about them? In falsehood would then they believe, and unto favours of Allah would they be ingrate?

And who is greater wrong-doer than he who forges a lie against Allah or belies the truth when it comes to him? Will there not be in the Hell an abiding-place of the infidels?

And those who strive hard in Us We shall surely guide them in Our paths; verily Allah is with the well-doers.

Thus precluding with their own mouth the possibility of a rain-god or vegetation-god.

APPENDIX V

Was Muhammad Literate?

(S. G. Mohiuddin)

In this verse (29:48) the Qur’ān expressly asserts that the Prophet of Islam was not conversant with the art of reading and writing. In several other verses, the holy Prophet has been called ummi, the unlettered, but some of the eminent modern scholars, deemed to be experts on Islam, disregard the Quranic statements as well as testimony of historical facts to raise the doubt that all these references in the Qur’ān are simply allegorical. If we are to establish whether the Prophet was literate or not we should go to the Qur’ān itself to verify and establish our proposition.

Let us, therefore, first find out what the word ummi, the epithet used by the Qur’ān for the Prophet, actually means in its particular language and how it was understood by the Arabs when the Qur’ān was revealed to the Prophet. In order to understand this we shall have to turn to the Qur’ān itself which uses the word at several places in different contexts.

(1) “Among them are unlettered folk who know the Scripture not except from hearsay. They but guess. Therefore woe be unto those who write the Scripture with their own hands and they say: ‘This is from Allah,’ that they may purchase a small gain therewith.”

This verse refers to the Jews of Medina who had themselves foretold the coming of a Prophet, but subsequently rejected his call. They have been called ummi because some of the Jews persisted in denying the Truth owing to the ignorance of their own Scripture. Obviously, such Jews were those who did not know the art of reading.

(2) “That is because they say: There is in the matter of illiterates no call on us.”

The Qur’ān quotes here the belief commonly held by the Jews of Arabia that they would not be called to account for their behaviour towards the Arabs and for not subscribing to their faith. The belief was not confined to their behaviour towards the pagan Arabs alone, but towards all non-Jewish races whom they knew as goyim or gentiles, the English synonym of ummi in Arabic. To illustrate this point, here are two quotations from the Old Testament. “At the end of every seven years . . . every creditor that lends unto his neighbour shall release it,” but “of a foreigner thou mayest exact it again.” At another place the law about usury has been laid down like this: “Unto a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury: but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury.” Naturally, the Arabic speaking Jews of Arabia held similar beliefs about their Arab brethren. It is to be noted that the Jews called them ummi, because the Arabs were not ashamed of it but rather took pride in being called umm or the illiterate people.

(3) "And say unto those who have been vouchsafed the Book and unto the illiterates, accept Islam." 28

Al-Ummiyūn, juxtaposed in this verse against Uotul-Kitāb i.e. 'those who possess the Book' indicates that Arabs have been so named because they did not have a Scripture like the Jews and the Christians.

(4) "Those who follow the apostle, the unlettered Prophet, whom they find written down with them in the Torah and the Gospel." 29

In this verse the Prophet is called Al-Nabi-al-Ummi, because he could neither read nor write. Obviously the Qur'ān cannot itself call its prophet a goyim, or, in the derived sense, 'a pagan,' especially when he was called upon to eradicate paganism.

In the four verses quoted above, the Qur'ān uses the word ummi to denote those who persist in their wrong ways owing to ignorance, the Arabs as a nation of illiterates, the people without any scripture and those who cannot read or write. If one were to insist, like Winsinck7 and Horovitz8, to put the word heathen or pagan wherever ummi is used in the Qur'ān, it would hardly be compatible with the first verse, quoted above, where there is a reference to the difference between those who write the Scripture and the ummiyyūn among the Jews. 'Heathen', thus, carries only a derived and secondary sense of ummi as Lane says in his definition of the word: "Whence in a secondary, tropical sense, a heathen: one not having a revealed scripture: so applied by those having a revealed scripture: and particularly an Arab, or in the proper language of the Arabs of belonging to, or relating to, the community of the Arabs who did not write or read: and, therefore, metaphorically applied to anyone not knowing the art of writing nor that of reading." 29

As for the Arab lexicographers, it would be relevant to cite here the definition of ummi given by Ibn Manzoor and Zabīdī, the two foremost lexicologists of Arabic. Says Ibn Manzoor: "Al-ummī is one who cannot write. Zajāj says that an ummi is in the same state as he was when given birth by his mother, that is, he does not know the art of writing and thus he remains in the same state as he was at the time of his birth—Abū Ishāq says that ummi is applied to the state of birth because nobody can write without learning the art of writing—and the Prophet is known as ummi for the same reason since he could neither write nor read a writing." 30 Zabīdī also says that "al-ummī refers to the person who cannot write or retains the state of his birth when he did not know the art of writing." 31 Arab philologists and commentators of the Qur'ān have given different derivations of the word, yet the following three are most common derivations of al-ummī according to all of them. 32

(1) From Umm "mother" i.e., one is just as he came from his mother's womb.

(2) From Ummah "people" i.e., a gentile, one who was ignorant; and

(3) From Umm ul-Qura "the mother of villages," a name of Mecca, i.e., a native of Mecca.

It would be worthwhile to mention here that ummat is emphasised to signify a 'heathen' or a 'pagan' solely because it is considered as a synonym of English 'gentiles' and Hebrew 'goyim.' The latter is a compound of goi, which has the same root meaning as am, that is, 'people' which occur more than 1,500 times in the Old Testament. In their primary sense they denote a connected body while goi and am are both applied even to troops and herds of animals. Thus the plural form of goyim or goiim has the general sense of nations or peoples. In keeping with this original meaning, the word was used for the aggregate of non-Israelite nations as opposed to and contrasted with Israel, socially, politically and religiously. It was only later on, as connoting this contrast, that goyim was translated as 'gentiles' or 'heathens.'

There is hardly any reason to believe that ummat was derived from the Hebrew root of am or its plural form ammin, but even if it were so, its original meaning must have been in accord with the Arabic roots ummat and ummat, meaning the 'mother' and the 'people.'

It would, thus, be quite clear that the Arabic ummat can in no way be treated as identical to the Hebrew 'goyim' or 'pagans' as these are generally understood to mean by certain people. Neither the Arabs ever used the word ummat in that sense, nor does the Qur'ān employ it for that purpose. In fact, the Qur'ān uses two more words, musthrikūn and kāfīrūn, drawing a distinction even between those who associate partners to God (musthrikūn) and those who deny the unity of God and His transcendence (kāfīrūn). It would really be difficult to find appropriate approximates to these two words in any other language. The Qur'ān never uses the three words mentioned above indiscriminately. Imam al-Baghdadī says in his commentary on sūrah xciii-1, that the Qur'ān always uses the expression ahl-al kitāb when it refers to the Jews and Christians, while it always calls the idolaters as musthrikūn. Kāfīrūn, on the other hand, is a general word of wider import covering all those who are guilty of infidelity or blasphemy or denial of the revelation of God and His messenger, as, for example, in sūrah II-39: "But those who disbelieve (Wallazima Kafaru), and deny our revelations," and sūrah xciii-1: "Those who disbelieve among the people of the Scripture and the idolaters." Therefore, if any word carrying the purport of heathen has been used in the Qur'ān, it is musthrikūn and not, ummat as contended by certain orientalists not fully conversant with the Qurānic terminology.

Muhammad was born in the full light of day and the biography of no other prophet is based upon so much of historical evidence as that of the prophet of Islam. We know more about Muhammad and his times than we do of Luther and Calvin. We can, therefore, establish whether the Prophet was literate or unlettered in the light of historical evidence.

Mecca was, in the sixth century, the most important town of Arabia; not only a centre of annual pilgrimage, but also "an extremely cosmopolitan centre, the city which had replaced the ancient Palmyra and the still more ancient Tiema," and its entire population lived on commerce with Asia Minor, Syria, India and Chaina, but except for some fifteen individuals mentioned by name, all the pre-Hijrah inhabitants of the city were illiterate. Only the Jews settled in Yemen, Khybar, Yathrib and Teima could boast of ability to read a Scripture, but there is nothing to show that their sacred books had been rendered into Arabic. The Christians were active in the highlands of Yemen, Najrān, Ghassān, Hira, Bahrain and other islands of the Persian Gulf but the first versions of the Christian Scripture in Arabic date from the eighth century. No Arabic version of the Bible, or part of it, existed in the time of the Prophet. The crown and seal of the Arabs' way of life was poetry, and the oldest extant Arabic poems date from 512 A.D., but it was nearly two centuries later that these were committed to writing. There was virtually no prose written before the days of Islam: the Qurʾān is the oldest Arabic Book in prose. Historians refer to muʿallaqāt written in order to be hung on the walls of Kaʿba, as the first written records of the Arabs. Do these conditions justify the presumption that 'as a merchant he must have had a certain knowledge of reading and writing?

"Muhammad was called "a driveller, a star-gazer and a maniac-poet, thorns were strewn in his path, and stones thrown at him. His uncles sneered, and the main body of the citizens treated him with that contemptuous indifference, which must have been harder to bear than active persecution," writes a Western biographer of the Prophet, and he also adds that "there is no single trait in his character up to the time of the Hijrah which calumny itself could couple with imposture." But, the question is, why the Prophet's detractors did not expose his 'pious fraud' by showing that he could very well read and write while he claimed to be an unlettered Prophet? Would it not have been easier and more reasonable to refute the Prophet's revelations than to persecute the preacher? If this fact speaks for itself, how are we to account for such an insinuation by a learned scholar who says that "the Prophet wished to pass for an illiterate" ?

Not a moment of the Prophet's life, after his claim to apostleship, was spent in seclusion, away from the gaze of his followers. It is no less significant that the Apostle of God had given definite instructions to his followers that whatever they saw of him, saying or doing, amongst them or alone, in the mosque or in the battlefield, leading prayers or conducting wars, on the pulpit or in a closet, should invariably be brought to the notice of others. His wives, in consequence, freely talked about his private affairs while seventy of his followers lived close to his house in the mosque to learn all about him. Then, there were inhabitants of Madina who attended congregational prayers led by the Prophet, five times every day, for ten long years. There were also occasions when even a larger number of people gathered round him, as, in the expeditions, when they spent a number of days with him. Everyone knew that it was a bounden duty lying upon him to tell others whatever he knew about the Messenger of God. Nothing about his life from the closet of his sleeping chamber to the market place thus ever remained a secret, and every bit of it was recorded and handed down from generation to generation. It is, therefore, no wonder that we have several collections of reports about him which run into several hundred thousands. There are reports considered trustworthy on the criteria of criticism evolved by subsequent scholars, as well as those rejected by them. Is it not reasonable, then, in the given circumstances, to expect plenty of reports about the ability of the Prophet to read and write?

There is, however, one report, handed down from six sources, on the authority of Barā b. ‘Azib, which has given rise to the speculation that the Prophet was probably conversant with the arts of reading and writing.27 Owing to the bearing of these reports on the question under consideration it would be advisable to examine them here even at the risk of burdening this paper with some details. Ibn Is’hāq reports that while dictating the treaty of Hudaibiya, the Prophet asked ‘Ali to write: “This is what Muhammad the Apostle of God has agreed with Suhayl b. ‘Amr.” But Suhayl, the emissary of the Quraish, interrupted, “If I witnessed that you were God’s Apostle I would not have fought you. Write your own name and the name of your father.” The Prophet turned patiently to ‘Ali and said, “Write; This is what Muhammad b. ‘Abdullāh has agreed with Suhayl b. ‘Amr.”28 Further details of the incident, as transmitted by different narrators from Barā b. ‘Azib, and preserved by Bukhāri and Muslim, are as follows:—

(1) The Apostle said to ‘Ali, “Strike out these words.” He replied, “I cannot rub out the words.” Thereupon the Apostle deleted those words.29

(2) Then the Apostle said to ‘Ali, “Strike out the Apostle of God.” He replied, “By God, I will not strike out your name.”28-A

(3) As the Prophet did not know how to write, he said to ‘Ali, “Strike out the Apostle of God.” He replied. “By God, I will not strike out these words.” Thereupon the Apostle asked ‘Ali to point out the place where those words were written. Then ‘Ali pointed out the place where the words were written and the Prophet wiped out the words with his own hand.28-B

(4) Then the Apostle took the document in his hands and although he did not know how to write, he wrote: “this is the treaty concluded by Muhammad b. ‘Abdullah.”28-0

(5) On the refusal of ‘Ali, the Apostle himself wiped out the words “the Apostle of God.”28

(6) The Apostle asked ‘Ali to point out the place where the words “the Apostle of God” were written. ‘Ali showed him the place and the Prophet wrote “Ibn ‘Abdullāh,” after wiping out those words. 52

It is noteworthy that all these reports come down, from different narrators, on the authority of the same person. The second report is incomplete while the first and the fifth do not suggest that the Prophet knew reading and writing. The fourth and the sixth reports say that the Prophet wrote a few words in the document but one of these also asserts that the Prophet did not know how to write and thus contradicts itself. The third one, more detailed than the rest, is quite clear and leaves no doubt that the Prophet had not written anything nor was he able to read the document. Thus, four out of six narrators do not allude to the Prophets’ knowledge of reading or writing. Furthermore, the way all the narrators, except the third one, have condensed their reports, as well as the discrepancy between their narrations emanating from the same source, go to show that they have not reported the happening in the exact words heard by them.

Now, this is the testimony of history about the ability of the Prophet to read and write. There has been no dearth of scholars, even in the West, who have reached the conclusion that the Prophet did not know how to read and write. “As to the acquired learning,” writes Sale, “it is confessed he had none at all; having had no other education than what was customary in his tribe, neglected, and perhaps despised, what we call literature.” 53 Another competent scholar, Dr. Theodor Noldeke, testifies; “For though it remains an open question whether Mohammad was actually ignorant of reading and writing, it is certain that he had neither read the Bible nor any other books.” 54 The same author writes at another place that the Prophet “did not himself understand the language of writing.” 55 There are, in fact, many more 56 among the Western scholars who, too, have arrived at the same conclusion.

We should now turn to the question why the unfamiliarity of the Prophet with the arts of reading and writing is an article of belief for the Muslims and whether the acceptance of the Quranic revelations as the word of God depends, in any way, on this belief. The question assumes importance because the parallelization of the Qurān with the person of Christ by some scholars to illustrate the nature of the Qurān has led many writers to introduce the Christian concept of Mary’s virginity into Islam. The Qurān, undoubtedly, adduces the Prophet’s inability to read and write as one of the proofs of its divine origin, but this is by no means the only reason for the acceptance of the Qurān as the Word of God. There are many more verses in the Qurān which clearly state that it is a revelation from God. Some of these are given here to illustrate the point:

“He hath revealed unto thee (Muhammad) the Scripture with truth, concerning that which was (revealed) before it, even as He revealed the Torah and the Gospel.” 57

“And if ye are in doubt concerning that which We reveal unto Our slave (Muhammad), then produce a surah of the like thereof, and call your witnesses beside Allah if ye are truthful. And if ye do it not—and ye can never do it—then guard yourselves against the fire prepared for disbelievers, whose fuel is of men and stones.\textsuperscript{38}

"Lo! Those who disbelieve in the Reminder when it cometh unto them (are guilty), for lo! it is an unassailable Scripture. Falsehood cannot come at it from before it or behind it. (It is) a revelation from the Wise, the Owner of Praise."\textsuperscript{39}

"It is not poet's speech—little is it that ye believe! Nor diviner's speech—little is it that ye remember! It is a revelation from the Lord of the Worlds."\textsuperscript{40}

Truly speaking, one who has joined his faith to the apostleship of Muhammad, must accept the divine origin of the Qur'\textsuperscript{an}, irrespective of the fact, whether he was literate or not. If the Muslims believe that the Prophet was unlettered, it is because the Qur'\textsuperscript{an} says so specifically, and not because their faith in the divine origin of the Qur'\textsuperscript{an} depends on it. The matter is thus significant for the Muslims insofar as the fact about Muhammad's lack of the knowledge of reading and writing finds a place in the Divine Writ; but, it has, perhaps, greater significance for those who deny it. By accepting the incontrovertible fact of Muhammad's inability to read and write, the question so pertinently posed by Rodwell: "If he was indeed the illiterate person, the Muslims represent him to have been, then it would be hard to escape the inference that the Koran is, as they assert it to be, a standing miracle,"\textsuperscript{41} stares them in the face demanding an answer. It is, indeed, an inexplicable dilemma for those who deny the divine origin of the Qur'\textsuperscript{an}.

There is yet one more factor in which lies the clue to the insistence on Muhammad's ability to read and write. Living in an age deeply influenced by the materialistic way of thought, people tend to believe that every effect must have a 'cause.' That is why they reject everything beyond the material world, although, unfortunately, the ways of God are infinitely varied and complicated, and it is rarely possible to discern the cause of everything even though it may present itself as a hard fact before our eyes. When, therefore, they are asked to acknowledge that the Qur'\textsuperscript{an} was revealed to an unlettered Prophet, most of them are apt to dismiss it as belonging to the realm of faith and belief. May be that some steeped in the lore of other religions like Christianity which does not go beyond inspiration, find it difficult to appreciate the Islamic concept of revelation and prophethood. But the reason for rejecting Islamic standpoint in this regard is modern rationalism basing itself on the exclusive validity of judgements of human reason which is but a reflection of Intellect tending towards the secular by nature, because human reason, although real on its own level, is but a limitation and dispersion of the Intellect and to that extent rooted in that illusory void which separates our existence from the ultimate reality.

15. Use of the word ummi in the sense of one not learned or illiterate ever since the Qur’ān’s use of the word in that sense is well-illustrated by an example. ʿAbd al-Walīb ibn Ahmad Shaʿrāni (897/1492—973/1565) an eminent and learned sufi Ṣāḥib of Egypt had taken ʿAli al-Khwās (d. 1532), an illuminated illiterate, as his spiritual director. Although he says that ʿAli was an ummi i. e., could not read or write, he calls him himself, in relation to his murshid an ummi and ʿAli, the ‘ālim in the discipline of mysticism. Also, as Hāfiz Ibn Kathīr says that there is no reason why this important fact would not have come to the notice of other companions and reported by them or by their disciples and descendants (See Tafsīr Ibn Kathīr)

The Byzantians

(Makkan, 6 Sections and 60 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (Alif. Lām. Mīm.)
2. The Byzantians have been overcome.
3. in a nearer land, and they, after being overcome, shall soon overcome.
4. in some few years. Allah's is the command, before and after, and on that day the believers shall rejoice,
5. in Allah's succour. He succours whom He will. And He is the Mighty, the Merciful.
6. This is Allah's promise and Allah does not fail His promise. Yet most men know not.
7. They only know the outside appearance of the life of the world, and they of the Hereafter they are neglectful.

80. الروم stands for the Byzantine Empire. The Eastern and independent part of the old Roman Empire, existing from 395 to 1453 A. D. The chronology of this Sūra is significant. It was revealed about the 7th or the 6th year before the Hijrat, corresponding to 615-16 of the Christian era, when the tide of Persian conquest over the Roman Empire was running strong. . . . At that time it seemed outside the bounds of human possibility, even to one intimately acquainted with the inner resources and conditions of the Persian and Roman armies and empires, that the tables would be turned and the position reversed within the space of eight or nine years. . . . Then was this passage XXX. 1-6 revealed, clearly foreshadowing the final defeat of Persia as a prelude to the destruction of the Persian Empire. There is no doubt about the prophecy and its fulfilment. For the exulting Pagans of Mecca laid a heavy wager against the fulfilment of the prophecy with Hadhrat Abū Bakr, and they lost it on its fulfilment.’ (AYA).

81. See P. I. n. 28.

82. (by the Persian in the years 614-615 C. E., and thereabout.

83. i. e., in a territory which is nearer than the Persians Empire to Arabian frontier; in Syria and Palestine.

84. ‘In the midst of the Persian triumphs, he (the Prophet) ventured to foretell that, before many years should elapse, victory would again return to the banners of the Romans. At the time when this prediction is said to have been delivered, no prophecy could be more distant from its accomplishment, since the first twelve years (A.D. 610-622) of Heraclius announced the approaching dissolution of the empire,’ (GRE. V. p. 74) ‘The prophecy, as we have seen, was justified by the event.’ (Muir, op. cit., p. 123) Even modern European historians speak of the event as ‘almost a miracle.’

85. پی بیش سون means ‘in from three to nine years.’ (LL).

86. i. e., disposal of the affair. ‘The task before Heraclius was incredibly difficult. Experienced officers, disciplined troops, money above all, were wanting. Disaster followed disaster. . . . The end seemed at hand. Despair wrought almost a miracle. . . . It was not till 622 that Heraclius was at last free to launch his attack. . . . Next year he drove straight at Media. Year after year success followed success. He penetrated victoriously farther into the heart of Persia than any Roman commander before him.’ (UHW. IV. pp. 2273-2274) The Persian victory was thus completely nullified and reversed within nine years.

87. i. e., when the prophecy is fulfilled.

88. (with the unconscious prospect of a still greater victory—the annihilation of the Byzantine Christians themselves by the Muslims under the second Caliph ‘Umar). ‘The idol of the army and the people, Heraclius returned in 628 to Constantinople, unconscious of the rise, in remote Arabia, of a menace far more terrific than that which he had so gloriously broken—the world-shaking menace of Islam. For the Prophet had arisen on whose death four years later the floodgates would be opened.’ (UHW. IV. p. 2274).

89. ‘Abū Bakr, on this passage appearing, laid a wager of ten camels with Obei Ibn Khalaf, that the Persians would be beaten within three years. Mohammed desired him to extend the period to nine years, and to raise the stake. This Abū Bakr did, and in due time had won hundred camels from Obei’s heirs.’ (Muir, op. cit., p. 123, F. N.).

90. (in accordance with His infinite Wisdom).

91. i. e., Able to inflict punishment on the infidels.

92. i. e., Ready to aid the believers.

93. (the might and veracity of God, and do not understand the working of His decrees).

94. i. e., they recognise only the apparent laws of the physical, phenomenal world.

95. (and never reflect on its proofs and évidences).
8. Do they not ponder in their minds. Allah has not created the heavens and the earth and what is in-between except with a purpose and for an appointed term. And verily many men are unbelievers in the meeting of their Lord.

9. Have they not journeyed in the land and observed how has been the end of those before them? Those were stronger than these in power and they broke up the earth and they inhabited it with greater affluence than these have inhabited it, and their messengers came to them with evidences. And Allah was not one to wrong them, but themselves they were wont to wrong.

10. Then the end of those who committed evil was evil for they belied the signs of Allah, and they were wont to mock at them.

SECTION 2

11. Allah originates the creation, then He shall restore it, then to Him you shall be returned.

12. And on the Day whereon the Hour arrives the culprits will be dumb-struck.

13. And not from their associate-gods there will be intercessors for them, and they will be unbelievers to their associate-gods.

96. (in accordance with His definite universal Scheme).

97. So everything will perish sooner or later, and due requital will follow.

98. (due to their lack of reflection).

99. i. e., the Makkans.

100. i. e., either to Syria in the north, or to Yaman in the south.

101. (of the ungodly peoples).
102. i. e., they would have found these lands filled with the ruins of old civilizations destroyed on account of their corruption.

103. i. e., the Makkans.

104. (for tillage).

105. (which they rejected to their own ruin).

106. (by their obstinate infidelity).

107. (in the Hereafter).

108. (for the first time).

109. i. e., He shall once again bring into being and reproduce all His creation in the Hereafter.

110. (for requital).

111. (in bewilderment, and shall not be able to return an answer, when face to face with the realities).

112. i. e., the infidels on the Day will deny and renounce all false worship.
14. On the Day when the Hour arrives, that day they will be separated.

15. Then as for those who believed and worked righteous deeds, they shall be in a meadow made happy.

16. And as for those who disbelieved and belied Our signs and the meeting of the Hereafter — these shall be brought to the torment.

17. So hallow Allah when you enter the night and when you enter the morning.

18. And His is all praise in the heavens and the earth, and at sun’s setting and decline and when you enter the noon.

19. He brings forth the living from the lifeless, and He brings forth the lifeless from the living, and He revives the earth after its death, and thus you too will be brought forth.

SECTION 3

20. Of His signs is that He created you of dust, and then lol you are humankind spreading yourselves.

21. And of His signs is, that He created for you from yourselves mates that you may find repose in them, and He set between you affection and mercy, verily in this are signs for a people who ponder.

113. i.e., mankind.

114. (from each other as groups of believers and infidels).

115. is here ‘used in the place of the infinitive noun of and is understood before it.” (LL).

116. This includes the two evening prayers of Maghrib and ‘Esha.

117. This refers to the Fajr prayer. The verse means: ‘Therefore perform ye prayer to God, or declare ye the remoteness of God from every imperfection, when ye enter upon the time of evening and when ye enter upon the time of daybreak.’ (LL).
118. This refers to the ‘Asr (late afternoon) prayer.
119. This refers to the Zuhr (early afternoon) prayer.
120. i.e., as a bird from an egg.
121. i.e., as an egg from a bird.
122. (from your graves).
123. i.e., the signs of His power and potency.
124. (far and wide).
125. i.e., of the same species; of the same human status.
126. The word connotes companionship and mutual love, which is distinct from mere sexual pleasure. This determines the proper status of the wife in Islam. She is not a handmaid, but a lifelong companion of her husband, his consort. Her function is to be, by her words, acts, or by her mere presence, a source of comfort and solace to him. She must constitute the chief consoling, soothing element of his life. And a relation of affection, harmony, and mutual happiness and goodwill ought to subsist between man and wife. Contrast this with the attitude of the early Church. ‘We cannot but notice, even in the greatest of the Christian fathers, a lamentably low estimate of women, and consequently of the marriage relationship. Even St. Augustine can see no justification for marriage, except in a grave desire deliberately adopted of having children; and in accordance with this view, all married intercourse, except for this single purpose, is honestly condemned... This idea of the mutual society, help, and comfort, that the one ought to have of the other, both in prosperity and adversity, hardly existed, and could hardly yet exist.’ (DCA. II. p. 1909) See P. IX n. 348.
127. Which ought to be even truer and deeper motives of marriage than mere sexual harmony. ‘Marriage, we must never forget—as too often happens—is more than an erotic union. To the truly ideal marriage there goes not only an erotic harmony but a union of many-sided and ever-deepening non-erotic affection, or community of tastes and feelings and interests, a life in common, a probability of shared parenthood, and often an economic unity.’ (Ellis, Psychology of Sex, p. 284) ‘Complete sex relationship demands relationship of the whole personality of the man, his intelligence, imagination, emotions, will, interest, sentiments and all the rest that go to make up his personality with all those things in the woman. That is why casual or promiscuous physical intercourse can never be complete sex relationship. To be complete, sex-relationship must fulfil these conditions; it must involve the whole personality of both persons; it must not impede but assist the growth of both partners; and thirdly it must give security and permanence of relationship.’ (Livia-Noble, The School Psychologist, p. 103).
128. (of His power and beneficence).
22. And of His signs are creation of the heavens and the earth, and the variation of your languages and complexions? verily in this are signs for men of knowledge.

23. And of His signs are your sleeping by night and day, and your seeking of His grace; verily in this are signs for a people who listen.

24. And of His signs is that He shows you lightning for a fear and for a hope, and sends down from the sky water, and therewith revives the earth after its death; verily in this are signs for a people who reflect.

25. And of His signs is that the heavens and the earth stand fast by His command, and thereafter when He calls you, a call from the earth, lo! you shall come forth.

26. His is whosoever is in the heavens and the earth; all are obedient to Him.

129. 'No doubt the immediate purpose of the Qur’ân in this reflective observation of nature is to awaken in man the consciousness of that of which nature is regarded a symbol. But the point to note is the general empirical attitude of the Qur'ân which engendered in its followers a feeling of reverence for the actual and ultimately made them the founders of modern science.' (Iqbal, op. cit., p. 14).

130. This diversity of human language and complexions has been, in the case of the pagan nations both old and new, one of the most potent causes of racial ill-feeling, communal jealousy, and international animosity.

131. A fact of utmost biological significance. 'Now blessing light on him that first invented sleep,' says the author of Don Quixote, 'it covers a man all over thoughts and all like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold, cold for the hot.' 'The nation’s literature,' says another writer, 'abounds in praise like that. . . . To the sufferer tossing from side to side of the bed there is no need to sing the praise of sleep. He knows how blessed it is.'

132. Nature has appointed certain hours pre-eminently suitable for sleep, when one can get the fullest benefit. Night time is of course the best time, and then come the noon hours.

133. (in the form of livelihood).
134. Which is a wonderful and terrible force of nature.
135. (lest it may strike you).
136. (of rain).
137. The ascription of all these acts to the One true God sweeps off the cobweb of a 'rain-god', a 'wind-god,' a 'thunder-god', etc.
138. He is not only the Creator but also the Preserver.
139. (of angels or other exalted beings) م (who) as a relative pronoun denoting a living being, is to be distinguished from ل (what) denoting inanimate creation.
140. (whether they will or not) See P. I. n. 526.
27. And He it is Who originates the creation, then shall it restore it and this is for Him very easy. His is the most exalted similitude in the heavens and the earth and He is the mighty, the Wise.

SECTION 4

28. He propounds to you a similitude taken from yourselves. Have you, from among those whom your right hand possess partners in that which We have provided so that you are equal in respect thereof and you fear them as you fear each other? Thus do We detail the signs for a people who reflect.

29. Ayel! those who do wrong follow their own lusts without knowledge. Who, then, will guide them whom Allah has sent astray? And for them there will be no helpers.

30. So set thou thy face towards the true faith uprightly. And follow thou the constitution of Allah according to which He has constituted mankind and let there be no alteration in Allah’s creation. That is the right religion, but most men know not.

31. And remain turning penitently to Him, and fear Him and establish prayer, and be not of the associaters.

32. Of those who split their religion each band is exulting in what is with it.

141. (from nothing for the first time).
142. (on the Resurrection day).
143. i.e., this restoration.
144. ‘Easier’ from the stand-point of man, not of God; for to Him everything is equally easy (Th.). Another view is that ‘easier’ is not here an adjective of comparison, but ‘means مَن , not implying excess.’ (LL).
145. i.e., none in heaven and earth is comparable to Him, seeing He is the Creator of all. In speaking of Him and His attributes we must make use of .the most noble and magnificent expressions we can possibly desire and even then we shall fall far short of the actual reality. Also see P. XIV, n. 229.

146. (so it is easy for Him to bring about the Resurrection).
147. (so He will bring about the Resurrection at its proper time).
148. (to condemn polytheism).
149. i.e., from your daily experience.
150. i.e., among your slaves.
151. i.e., in your wealth.
152. i.e., you and your slaves.
153. i.e., the real owners of property and sharers thereof.
154. i.e., the arguments of Our Oneness.
155. How absurd of you, on this analogy, to raise God’s creatures to equality with God!
156. (to their souls by attributing equals and associates to God).
157. i.e., without right and proper thinking.
158. (in consequence of their wilful blindness).
159. (in the Hereafter).
160. (O reader!).

161. ٌ لُق is ‘The natural constitution with which a child is created in his mother’s womb. . . . The faculty of knowing God, with which He has created mankind: the natural constitution with which a child is created in his mother’s womb, whereby he is capable of accepting the religion of truth.’ (LL).

162. (in its full purity, without allowing thyself to be seduced and misled by extrinsic temptations).

163. (and thou art sure to remain guided). Unity of God is an intuitive truth, plain to every man of commonsense, unless he perverts himself by the prejudices of education. ‘Islam is the natural religion that a child left to itself would develop. Indeed, as a Western critic once described it, “Islam is the religion of commonsenses.”’ (Lady Cobbold, op. cit., Intro. p. XIII).

164. (as man is naturally disposed to become a Muslim) It is only false teaching that corrupts his moral and spiritual lookout, and leads him to infidelity. The holy Prophet, according to an authentic report, has said: ‘Every infant is born in a state of conformity to the natural disposition with which he is created in his mother’s womb; it is his parents that make him a Jew, a Christian, and a Magian. Lane’s rendering of the phrase in the text is, ‘There shall be no changing, or altering, of the religion of God.’ (LL).

165. (for want of proper reflection).

166. (in endless sects). Witness the innumerable divisions and subdivisions among the Hindus, Christians and Jews.

167. (instead of being one solid community).

168. (in utter disregard of the truth).
33. And when any hurt visits mankind, they cry to their Lord turning penitently to Him; then when He causes them to taste of His mercy, lo! a part of them joins others with their Lord —

34. so that they may be ungrateful for that which We have vouchsafed to them. So enjoy awhile; presently you shall come to know

35. Or, have We sent to them any authority so that it speaks of what they have been associating with Him?

36. And when We cause mankind to taste of mercy, they exult at it; then if an evil befalls them because of what their hands have sent forth; lo! they despair.

37. Do they not see that Allah expands the provision for whomsoever He will and stintst? Verily in that is a sign for a people who believe.

38. So give thou to the kinsman his due and to the needy and to the wayfarer. That is best for those who seek Allah's pleasure.

169. (to the exclusion of other gods).
170. (and their trouble or affliction is removed).
171. (of Our favours).
172. (the vain pleasures of this life).
173. (the consequences).
174. (by the mouth of any prophet or by any written revelation).
175. i. e., the infidels.
176. (for the worship of false gods).
177. (to them).
178. (and turn away from God).
179. i. e., for sins which they have committed.
180. (and seek not to gain God's favour by timely repentance).
181. (in accordance with His universal scheme).
182. (it for whomsoever He will).
183. (of His might and wisdom).
184. (O believer!).
185. i. e., goodwill; pleasure. See P. I. n. 42.
186. See P. I. n. 43.
39. And whatever you give in gift in order that it may increase among the substance of men does not increase with Allah, and what you pay in poor-rate seeking the favour of Allah, then these they shall have manifold increase.

40. Allah is He Who created you and provided food for you, then He causes you to die, and then He shall quicken you. Is there any of your associate-gods that does aught of that? Hallowed and exalted be He above what they associate!

SECTION 5

41. Corruptness has prevailed on land and sea because of what men's hands have earned, so that He may make them taste a part of what they have worked, in order that haply they may turn.

42. Say thou: go forth in the land and see what wise has been the end of those of aforetime? And most of them were associators.

43. So set thy face towards the right religion before the Day arrives from which there is no averting from Allah. On that Day they shall be sundered.

44. Whoever disbelieves, on him is his infidelity, and those who work righteously are preparing themselves.
191. i. e., He alone is the Creator, the Preserver, the Destroyer, and the Restorer.

192. 'On land and sea' is synonymous with the country roundabout. 'Anarchy prevailed in the political realm as it did in the religious. The stage was set, the moment was psychological, for the rise of a great religious and national leader. (Hitti, op. cit., p. 108) The verse also hints at the moral decadence pervading the contemporary world.

193. i. e., because of the sins they have committed; because of the depravity of their manners. The moral wickedness of man is sure to react on his physical wellbeing and material prosperity.

194. (of the fruits).

195. (from their evil ways).

196. (O Prophet!).

197. (and so most of them had to suffer terrible punishment).

198. (O reader!).

199. i. e., the inevitable day of final Judgment.

200. i. e., no postponement; no further putting off.

201. i. e., mankind.

202. i. e., divided into two camps—the righteous and the wicked, the believers and the infidels.

203. (for couches of repose in Paradise).
45. (ليحري ... الكفرن) So that He shall recompense out of His grace those who believe and work righteous deeds; verily He does not approve the infidels.

46. (دم ... تكررون) And of His signs is that He sends winds heralding rain and that He may make you taste of His mercy, and that the ships may sail at His command, and that you seek His grace, and that haply you may return thanks.

47. (واعد ... اللومين) And assuredly We sent messengers before thee to their people. They brought them manifest signs. Then We requited them who transgressed. And incumbent upon Us was the avenging of the believers.

48. (الله ... يسبرون) Allah is He who sends the winds so that they raise a cloud and then spreads it along the sky as He will, and then breaks it into fragments, and thou seest the rain come forth from its midst. Then when He makes it fall upon such of His bondmen as He will. lo! they rejoice —

49. (وآن ... لليمين) even though before it was sent down upon them, they were surely despairing before that.

204. ɪ. e., of the effects of rain. رحمة in addition to its other meanings, signifies ‘Rain, ... and plenty; or abundance of herbage, and of the goods, conveniences, or comforts, of life.’ (LL).

205. ɪ. e., by means of these winds).

206. ɪ. e., to enrich yourselves by commerce, for instance.

207. ɪ. e., to Him for all these benefits).

208. (O Prophet!)

209. (in the exercise of Our retributive justice).

210. ‘How real an ethical gain would it be, how much clearness would it bring into men’s thoughts and actions, if the distinction which exists in Latin between “vindicta” and “ultio,” that the first is a moral act, the just punishment of the sinner by his God, of the criminal by the judge, the other an act in which the self-gratification of one who counts himself injured or offended is sought, could in like manner be fully established (vaguely felt it already is) between our "vengeance" and "revenge"; so that "vengeance" (with the verb "to avenge") should never be ascribed except to God, or to men acting as the executors of his righteous doom; while all retaliation to which not zeal for his righteousness but men's own sinful passions have given the impulse and the motive, should be termed "revenge." As it now is, the moral disapprobation which cleaves, and cleaves justly, to "revenge," is oftentimes transferred almost unconsciously to "vengeance"; while yet without vengeance it is impossible to conceive in a world so full of evil-doing any effectual assertion of righteousness, any moral government whatever.'

(Trench, Study of Words, pp. 262-263) See also P. III. n. 220; XIII. n. 511.

211. is not only 'aid or assistance' but also 'avengement of another victory or conquest.' (LL).

212. i.e., He disperses it.

213. (O reader!).

214. (and not by any rain-god).

215. i.e., the rain.

216. i.e., before their joy at the approach of the rain.
50. Look then at the effects of Allah’s mercy: how He revives the earth after its death, verily He is the Quickener of the dead, and He is Potent over everything.

51. And if We send a wind and they should see their titlth yellow, then they would thereafter remain disbelieving.

52. Surely thou canst not make the dead hear, nor canst thou make the deaf hear the call when they turn away in flight.

53. Nor canst thou be a guide to the blind out of their error; thou canst make none to hear save those who believe in Our signs, and who have surrendered

SECTION 6

54. Allah is He Who created you in weakness, then He assigned strength after weakness, then after strength weakness and grey hair. He creates what He will, and He is the Knower, the Potent.

55. And on the Day when the Hour arrives the culprits will swear that they tarried not but an hour, thus were they ever deluded.

217. (after these great gifts and favours).

218. (of a different sort; a blasting wind).

219. (and burnt).

220. (utterly forgetting Our former favours). Which shows that they are insensible to the feelings of gratitude.

221. (profitably, O Prophet!).

222. The infidels steeped in contumacy are compared to the dead and the deaf.

223. (when they make no effort to exert themselves in the search of the truth, nor a serious attempt to extricate themselves from the depth of error.)
224. (to Us as believers).
225. i. e., in a state of helplessness at your birth and in your infancy.
226. (as you grew up).
227. (once again in old age).
228. (of every change).
229. i. e., Able to produce any change.
230. (confounded and bewildered at its approach).
231. 'in their graves.' (Th).
232. There is a clear psychological explanation for this statement of theirs. Their wish to lengthen the intervening Burzakhish period and their anxiety to keep the unwelcome Hour as further off from them as possible, make the real duration of time look immeasurably short.
233. i. e., in a way closely akin; similarly.
234. (while in the world; and similarly used to utter lie in their lifetime).
56. And those who have been vouchsafed knowledge and faith will say: assuredly you have tarried according to the decree of Allah until the Day of Uprising: so this is the Day of Uprising, but you were wont not to know.

57. On that Day the excusing of themselves will not profit them who did wrong, nor shall they be allowed to please Allah.

58. And assuredly We have in this Qur'an propounded all means of similitude for mankind and if thou bringest them a sign those who disbelieve are sure to say: you are but deluded.

59. Thus does Allah sealeth the hearts of those who do not believe.

60. Have thou patience; verily Allah's promise is true. And let not those who have no conviction make thee unsteady.

235. i.e., the righteous believers.
236. (to the infidels in answer).
237. (and believe in it in your life-time).
238. (and to make amends).
239. i.e., wise sayings to illustrate its purpose and meaning.
240. i.e., for their guidance and admonition.
241. (of their own asking) i.e., a miracle such as they desire.
242. (to the Muslims).
243. i.e., who do not exert their will to know and believe.
244. (O Prophet!).
245. (in the face of every provocation and ill-success, O Prophet!).
246. (and thou art sure to come out ultimately triumphant against all obstacles).
Sūrah Luqman

Luqman. XXXI

(Makkan, 4 Sections and 34 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful

SECTION 1

1. (Alif Lām. Mīm.⁴⁴⁷)

2. (الم) (تلك ... الحكيم) These are verses of the Wise Book.

3. (هذي ... الحسن) A guidance and a mercy for the well-doers⁴⁴⁸ —

4. (الذين ... يذرون) Those who establish the prayer and pay the poor-rate and are convinced of the Hereafter.⁴⁴⁹

5. (اوراك ... الملحون) These are on guidance from their Lord, and these they are the blissful.⁴⁵⁰

6. (رس ... مهين) And of man is he who purchases an idle discourse that he may mislead from Allah's way without knowledge,⁴⁵¹ and takes it by way of mockery. These for them shall be an ignominious chastisement.

247. See P. I. n. 28.
248. See P. II. n. 219.
249. See P. I. n. 41.
250. See P. I. n. 43.
251. i. e., is occupied with; is engrossed in.
252. (in preference to the Divine Book of wisdom and guidance). It is related that in the time of the Prophet there was a pagan named Nudhr ibn al-Hārith who brought from abroad the half-lwed tales and romances of Persian heroes, and alluring the crowds of the Quraish persuaded them to think that his stories were preferable to the word of God.
253. (others thereby).
254. Himself ignorant of Divine truths, he goes in his impertinence yet further and endeavours to seduce others.
255. i. e., the way of Allah.
And when Our revelations are recited to him, he turns away in pride as though he did not hear that at all: as though there was a heavi-ness in his ears. Announce thou to him an afflictive torment.

Verily those who believe and work righteous deeds, theirs shall be Gardens of Delight.

Abiders they will be therein: a true promise of Allah. And He is the Mighty, the Wise.

He has created the heavens that you see without pillars and has cast firm mountains in the earth lest it move away with you, and He has scattered thereon every kind of animal. And We send down water from the sky and We make all manner of goodly growth therein.

This is the creation of Allah. Show me what those beside Allah have created. Ayet the ungodly are in manifest error.

SECTION 2

And assuredly We vouchsafed wisdom to Luqman saying: give thanks to Allah, and whoever gives thanks, gives thanks for his soul; and whoever is unthankful — then verily Allah is Self-Sufficient, Praise-worthy.
264. i. e., true doctrine coupled with righteous acts. 'By the given by God to Lukmān, is meant the evidence of the intellect in accordance with the statutes of the law.' (LL). Luqmān, who may or may not be identified with Ἐσωπ of the Greeks, was a sage very 'well-known to the Arabs.' 'Lukmān was already known in the pagan period as a sage. His wisdom is celebrated by pre-Muslim poets. . . . Lukmān's wisdom forms the transition from the Dijāhiliya to the Kur-an'. (El. III. p. 36) Luqman is 'the name of two, if not of three, persons famous in Arabian tradition. The first was of the family of 'Ad. . . . The name of the second Luqman, called "Luqman the Sage," occurs in the Koran. . . . According to Mas'udi he was a Nubian freedman who lived in the time of David.' (EB. XIV. 487) He 'was either an Abyssinian or a Hebrew, (Hitti. op. cit., p. 91).

265. i. e., for the benefit of his own soul.

266. i. e., requiring the thanks and praise of none.

267. i. e., in Himself worthy of all praise; the acme of Perfection. This insistence on the absolute perfection of God (both as regards His Person and as regards His attributes) strikes at the root of such amusing blasphemies as held by Bernard Shaw and others that 'God is an Imperfect Being seeking to make Himself Perfect and using for this purpose any instrument that will serve His purpose. If the instrument is senseless or can be superseded by a better one, it is scrapped.' This doctrine is most obviously expressed in the one-act play called the Shewing-up of Blanco Posnet (Drinkwater, Outline of Literature, II, p. 898.)
13. And re-call when Luqmn said to his son, while he was exhorting him: O my son! associate not aught with Allah: verily this associating is a tremendous wrong.

14. And We have enjoined upon man concerning his parents—his mother bears him, in hardship upon hardship, and his weaning is in two years. Give thanks to Me and to thy parents: unto Me is the goal.

15. And if the twain strive to make thee associate with Me that whereof thou hast no knowledge, then obey them not. And keep them honourable company in this world reputedly and follow thou the path of him who turns to Me penitently. Then to Me is your return, and I shall declare to you what you have been working.

16. Son! though it be but of the weight of a grain of mustard-seed, and though it be in a rock, or in the heavens, or in the earth, Allah shall bring it forth, verily Allah is Subtile, Aware.

17. Son! establish the prayer and do what is reputable and forbid iniquity, and bear patiently whatever may befall thee; verily that is of the firmness of the affairs.

268. (of anyone to Him).

269. (compared with which every great wrong is of a lesser degree). "This hatred of idolatry has been found even among the most uncivilised followers of the Prophet. The gorgeous ritual, the gaudy pictures, and the pious frauds which play so large a part in the conversion of the Slavonian nations to the Christianity, seem only to have alienated these semi-barbarians. Mahmud the Ghaznavide... was offered a sum of ten million sterling if only he would spare the famous idol in the pagoda of Somnat. Avarice is said to have been his besetting fault, but he replied in the memorable words. "Never shall Mahmud be a merchant of idols;" and broke it into pieces." (Bosworth Smith, op. cit., p. 264).

270. (in her womb, and feeds him on her blood). "Speaking broadly, the foetus lives on the blood of its mother very much in the same way as all the tissues of any animal live on the blood of the body of which they are the parts.’ (Foster, Text-book of Physiology, p. 676) ‘From beginning to end, the process of reproduction is bound up with sacrifice of self on the part of the parent, and needs self-sacrifice for its fulfilment.’ (Mercier, Conduct and its Disorders, p. 288).

271. i.e., with ever-increasing hardship as the period of pregnancy advances. ‘Detailed investigations by Robert Benda proved that during pregnancy, especially in the second half, and also during childbirth, there are frequently great disturbances in the so-called reticulo-endothelial system which contemporary medicine considers of vast importance. . . . This apparatus, so important in the struggle of the organism against injurious influences, is, according to Benda, affected during pregnancy in its entirety. Benda frankly states that “the defensive struggle which the organism of a pregnant woman is engaged in is very analogous to the struggle of the organism when threatened by infectious products.”’ (Nemilov, Biological Tragedy of Women, p. 157) See XXVI. n. 46, 47.

272. ‘The time for weaning should be fixed partly by the child’s age partly by the growth of the teeth. . . . It is prudent to let dairy milk form a considerable portion of the fare till the eye-teeth are cut, which seldom happens till the 18th or 20th month.’ (Ebr. IX. p. 455) See P. XXVI. n. 50.

273. The coupling of ‘parents’ with God Himself in so far as the rendering of service is concerned, indicates the extreme importance that filial duty has in Islam.

274. (when everyone will be held to account for his deeds).
275. So great is the heinousness of idolatry.
276. (in matters mundane and temporal).
277. (consistent with thy duty to God) See P. XV. n. 68.
278. (in matters religious and spiritual).
279. i.e., who is obedient to Me and My laws.
280. i.e., of microscopic smallness.
281. i.e., so completely hidden.
282. i.e., so remote from mankind.
283. i.e., in so utterly dark a place.
284. So Perfect is He in knowledge and power.
286 (of afflictions).
287. i.e., perseverance and constancy.
And turn not thy cheek from men, nor walk on the earth stultifyingly: verily Allah does not approve any vainglorious boaster.

And be thou modest in thy gait and lower thy voice: verily the most abominable of voices is the voice of the ass.

SECTION 3

Do you not see that Allah has subjected for you whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth, and has completed His favours on you outwardly and inwardly. And yet of mankind is one who disputes concerning Allah without knowledge and with neither guidance nor a luminous Book.

And when it is said to them: follow what Allah has sent down, they say: nay! we shall follow what we found our fathers upon. What! even though Satan had been calling on them to the torment of the Blaze.

(pride and arrogance).

i.e. in a pompous and conceited manner.

Neither going too slowly nor too quickly. "The "golden mean" is the pivot of the philosophy of Luqman as it is of the philosophy of Aristotle, as indeed of Islam" (AYA).

(as indicative of humility).

A symbol of stupidity and insensibility. Ass, as in the fables and proverbs of many peoples and countries, is the type of clumsiness, stupidity and ignorance. "It differs from the horse in... its potential dullness and obstinacy. The ancient Egyptians symbolised an ignorant person by the head and ears of an ass, and to Roman thought it was bad omen to meet one." (Ebr. II, p. 777, 11th Ed.) Its braying is particularly unpleasant of all animal voices. See also XXVIII, p. 281.

(O mankind!).

This lays down distinctly that everything created, however huge or vast to look at, is subservient to man, directly or indirectly. How foolish, then, it is for man to bow down to these objects of nature in worship, and to treat them as his masters what are in reality his servants. Compare the ways of the polytheists:—

‘In the pantheon of classic mythology, . . . not all, but the principal figures belong to strict Nature-worship. . . . They are Heaven and Earth, Rain and Thunder, Water and Sea, Fire and Sun and Moon, worshipped either directly for themselves, or as animated by their special deities.’ (PC. II. pp. 254-255).

294. ‘Outward favours’ are such as can be known by senses.
295. ‘Inward favours’ are such as can be known by reason and reflection.
296. i. e., respecting the nature and person of God.
297. i. e., guided neither by intuition, nor reason, nor yet revelation. (Th).
298. i. e., the traditions of our race or community, and our ancestral customs.
299. i. e., their fathers.
300. (by leading them to the ways of error and perdition).
22. And whoso submits his face to Allah and he is a well-doer, he has of a surety lain hold of a firm cable. Un to Allah is the end of all affairs.

23. And whoso disbelieves, let not his infidelity grieve thee. To Us is their return, and We shall declare to them what they have worked. Verily Allah is the Knowers of what is in their breasts.

24. We let them enjoy for a while and then We shall drive them to a rough torment.

25. And wert thou to ask them who has created the heavens and the earth, they will surely say: Allah. Say thou: all praise to Allah! But most of them know not.

26. Allah's is whatsoever is in the heavens and the earth. Verily Allah is the Self-sufficient, the Laudable.

27. And if whatever trees are on the earth were pens, and sea were ink, with seven more seas to help it, the words of Allah could not be exhausted; verily Allah is Mighty, Wise.

28. And the creation of you all and the upraising of you all are as though of one soul verily Allah is Hearing, Beholding.
309. See P. I. n. 520.
310. See nn. 266, 267 above.
311. i.e., each and every one of these innumerable trees were made into pens.
312. i.e., the entire watery portion of the world. The word البحير is used in generic sense. It is not any particular ocean but the class of oceans.
313. (to write the words of God therewith). The word 'Seven' does not refer to any particular number; the expression means 'if the ink-oceans were expanded many, many times.' (Rz.).
314. i.e., words denoting His excellence, His attributes and His perfections.
315. (while these innumerable pens and that immeasurable amount of ink would be exhausted).
316. i.e., Infinite in might.
317. i.e., Infinite in wisdom.
318. (O mankind!).
319. God Almighty being Infinite, the raising of entire mankind is as easy with Him as that of a single soul.
320. (and shall requite each accordingly).
29. Dost thou not see that Allah plunges the day into the night and the night into the day and has subjected the sun and the moon, each running to an appointed term, and that Allah is Aware of what you do?

30. That is because Allah! He is the Truth, because whatsoever they call upon beside Allah is falsehood, and because He is the Exalted, the Great.

SECTION 4

31. Dost thou not see that the ship sails into the sea by the favour of Allah, that He might show you of His signs? Verily therein are signs for every persevering, grateful heart.

32. And when a wave covers them like awnings, they call upon Allah making their faith pure for Him. Then when He delivers them on the land, only some of them keep to the middle course. And none gainsays Our signs save each perfidious, ingratitude one.

321. (O reader!).
322. (to His service). A fatal blow to the worship of these celestial bodies.
323. i.e., the only Reality.
324. i.e., having no real, substantial existence.
325. (O reader!).
326. (of His power and greatness).
327. Which is the path of monotheism.
33. O mankind! fear your Lord and dread the Day whereon no father will atone for his son and no son will atone for his father at all. Verily the promise of Allah is true. Let not the life of this world beguile you, and let not the great beguiler beguile you in regard to Allah.

34. Verily Allah! with Him alone is the knowledge of the Hour, and He is Who sends down the rain, and knows what is in the wombs. And no person knows what he will earn on the morrow; and a person does not know in what land he will die. Verily Allah is Knowing, Aware.

328. (in regard to the Final Judgment).
329. (in respect of the inevitable requital).
330. i.e., the devil.
331. (and His vengeance).
332. (at His own appointed time).
333. i.e., whether the embryo is of male or of female, whether it will be born alive, and such other things.
334. i.e., no one can know what he will have to face tomorrow.

The Prostration. XXXII

(Makkan, 3 Sections and 30 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (الإ) Alif. Lām. Mīm. 335

2. (تَوْلِيْد . . . المَلِيم) Revelation of this Book of which there is no doubt, is from the Lord of the worlds. 336

3. (أَلَيْنَ يَتَكَرَّرُونَ) Will they say: 337 He has fabricated it? Aye! it is the truth from thy Lord that thou mayest warn therewith a people to whom no warner came before thee, that haply they may be guided.

4. (اللَّهُ ... أَلَّا تَذَكَّرُونَ) Allah it is Who has created the heavens and the earth and whatsoever is in-between in six days, 338 and then He established Himself on the Throne. 339 No patron have you nor an intercessor, beside Him Will you not then be admonished? 340

335. See P. I. n. 28.

336. Or 'wherein.' 'The phrase may mean either that there is no doubt about this Qur’ān being the word of God, or that there is no sort of doubt or uncertainty in teaching of the Qur’ān. See P. I. n. 31. This also clearly enunciates that there is in the Holy Qur’ān, unlike the Bible and other sacred writings, no inexplicable 'mysteries'. Every doctrine, every article of faith is clearly conformable to commonsense.

337. See P. I. nn. 12, 13.

338. i.e., the infidels.
339. (a thing so obviously untrue).
340. i. e., the Prophet.
341. (O Prophet!).
342. (out of nothing) See P. VIII. n. 484.
343. See P. VIII. n. 485; P. XI. n. 148.
344. (O mankind!).
345. (unless with His leave) See P. XI. n. 150.
346. (that He is One without a second).
5. He disposes every affair from the heaven to the earth: thereafter shall ascend unto Him in a Day whereof the measure is one thousand years of what you compute.

6. Such is the Knower of the unseen and the seen, the Mighty, the Merciful.

7. Who has made everything good which He has created. And He originated the creation of man from clay.

8. Then He made his progeny from an extract of mean water.

9. Then He fashioned him and breathed into him something of a spirit from Him, and He ordained for you hearing and sight and hearts. Little is the thanks you return.

10. And they say: when we are vanished in the earth, shall we be raised in a new creation? Aye! they are disbelieving in the meeting with their Lord.

11. Say thou: the angel of death who is set over you shall cause you to die, thereafter you shall be returned to your Lord.

SECTION 2

12. Couldst thou but see when the culprits shall hang their heads before their Lord saying: Lord! we have now seen and heard; so send us back; we shall now work righteously, verily we are convinced.

347. (on the Last Day).

348. i.e., every affair.

349. The space of a day with God is with men that of a thousand years. 'In the immense Future all affairs will go up to Him, for He will be the Judge, and His restoration of all values will be as in a Day or an Hour or the Twinkling of an eye; and yet to our ideas it will be as a thousand years.' (AYA).
350. i.e., in its perfection; in its brilliancy. Cf. the OT:—‘And God saw everything that he had made, and behold it was very good.’ (Ge. 1:31).

351. See P. XVIII. n. 13.

352. (in due proportion).

353. ‘A spirit from Him’ not ‘His spirit’ is the correct rendering of נשים in the context. See P. XVIII. n. 14.

354. (to understand and to reflect).

355. (both of which are the chief avenues of sense-perception).

356. i.e., the Makkanners who denied resurrection.

357. (O Prophet!).

358. It is God alone who is the Judge, the Arbiter——the ‘angel of death’ being no more than an agent.

359. (with shame and grief).

360. (and have found true the words of the Prophets).

361. (to the world).
13. And had We willed, 483 surely We would have given every soul its guidance, 484 but true must be the word from Me; 485 I shall surely fill Hell with the jinn and mankind together. 486

14. So taste you the sequel for as much as you forgot 486 the meeting of this Day, verily We have forgotten 487 you. Taste the abiding torment for what you have been working.

15. They alone believe in Our revelations who, when they are remained thereof, fall down prostrate and hallow the praise of their Lord, and they are not proud.

16. Their sides leave off the couches 488 calling upon their Lord in fear and in desire, and they expend of that with which We have provided them.

17. No soul 489 knows what is kept hidden from them 489-A of perfect comfort 489 as a recompense for what they have been working.

18. Shall he, therefore, who is a believer, be like him who is a transgressor? Equal they are not. 471

362. (in accordance with Our universal scheme).
363. (with no alternative of evil).
364. (in the requirements of justice).
365. Whichsoever of them choose the path of error, and perdition.
366. i.e., deliberately ignored.
367. i.e., have deliberately ignored.
368. (while yet there is night).
369. Not even an angel or a prophet.
369-A. The abrupt change of number, from the singular to the plural, is common in Arabic.

370. Literally, 'coolness of the eyes.' ما قرة العين signifies الظرف العين: That by which, or in consequence of which, the eye becomes cool, or refrigerated, or refreshed.' (LL) The real bliss which we shall have in the Paradise is in the present state of our existence hardly imaginable. Cf. the OT:--'For since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen, O God, beside thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him.' (Is. 64: 4) And the NT:--'But, as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath propounded for them that love him.' (1, Cor. 2: 9).

371. (in the sight of God).
As for those who believe and work righteous deeds— for them are Gardens of Abode: an entertainment for what they had been working.

And as for those who transgress—their abode is the Fire. Whenever they will desire to get thereout, they shall be drawn back thereto, and it will be said to them: taste the torment of the Fire which you were wont to belie.

And surely We shall make them taste of the smaller torment before the greater that haply they may yet return.

And who is a greater wrong-doer than he who is reminded of His signs, and he turns aside therefrom? Verily We are going to be Avenger unto the culprits.

SECTION 3

Assuredly We vouchsafed the Book to Mūsā; so be thou not in doubt in receiving it. And We assigned it to be a guidance to the Children of Israil.

And we appointed from amongst them leaders, guiding others by Our command, when they had persevered, and of Our signs they were convinced.

Verily thy Lord: He shall decide between them on the Judgment Day concerning that wherein they have been differing.

372. (as for honoured guests).
373. (which is of this world). So far as the pagans of Makka are concerned, this may refer to the famine which visited them in the eleventh year of the Prophet’s mission. 'اأدنى' means also ‘less in number or quantity.’ (LL).
374. (which will be of the Hereafter).
375. i. e., the Torah.
376. ——keeping in view the precedent
377. i. e., the Qur'an. The thing is after all not so novel as it at first seems.
378. (in religion and piety).
379. (in the face of great trials and tribulations).
380. The implication is that in a like manner, the true and sincere Muslims also shall have great leaders among themselves.
381. i. e., between the believers and the infidels in a practical, demonstrable way.
26. Has this not guided them: how many a generation We have destroyed before them amidst whose dwellings they walk? Surely therein are signs; will they not listen?

27. Do they not see that We drive water to a bare land and bring forth therewith crops of which their cattle and they themselves eat? Will they not therefore be enlightened?

28. And they say: when will this Decision arrive, if you say sooth?

29. Say thou: on the day of the Decision their belief will not profit those who have disbelieved; nor will they be respited.

30. So turn aside thou from them and await, verily they are awaiting.

382. The Makkan pagans frequently passed by the places where there dwelt the ‘Aadites, Thamudites, Midianites and the people of Sodom.

383. (of the evil consequences of infidelity and impiety).

384. (of herbage).

385. i.e., the pagans.

386. (to the Muslims).

387. (O Prophet!)

388. 'Um al-mit means particularly the day of the conquest of Makkah, and also the day of resurrection.' (LL).

389. (leaving them alone).
Sūrat-ul-Ahzab

The Confederates. XXXIII

(Madinian, 9 Sections and 73 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (زي جالتي... هكيا) O Prophet! fear Allah, and do not yield to the infidels and the hypocrites; verily Allah is ever Knowing, Wise.

2. (زاي جسح... خيرا) And follow that which is revealed to thee from thy Lord; verily Allah is Aware of what you do.

3. (دوثلوك... وكلا) And put thy trust in Allah, and Allah suffices as a Trustee.

4. (ماجل... البيل) Allah has not placed two hearts in any man, in his inside. Neither had He made your wives whom you pronounce to be as your mother’s back, your real mothers, nor has He made your adopted sons your own sons. This is only your saying by your mouths, whereas Allah says the truth and He guides the way.

390. (alone, as thou hast hitherto feared).

391. Who had promised to the Prophet, that if he would leave off preaching against their gods they would give him no further trouble.

392. Who were in secret league with the open infidels.

393. (so His commandments alone are to be followed).

394. (ignoring all that the infidels may say or do).

395. (O mankind!).

396. Or ‘chest.’ The reference is to a superstitious belief of the pagans. Anyone gifted with high intelligence was supposed by them to have two hearts.
instead of one. جوف is primarily 'a hollow or inside,' and secondarily 'a chest or thorax.'

397. Zihar was a pagan formula of divorce. ظاهر من أمي signifies, 'He said to his wife انت على سطح أمي, Thou art to me like the back of my mother; the back being specified in preference to the الور or غلد or فرح because the woman is likened to a beast that is ridden, and the act of كجل to that of ركبة; the phrase being a form of divorce used by the Arabs in the Time of Ignorance.' (LL) When the pagan husband wanted to get rid of his wife without making her free to remarry, he simply said to her: 'Thou art to me as the back of my mother.' By pronouncing these words he deprived her of all conjugal rights and yet retained control over her. The Holy Qur'an repudiated this barbaric form of divorce, and thereby effected a great reform in the status of the Arab women.

398. This repudiates both the pagan and the Christian (Catholic) notions according to which an adopted son was treated as a natural son so that the same impediments of marriage arose from this supposed relation in the prohibited degrees as it would have done in the case of a genuine son. Strangely enough, the heathen Arabs, while they had no scruple in marrying the wives (excluding of course their own mother) of a deceased father, considered it awfully wrong to marry the divorced wife of an adopted son. It was this crudity of the pagan morals that, upon the Prophet's marrying the divorced wife of his freedman Zaid, who was also his adopted son, gave rise to a great deal of hostile and scandalous gossip and criticism.

399. (having no relation to reality). To Islam belongs the glory of abolishing this widespread foolish custom. 'The right of adoption was not limited to the legitimation of the offspring of a free tribesman by a slave girl. . . . To preserve the doctrine of tribal homogeneity it was feigned that the adopted son was veritably and for all effects of the blood of his new father.' (Robertson Smith, Kinship and Marriage in Early Arabia, p. 44).

400. (and so He enunciates the right principles).
5. Call them after their fathers; that will be more equitable in the sight of Allah. And if you do not know their fathers then they are your brethren in faith and your friends. And there is no fault in you in regard to the mistake you have made therein, except in regard to what your hearts deliberately intend. And Allah is ever Forgiving, Merciful.

6. The Prophet is nearer to believers than themselves, and his wives are their mothers. And kinsmen are nearer one to another than other believers and the emigrants in the ordinance of Allah, except that you may act humbly to your friends. This has been inscribed in the Book.

7. And recall when We took a bond from the prophets and from thee, and from Nūh and Ibrāhīm and Mūsā and ‘Isā son of Maryam. And We took from them a solemn bond.

401. the adopted sons.
402. i.e., by their natural fathers and not by those who have adopted them.
403. (as corresponding with truth and reality).
404. (so call them your brothers or friends).
405. i.e., in the manner of addressing adopted sons through ignorance or mistake, unintentionally.
406. (and that shall be a sin upon you).
407. (so in the intentional cases also He will forgive you provided you ask His forgiveness).
408. i.e., entitled to their greatest love and respect.
409. (since he commands them nothing save what is for their own good; and is more solicitous for their present and future happiness than themselves). The world hitherto had known only kinship and blood-relationship as the strongest bond between man and man. The Holy Qurʾān now imposed an additional one—far more compelling and far more comprehensive.
410. (so far as their respect is concerned, the Prophet himself being their spiritual father).

411. (by blood-relationship).

412. The holy Prophet had established brotherhood between the inhabitants of Madina (Ansar or 'helpers') and the fugitives from Makka (Muhajirin or 'emigrants'). The verse here lays down that in the matter of inheritance the rights of blood relationship shall claim priority.

413. (in the matter of inheritance and rights of natural relationship).

414. (as, for instance, by making special provision for them in your will).

415. (of Divine decrees).

416. (in the beginning of creation).

417. (in general).

418. (in particular, O Prophet!).

419. (to the effect that they would carry out their mission). See P. III. nn. 588, 589.
8. (ليست... إلاهم) that He may question the truthful of their truth. And for the infidels He has prepared an afflictive torment.

SECTION 2

9. (ياالذين... همروا) O you who believe! remember Allah's favour to you when there came unto you hosts, and We sent against them a wind and hosts which you did not see, and Allah was a Beholder of what you were working.

10. (اذّدكروث.. الظونوا) When they came upon you from above you and from below you, and when eyes turned aside and hearts reached to the gullets in terror, and of Allah you were imagining various things.

11. (مك... نذيدا) Then were the faithful turned and shaken with a mighty shaking.

12. (واذ.. غوروا) And when the hypocrites and those in whose hearts is disease were saying: Allah and his messenger have promised us naught but delusion.

13. (واذ.. فرا) And when a party of them said: O people of Yarthrib! there is no place for you; so retire. And a party of them asked leave of the messenger saying: verily our houses stand exposed whereas they stood not exposed; they only wished to flee.

421. i.e., the prophets; the custodians of Divine Truth.
422. i.e., regarding the truth they were charged with: as to how they executed their mission and how they were received by their people.
423. (of infidels in their overwhelming numbers) These were the forces of the Quraish and the tribe of Ghatafān confederated with the Jews of the tribes of Ṣaḥr and Quraiza, who besieged Madīna to the number of from ten to twelve thousand warriors in the year 5 A.H. The fateful siege is also known as he war of the Ditch. ‘Koraish themselves brought into the field 4,000 soldiers, including 300 horse, and 1,500 riders upon camels. . . . The entire force was estimated at 10,000 men. They marched in three separate camps; all were under the general leadership of Abu Sufyān but, when the time for action came, the several chiefs each for a day commanded in succession.’ (Muir, op. cit., pp. 306-307).

424. (cold and tempestuous). ‘Wind and rain beat mercilessly on the unprotected camp. The storm rose to a hurricane. Fires were extinguished, tents blown down, cooking vessels and other equipage overthrown. Cold and comfortless, Abū Sufyān suddenly resolved on an immediate march. Hastily summoning the chiefs, he made known his decision: “Break up the camp,” he said, “and march; as for myself, I am gone.” With these words he leaped on his camel (so great, we are told, was his impatience) while its foreleg was yet united, and led the way.’ (Muir, op. cit., pp. 313-314).

425. (of angels).

426. (and was pleased with your acts of heroism).

427. i. e., the enemy in their thousands.

428. (in their tremendous onrush).

429. Some of the enemy had encamped on the higher part of the valley.

430. Some of the enemy had encamped on the lower part of the valley.

431. (in consternation, and grew dim).

432. The phrase is expressive of cowardice.

433. The sincere and the firm of heart feared that they might not be able to stand the trial; while the weak-hearted and the hypocrites considered themselves delivered up to slaughter and destruction.

434. i. e., in that situation.

434-A. See P. XX. n. 360.

435. (as to the spoils of the Persians and the Byzantians). The Prophet had distinctly affirmed that the Muslims were to achieve victory over the Persian and the Byzantine empires. This gave the point, although for the time being only, to the taunt of the hypocrites.

436. i. e., of the hypocrites.

437. The ancient name of Madina; ‘the Lathrippa of Ptolemy and Iathrippa of Stephanus Byzantius.’ (EBr. XVIII. p. 64, 11th Ed.).

438. (of security).

439. (to your homes).

440. i. e., the hypocrites.

441. (and exposed to enemy). عرَة here stands for ذات عرَة.

441-A. The first ‘they’ refers to the houses, the second ‘they’ to the hypocrites.
14. And if they were to be entered upon from the sides thereof and they were asked to sedition, they would surely have committed it, and they would have stayed therein but slightly.

15. And assuredly they had already covenanted with Allah that they would not turn their backs; verily the covenant with Allah must be questioned about.

16. Say thou: flight will not avail you if you flee from death or slaughter and lo! you will not enjoy life except for a little.

17. Say thou: who is there that will protect you from Allah if He intends to bring evil on you or intends mercy for you? And they shall not find, besides Allah, for themselves a patron or helper.

18. Surely Allah knows those amongst you who hinder others and those who say to their brethren come hither to us while they themselves come not to the battle save a little.

442. i.e., the hypocrites.

443. (by the enemy).

444. i.e., of the city.

445. (and treachery against the Muslims).

446. (in such a case).

447. So prone and ever-ready were they to every act of hostility against Islam!

448. The hypocrites, after the battle of Badr, had publicly promised that they would no more lag behind nor would they run away.

449. (unto the hypocrites, O Prophet!)

450. i.e., death and its appointed time is inevitable, whether ye fight or take to flight.

451. (O Prophet!).
452. (and prevent Him).
453. (to do them good).
454. (to protect them from harm).
455. (others from going to battle in the cause of Allah).
456. i. e., their tribesmen or countrymen.
457. (instead of joining the army).
458. i. e., except for a very shortwhile, and then either return on some feigned excuse or behave ill in time of action.
19. Being niggardly towards you, when fighting comes thou beholdest them to look to thee, their eyes rolling like the eyes of him who faints unto death. Then when the fighting is over, they inveigh against you with sharp tongues, being deprived of good things. These have not believed, so Allah has made their works of none effect, and that is with Allah ever easy.

20. They imagine that the confederates have not yet departed; and if the confederates should come, they would rather be in the desert with the wandering Arabs asking for news of you. And if they happen to be among you, they would fight but little.

SECTION 8

21. Assuredly there has been an excellent pattern, for you in the messein of Allah, for him who hopes in Allah and the Last Day and remembers Allah much.

22. And when the faithful saw the confederates, they said: this is what Allah and His messenger had promised us, and Allah and His messenger had spoken the truth. It only increased in the faithful belief and self-surrender.

459. (of their assistance and aid, O believers!).
460. (not only Fear but also ‘Slaughter;... and Fighting.’ (LL).
461. (O Prophet!).
462. (through sheer cowardice).
463. (and the time has arrived of dividing the booty).
464. i. e., being covetous of wealth and spoils.
465. i. e., they are as a matter of fact no believers at all.
466. (in the Hereafter).
467. i. e., nobody can dispute with Him in this respect.
468. (in sheer cowardice).
469. i. e., the large force of Quraish and allied tribes who had attacked the Muslims in Madina in the fifth year of Hijrat.
470. (once more).
471. (away from all risks and damages of war.).
472. (so that they might not be obliged to go to war).
473. (from that safe distance, in order to take advantage of any success that might accrue to you to come out, and by declaring themselves on your side, and to claim their share of the booty).
474. (and even that to keep up appearances).
475. (as combining in himself all types of virtues). Note that it is a personality, a living personality, rather than abstract copy-book maxims that is in Islam held up as the object of imitation. The holy Prophet of Islam is the Great Example. 'Serious or trivial, his daily behaviour has instituted a course which millions observe at this day with conscious mimicry. No one regarded by any section of the human race as Perfect Man has been imitated so minutely.'
(Hogarth, Arabia, p. 52).
476. 'The example the Prophet has set before us in his actions and sayings. His wonderful life was a living illustration and explanation of the Qur'ân, and we can do no greater justice to this Holy Book than by following him who was the mouthpiece of its revelation.' (Asad, Islam on the cross-roads, p. 91).
477. (that we must not expect to enter Paradise without undergoing trials and tribulations).
23. Of the faithful are men who have fulfilled their covenant with Allah. Some of them have performed their vow, and some of them are waiting, and they have not changed in the least.

24. All this happened in order that Allah may recompense the truthful for their truth, and may punish the hypocrites if He would or may relent toward them. Verily Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.

25. Allah drove back those who disbelieved in their rage; they obtained no advantage, and Allah sufficed for the faithful in the fighting. Allah is ever Strong, Mighty.

26. He brought those of the people of the Book who backed them down from their fortresses and cast terror in their hearts, a part of them you slew, and a part you made captives.

27. And He caused you to inherit their land and their house and their riches, and the land which you have not trodden, and Allah is Potent over everything.

SECTION 4

28. O Prophet! say to thy wives: if it be that you seek the life of the world and its adornment, then come, I shall make a provision for you and shall release you with a handsome release.
486. (in spite of their huge preparations and close and clever alliances).
487. (as their Champion and Protector).
488. i.e., Able to repel the enemies and to enforce His will.
489. These were the Jews of the tribe of Quraizah, who, though they had a treaty of alliance with the holy Prophet, had perfidiously gone over to his enemies, the polytheists, in this war of the Ditch.
490. i.e., the confederates.
491. (which they had considered impregnable). Immediately after the confederate forces had decamped the Prophet, at a special Divine command, marched against the Quraizites.
492. (and dismay). 'The improvident Jews, whom the fate of their brethren should have taught to better purpose, had not calculated on the chances and necessities of a siege. Soon reduced to great distress, they sought to capitulate on condition of quitting the neighbourhood even empty-handed... At last the wretched Jews, brought now to the last verge of starvation, offered to surrender, on condition that their fate should be decided by their allies the Aus.' (Muir, op. cit., pp. 315-316). Thereupon S'ad, the chief of the tribe of Aus, greatly incensed at perfidy of the Jews, adjudged that the men should be put to the sword, the women and children made slaves, and their goods divided among the Muslims.
Regarding this apparently 'harsh, bloody sentence,' writes a Christian historian: 'It must be remembered that the crime of these men was high treason against the State, during time of siege; and those who have read how Wellington's march could be traced by the bodies of deserters and pillagers hanging from the trees, need not be surprised at the summary execution of a traitorous clan.' (LSK. Intro. p. LXV).
493. Compare the Jews' own laws concerning the treatment of the fallen cities. 'When thou comest nigh unto a city to fight against it, then proclaim peace unto it... And if it will make no peace with thee, but will make war against thee, then thou shalt besiege it: And when the Lord thy God hath delivered it into thine hands, thou shalt smite every male thereof with the edge of the sword: But the women, and the little ones, and the cattle, and all that is in the city, even all the spoil thereof, shalt thou take unto thyself; and thou shalt eat the spoil of thine enemies, which the Lord thy God hath given thee... But of the cities of these people, which the Lord thy God doth give thee for an inheritance, thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth. But thou shalt utterly destroy them... ' (Dt. 20: 10-17).
494. According to different commentators this may be the land of Khaibar, or Persia and Byzantium, or any land whatsoever that the Muslims may conquer till the Day of Judgment.
495. The passage was revealed on the occasion of the Prophet's wives asking for more sumptuous clothes and an additional allowance for their expenses.
496. 'All the Consorts in their high position had to work and assist as Mothers of the Ummat. Theirs were not idle lives, like those of Odalisques, either for their own pleasures or the pleasure of their husband. They are told here that they had no place in the sacred Household if they merely wished for ease or worldly glitter. If such were the cause, they could be divorced and amply provided for.' (AYA) 'Bred in the simplicity of Arab life, artificial comforts, soon regarded by his followers as necessaries of life, would to him have been irksome and weary. The Prophet was happier with his wives each in her small and rudely furnished cabin, than he would have been surrounded with all the delicacies and grandeur of a palatial residence.' (Muir. op. cit., p. 202).
29. (رَانِ عَلَى) And if you seek Allah⁴⁹⁷ and His messenger⁴⁹⁸ and the abode of the Hereafter then verily Allah has prepared of the well-doers among you⁴⁹⁹ a mighty reward.

30. (بَنَاتُ رَسُولِ اللَّهِ) O you wives of the Prophet! whosoever of you commits a flagrant indecency,⁵⁰⁰ doubled for her would be the punishment ‘twice over;⁵⁰¹ and with Allah that is easy.

⁴⁹⁷ i.e., His goodwill, which in this case is synonymous with His prophet’s goodwill.

⁴⁹⁸ Though ‘now virtually Emperor of Arabia with Kings and Rulers of neighbouring states seeking his friendship, he never assumed the pomp of royalty but continued to live most simply, sweeping out his little house, mending his shoes and giving off any money he had over, when the needs of his family were satisfied, to the poor widows and orphans of the Moslems who had fallen in battle.’ (Lady Cobbold, Pilgrimage to Mecca, p. 149).

⁴⁹⁹ (and well-doers were all those consorts).

⁵⁰⁰ Which here means any indiscreet act or word calculated to annoy or displease the holy Prophet. (Th). Arrogance or want of respect towards the holy Prophet (IA.).

⁵⁰¹ (in the Hereafter because of the very exalted and responsible position you hold as the consorts of the Prophet).
PART XXII

31. Whosoever of you is obedient to Allah and His messenger and works righteously, her wage we shall give her twice over and We have prepared for her a generous provision.

32. (Wives of the Prophet) you are not like any others of women if you are God-fearing. So do not be soft in speech, lest in whose heart is disease, should be moved with desire, but make an honourable speech.

33. And stay in your houses. And do not display yourselves as did the pagans of old. And establish the prayer and pay the poor-rate and obey Allah and His messenger. Allah only desires to remove uncleanness from you, and to purify you with a thorough purification. O people of the household of the prophet!

34. And bear in mind what is rehearsed in your homes of the revelations of Allah and the wisdom. Verily Allah is ever Subtile. Aware—

1. —as a converse proposition—
2. (fully whole-heartedly).
3. i.e., once for your own sake, and a second time for your service to the Prophet).
4. (in Paradise, as a speciality intended for the Mothers of the faithful and consorts of the Prophet).
5. (in rank and privileges). You have a very high work to perform, and are therefore destined to much higher rank than the ordinary mortals of your sex.
6. (and observe the Divine ordinances in every walk of life), i.e., if you keep to a higher standard of honour and purity, as befits your higher position in life.
7. (to strangers).
8. i.e., one with a vicious propensity. The very sound of female voice is sometimes sufficient to excite passion in man, and he is, in many instances, sexually attached through the sense of hearing. ‘We may attach considerable importance to the voice and the music generally as a method of sexual appeal. On this point we may agree with Moll, “that sexual stimulation through the ears is greater than is usually believed.”’ (Havelock Ellis, Psychology of Sex, p. 61) ‘The sound of the voice, its timbre and vigour, its height or depth, its purity or sharpness often determine with unnecessary rapidity, love at first sight. . . . The great significance of the voice is disclosed by the large number of women who fall in love with singers.’ (Forbath, op. cit., p. 62).

9. (so that evil-minded persons, specially the hypocrites of Madina, may not have any opportunity of taking unfair advantage of your gentle speech).

10. (apart from menfolk). Islam enjoins strict isolation upon its women-folk, which is not without parallel or precedent in the teachings of the ancient prophets of Israel. ‘The women had indeed in the innermost part of the house their own apartments to which access was not permitted to men, or, in the case of wealthy people or people of rank, they had a separate house to themselves.’ (EBI. c. 2946) The rule was also observed, at any rate, in regard to the public worship, by the Jews and early Christians. ‘In the early church the women were always separated from the men in public worship. . . . The practice may probably have come into the Christian church without any formal enactment from the usage of Jewish worship, in which the women were (and are to this day) separated from the men.’ (DCA. II. p. 1891).

11. Muslim women are strictly warned against adorning themselves with their finery and going abroad into the streets to show themselves to the men.

12. Note that the condition of woman in pagan Arabia closely resembled that of her sister in the West today. Indecent exposure of parts of her body was as common in the streets of Makka and Madina as it is today in the electrified centres of modern civilization. الملالمة denotes the time or state of paganism that preceded the advent of the holy Prophet——a way of life that is reasserting itself in the West. And there can be little doubt that this new paganism is far more licentious than its ancient variety. See P. IV. n. 264.

13. (in all their commandments).

14. (of sin and disobedience).

15. (in deed, word and thought).

16. Which here includes besides the consorts of the Prophet, his daughter, and son-in-law and grandsons, and the Prophet himself, hence the use of the masculine pronoun ُزَيَّنَة twice in the passage, generally denoting a mixed assembly of males and females.

17. (Of wives of the Prophet!).

18. i.e., wise maxims and precepts promulgated by the Qur’ān.

19. See P. XI. n. 437.
SECTION 5

35. (ان... ملطا) Surely the Muslim men and women, and the believing men and women, and the devout men and women, and the men and women of veracity, and the persevering men and women, and the men and women of humility, and the almsgiving men and women, and the fasting men and women, and the men and women who guard their private parts\(^{18-1}\) and the Allah-remembering men and women—for them Allah has got ready forgiveness and a mighty reward.\(^{80}\)

36. (رما كان... بيانا) And it is not for believing man or woman,\(^{81}\) when Allah and His messenger have decreed an affair,\(^{88}\) that they should have any choice in their affair. And whoso disobeys Allah and His messenger has strayed\(^{83}\) manifestly.

19-A. This needed a special mention in view of the rampant promiscuity of the pagan Arabia. 'The presumption of law that the husband is father of all his wife's children rests on a well-established custom of conjugal fidelity, and on the certainty that the husband will object to have spurious children palmed off on him. But in old Arabia the husband was so indifferent to his wife's fidelity, that he might send her to cohabit with another man to get himself a goodly seed, or might lend her to a guest.' (Robertson Smith, Kinship and Marriage in Arabia, p. 139).

20. 'For them' means for both men and women. No woman is to be deprived of her reward because of her sex. For a study of contrasts see p. XIX. n. 111.

21. i. e., it is not open to them, the choice does not lie with them.

22. i. e., have issued a command regarding any matter.

23. (from the right way).
And recall when thou wast saying to him on whom Allah had conferred a favour and thou hadst conferred a favour: keep thy wife to thyself and fear Allah, and thou wast concealing within thee what Allah was going to disclose, and thou was fearing mankind, while Allah had a greater right that Him thou shouldst fear. Then when Zaid had accomplished his purpose regarding her, we wedded her to thee so that there should be no blame on the believers in respect of wives of their adopted sons, when they have accomplished their purpose with regard to them. And the ordinance of Allah was to be fulfilled.

No blame there is on the Prophet in what Allah has decreed for him. That has been Allah’s dispensation with those who have passed away before — and the ordinance of Allah has been a destiny determined—those who preached the messages of Allah, and feared Him, and none save Allah. And Allah suffices as a Reckoner.

Muhammad is not the father of any of your males, but a messenger of Allah and the seal of the prophets, and Allah is the Knower of everything.

SECTION 6

O you who believe! remember Allah oft and hallow Him morning and evening.

He it is Who sends His benedictions to you, and His angels also, that He may bring you forth from darkness into light, and to the faithful He is ever Merciful.

Zaid’s marriage with the Prophet’s cousin Zainab, daughter of Ja’sh, was celebrated in Mecca eight years before the Hijrat, but it did not turn out happy. Zainab the high-born looked down upon Zaid the freedman who had been a slave. And he was not comely to look at. Both were good people in their own way, and both loved the Prophet, but there was mutual incompatibility and this is fatal to married life. Zaid wished to divorce her, but the Prophet asked him to hold his hand, and he obeyed. She was closely related to the Prophet; he had given a handsome marriage gift on her marriage to Zaid; and people would certainly talk if such a marriage was broken off, and poor Zainab’s reputation would be ruined. This was the fear in the mind of the Prophet. . . . Zaid’s wish—indeed the mutual wish of the couple—was for the time being put away, but it became eventually an established fact, and everybody came to know of it.’ (AYA).

25. (by way of counsel, not of command, O Prophet!).

26. i.e., to Zaid ibn-Hāritha, once a Christian slave, now a convert to Islam.

27. (by making him one of the earliest converts to Islam).

28. (by making him a freedman).

29. i.e., Zainab bint Jaḥsh, a cousin of the Prophet.

30. i.e., be observant of thy duty to God, as this is likely to render many irksome obligations pleasant.

31. (for the time being).

32. i.e., the fact of thy marriage with Zainab after her divorce from Zaid.

33. (considering it to be a purely private and domestic affair of thine own, O Prophet!).

34. (lest they may use the language of slander).

35. (in religious duties). The Prophet is reminded that the affair did not concern him alone. It was a matter of public duty, inaugurating, besides other advantages, a much-needed reform. See P. XXI. nn. 390-391.

36. Of all the companions of the holy Prophet, Zaid has the unique distinction of being mentioned by name in the Qur’ān.

37. i.e., had dissolved his marriage with the solemnity and necessary formality. 网络科技 is ‘A want; an object of want or need; or one which one purposes to accomplish; or for which one is anxious or desirous. . . You say تُستَقَبِلِتْ وَلَوْلَى I accomplished, or obtained my want. And تُستَقَبِلِتْ من كَا وَلَوْلَى I accomplished my want of such a thing so as to have no further need of it.’ (LL). Thus the words imply that Zaid intensely longed to divorce her.

38. (O Prophet!) Referring to the Christian calumnies respecting this marriage, say a Christian writer: ‘I am satisfied after a close examination of the circumstances of the case, that it does not bear the interpretation usually placed upon it by the Christians. It raised an outcry among the Arabs of the Ignorance, not because they suspected an intrigue on the Prophet’s part to secure a divorce; but because they looked upon an adopted as though he were a real son, and considered, therefore, that the marriage fell within the prohibited degrees. This restriction . . . he abolished by his marriage, not for his own benefit only, but for that of the Arabs at large. In the view indeed usually taken of the whole transaction, there is a strange compound of fact and fiction; and much that was comparatively innocent has been made to wear the appearance of deep guilt.' (Bosworth Smith, op. cit., pp. 114-15) And again: 'The production of this sura, whatever else it proves about Mohammed, seems to me to prove not his conscious insincerity, but the reverse; he had already attained his end, why then blazon his shame if shame he felt it to be? why forge the name of God? ... Surely a single act of conscious imposture in the matter of the Koran would have sapped all his strength. ... It would have made such a speech as that wherein, at the very close of his life, Samuel-like, he boldly challenged all Musalmans to mention aught that they had against him, impossible.' (p. 145).

40. i. e., have formally dissolved their marriage with them.
41. (respecting marriage and divorce of adopted children).
42. (in any case; irrespective of the particular episode that has been the occasion of this ordinance).
43. i. e., no calumny is at all justifiable.
44. (in fact or in law).
45. (of the prophets) i. e., gross misrepresentation and calumny have been the inevitable lot of ancient prophets.
46. i. e., a decree bound to be fulfilled in any case.
47. (caring nothing for the opinion of men).
48. (so to Him alone man is answerable).
49. See P. IV. n. 212; P. XXVI. nn. 107, 333, P. XXX. nn. 425, 429, 580.
50. (so there is no reason that their divorced wives may be prohibited unto him.)
51. (he stands to them in a spiritual relation entirely different from the material relationship of fatherhood).
52. (and as such every behest of his has to be obeyed).
53. (closing the long line of apostles). He is not 'a prophet,' but the Final Prophet. یام اتم 'The last of a company men ... whence یام اتمین 'The last of the prophets' (LL). 'This idea of finality is perhaps the most original idea in the cultural history of mankind; its true significance can be understood only by those who carefully study the history of pre-Islamic Magian culture in Western and Middle Asia. The concept of Magian culture, according to modern research, includes culture associated with Zoroastrianism, Judaism, Jewish Christianity, Chaldean and Sabean religions. To these creed-communities the idea of the continuity of prophethood was essential, and consequently they lived in a state of constant expectation. ... The result of the Magian attitude was the disintegration of the old communities and the constant formation of fresh ones by all sorts of religious adventurers . . . It is obvious that Islam that claims to weld all the various communities of the world into one single community cannot reconcile itself to a movement which threatens its present solidarity and holds forth the promise of further rifts in human society.’ (Sir Mohammad Iqbal).

54. (so He in His infinite wisdom perfectly knows the why and the wherefore of this finality of prophethood).
55. (in words and in thought in gratitude of His blessings).
56. (by His own will).
57. (by means of prayer). Angels’ sending their benedictions to mankind is that they pray for God’s blessings to mankind.
58. (of infidelity and impiety).
59. (of Divine knowledge and guidance).
44. Their greeting on the Day when they meet Him will be: peace! And He has got ready for them a generous wage.

45. O Prophet! We have verily sent thee as a witness and a bearer of glad tidings and a warner.

46. (Ioudaia... Menia) and a summoner unto Allah by His command, and a luminous lamp.

47. (Bharam.syn... Kiria) And bear thou to the faithful the glad tidings that there is for them a great grace from Allah.

48. (Wola... Waka) Do not yield thou to the infidels and the hypocrites and disregard their insolence, and trust in Allah, and Allah suffices as a Trustee.

49. (Ya.alad.dinn... Jila) O you who believe! when you marry believing women and divorce them before you have touched them, then there is no waiting-period incumbent upon them from you, that you should count. So make a provision for them and release them with a seemly release.

60. (by means of repentance and true faith). According to the Jewish prophetic predictions, the final prophet or the Messiah is merely "the chosen one," (JE. V. p. 213) which is an exact translation of the name المكل. And further:-'Free from sin, from desire for wealth or power, a pure, wise, and holy king imbued with the spirit of God, he will lead all to righteousness and holiness.' (ib), and he causes the people to seek the Lord.' (ib). These descriptions seem but to be an amplification of the "Da'wva al-Fatiha".

61. i.e., a pattern of virtue and righteous conduct in whose light men are to direct their paces.

62. (both in this world and the Hereafter).

63. (as thou hast not disobeyed in the past).

64. (that they are sure to cause in the performance of thy duties).

65. (so He will protect thee).

66. (of three months as in the case of those with whom the marriage has been consummated).

67. So that such divorced women can remarry immediately; there is no waiting-period for them.

68. i.e., make a free gift to them if no dower has been assigned; if it has been agreed on, then give the woman half of it.
50. O Prophet! He has allowed to thee thy wives to whom thou hast paid their wages, also those whom thy right hand owns of those whom Allah has given thee as spoils of War and the daughters of thy paternal uncle and the daughters of thy paternal aunts and the daughters of thy maternal uncle and the daughters of thy maternal aunts, who migrated with thee, and the believing woman, when she offers herself to the Prophet, if the Prophet desire to wed her — this provision is exclusively for thee above the rest of the believers. Surely We know what We have ordained to them concerning their wives and those whom their right hands possess, in order that there may be no blame upon thee. And Allah is ever Forgiving, Merciful.

51. Thou mayest put off such of them as thou wilt, and thou mayest take unto thee such of them as thou wilt; and when thou desirest such as thou hadst set aside there is no blame upon thee. This is likelier to cool their eyes and let them not grieve and to keep them pleased with what thou shalt give everyone of them. Allah knows what is in your hearts, and Allah is ever Knowing. Forbearing.

52. Henceforth women are not allowed to thee, nor mayest thou change them for other wives, although their beauty please thee save those whom thy right hand shall own, and Allah is ever Watcher over everything.

69. (who exceed the prescribed number of four).
70. This excludes the slaves by purchase.
71. (from Makka). This excludes those of his cousins who had not so migrated.
72. اَيْنِ is sometimes, as here, synonymous with لِسَانِ meaning ‘when.’ (LL).
73. (without demanding any dower).
74. But in practice the holy Prophet never availed himself of this permission, and married no woman without assigning her a dower.
75. i. e., this is a privilege exclusively for thee.
76. (who can lawfully have no more than four wives).
77. (in making use of the privilege granted to thee).
78. (so He pardons and forgives those who make occasional mistakes).
79. (so He enjoins and ordains laws easy to act upon).
80. (the turn of).
81. (in the matter of nightly rotation). The holy Prophet in view of his peculiar difficulties and too many pre-occupations is allowed a free hand in dealing with his wives in these nightly rotation and other matters.
82. (in receiving her again).
83. i. e., to keep them better contented.
84. (as they would not form too great expectations).
85. (so be not even in your thoughts jealous of the privileges of the Prophet).
86. The Prophet is hereby forbidden to marry any other woman than one of the four classes mentioned in the preceding verse.
87. i. e., divorce them and marry others.
88. So after this the holy Prophet did not marry again except the handmaiden Mary the Copt, who was presented to him by the Christian ruler of Egypt.
SECTION 7

53. O you who believe! enter not the houses of the Prophet, except when leave is given you, for a meal and at a time that you will have to wait for its preparation; but when you are invited, then enter, and when you have had the meal, then disperse, without lingering to enter into familiar discourse. Verily this inaccommodates the Prophet, and he is shy of asking you to depart, but Allah is not shy of the truth. And when you ask of them aught, ask it of them from behind a curtain. That shall be purer for your hearts and for their hearts. And it is not lawful for you that you should cause annoyance to the messenger of Allah, nor that you should ever marry his wives after him; verily that shall be an enormity in the sight of Allah.

54. Whether you disclose a thing or conceal it, verily Allah is ever Knower of everything.

---

89. The purport is: in the first place, do not enter his house without permission; and in the second, when invited to dine, do not go too early.

90. (and you are informed that the meal is ready).

91. i. e., of the Prophet’s wives.

92. The ‘mothers of the faithful’ were entitled at least to this degree of respect.

93. (Or uneasiness).

94. (in any way).
55. (لا ... شهد) It is no sin for them in respect of their fathers or brothers, or their brother’s sons or their sister’s sons or their own women, or those whom their right hands own, and fear Allah verily Allah is ever a Witness of everything.

56. (إن ... سلما) Verily Allah and His angels send their benedictions upon the Prophet O you who believe I send your benedictions also upon him and salute him with a goodly salutation.

57. (إن ... مهين) Surely those who annoy Allah and His messenger Allah has cursed them in this world and the Hereafter, and has prepared for them an ignominious torment.

58. (والذين ... مهينًا) And those who annoy the believing men and women without their deserving it, shall surely bear the guilt of calumny and evident sin.

SECTION 8

59. (يا النبي ... رحمة) O Prophet I say thou to thy wives and thy daughters and women of the believers that they should let down upon them their wrapping-garments. That would be more likely to distinguish them so that they will not be affronted. And Allah is ever Forgiving, Merciful.

60. (إن ... قلنا) If the hypocrites and those in whose heart is a disease and the raisers of commotion in Medina do not desist We shall certainly set thee up against them. Thence-forth they shall not be allowed to neighbour thee therein except for a little while.

95. (if they appear before them unveiled, and without a curtain or screen). The reference is to the Prophet’s wives.

96. i.e., Muslim women. Other women being in the position of strangers required as much as the formality of a veil as men.

97. i.e., their handmaids.

98. (in infringing any of these ordinances, O wives of the Prophet!)

99. i.e., with a consists of verses 81-103.
99. God’s benediction upon His prophet is clear enough. The angel’s ‘benediction’ means that they pray to God for His blessings on the Prophet. The verb in the phrase imputes God’s "conferring of blessing" and the angels’ "invoking thereof." (LL).

100. i.e., you also should pray to God for His blessings on him.

101. i.e., honour his memory. Hence the practice among the Muslims of adding the words ‘on whom be the blessing of Allah and peace’ to his name.

102. (knowingly and deliberately).

103. (by their mischievous slanders).

104. (when going forth for needful purposes).

105. (so as to cover a part of their faces). ‘The original word properly signifies the large wrappers, usually of white linen, with which the women in the East cover themselves from head to foot when they go abroad.’ (Sale) جلاب ... A woman’s outer wrapping garment called ملهمة; or this is its primary signification, but it is metaphorically applied to other kinds of garments; or a shirt, absolutely, or one that envelops the whole body; ... or a garment with which the person is entirely enveloped.’ (LL).

106. (as respectable matrons and free women, in contrast with the female slaves who did not cover their faces).

107. (by the unseemly words and acts of the riff-raff). Respectable believing women ‘were exposed in their walks abroad to the rude remarks of disaffected and licentious citizens; they were therefore commanded to throw their garments around them so as partially to veil their persons, and conceal their ornaments,’ (Muir, op. cit., p. 293).

108. (so He will excuse those who owing to some reasonable grounds are not strictly observing this rule).

109. (in general).

110. (of them in particular).

111. i.e., the habit of molesting the women-folk.

112. (of them again).

113. (by the spreading of false rumours and scandals).

114. (from their wickedness and mischief).

115. (to chastise and banish them).

116. i.e., after this command of exile.

117. i.e., in the city of Madina.

118. (preparatory to their leaving the city bag and baggage).
61. Accursed, wherever found, they shall be seized and slain with a relentless slaughter.

62. That has been the dispensation of Allah with those who have passed away before, and thou shalt not find any change in the dispensation of Allah.

63. People question thee concerning the Hour. Say thou: its knowledge is with Allah only. And what dost thou know? perhaps the Hour may be nigh.

64. Verily Allah has cursed the infidels, and has prepared for them a Blaze.

65. Abiders therein they shall be for ever, and they will find neither a protecting friend nor a helper.

66. On the Day when their faces shall be rolled in Fire, they will say: Ah! that we had obeyed Allah and had obeyed the messenger! And they will say: our Lord! we obeyed our chiefs and our elders and they led us astray from the way.

67. Our Lord! give them punishment twofold, and curse them with a great curse.

SECTION 9

69. O you who believe I do not be like those who annoyed Müslih, but Allah cleared him of what they said; and he was illustrious with Allah.

119. (as outlaws, in the sight of God and man).

120. (after the decree of their outlawing has been promulgated and they have forfeited all protection of law).

121. i.e., nobody has a power in the least to alter a course of events after God has willed it.

122. (defiantly, O Prophet!).
123. i.e., as to its exact time and date.

124. i.e., He has deprived them of His mercy. See P. I. n. 389, P. II. 100.

125. (and they shall be writhing in pain).

126. (completely disillusioned at last).

127. (for misleading us).

128. (by their slander and calumny). There was constant sedition against Moses by the Israelites during their long sojourn in the wilderness. The reference here may be to any one of, or several, such episodes. Moses had 'to suffer many indignities and insults from a rebellious and recalcitrant people, even from his closest relatives, who were jealous of his leadership.' (VJE. p. 442).

129. (concerning him).

130. Honoured not only in his day but one whose memory is still held in utmost veneration. 'A unique personality of supreme importance in OT history.' (D. B. III. p. 445) 'Beyond question Moses must be regarded as the founder alike of Israel’s nationality and of Israel’s religion.' (EBr. XV. p. 843).
70. (سیدا) O you who believe! fear Allah, and speak a straight speech.
71. (علی) He will amend your works for you and forgive you your sins. And whoso obeys Allah and His messenger, he has indeed achieved a great achievement.
72. (یتیملا) Verily We! We offered the trust to the heavens and the earth and the mountains, but they declined to bear it and shrank from it. But man undertook it; truly he was very sinful. very foolish.
73. (لیدبلا رحیما) So that Allah will chastise the hypocritical men and women and the associators and the associatoresses. And Allah will relent toward the believing men and women, and Allah is ever Forgiving, Merciful.

131. (in every walk of life).
132. سید applied to speech, is ‘true, and directed to the right point.’
133. (on that account).
134. i.e., will make them acceptable in the Hereafter.
135. i.e., bliss in this world and salvation in the Hereafter.
136. i.e., moral responsibility, which is human sense of answerableness for all acts of thought and conduct. Its first and foremost prerequisite is freedom of choice, which is the real function of a human being as a moral agent. The ‘trust’ referred to is obviously the trust of free choice or accountability.
137. (after imbuing them with sufficient intellect and understanding).
138. (considering the tremendous responsibility it involved and the attendant perils).
139. ‘In the case of man in whom individuality deepens into personality, opening up possibilities of wrong-doing, the sense of the tragedy of life becomes much more acute. But the acceptance of selfhood as a form of life involves the acceptance of all the imperfections that flow from the finitude of selfhood. The Qur’ān represents man as having accepted at his peril the trust of personality which the heavens, the earth, and the mountains refused to bear.’ (Iqbal, op. cit., pp. 121-122).
140. i. e., the ungrateful portion of mankind.

141. (to himself in not fulfilling his obligations and obeying the law he had accepted). Compare the dictum of Kant, that the 'ought' implies the 'can'. The 'Ought' rather hints that the 'can' implies the 'ought.' They who can choose freely must choose correctly or pay the penalty of their vicious choice.

142. (in not realizing the consequences of his disobedience and neglect). Man's peril follows from the 'trust.'

143. (for their betrayal of their trust).

144. (with mercy).

145. (for their occasional faults and weakness as they have endeavoured to make good their pledges).

146. (so it is still open to the infidels to enter His grace, and become true men of faith).
Sūrat-us-Saba
Sheba XXXIV
(Makkan, 6 Sections and 54 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (الحمد ... الغير) All praise to Allah\(^{147}\) whose is what is in the heavens and what is in the earth; and His is the praise in the Hereafter.\(^{148}\) And He is the Wise,\(^{149}\) the Aware.\(^{150}\)

2. (بعلم ...) He knows what penetrates into the earth\(^{151}\) and what comes forth from it,\(^{152}\) and what descends from the heaven\(^{153}\) and what ascends to it.\(^{154}\) And He is the Merciful, the Forgiving.

3. (وَاللَّهُ ... لَا يَضُرُّ لَهُ مِثْلُهُ) Those who disbelieve\(^{155}\) say: the Hour will not come unto us. Say thou\(^{156}\) : yea! by my Lord, the Knower of the Unseen, it will surely come unto you. Not an atom's weight escapes HIm in the heavens or in the earth, nor is there anything smaller than it or greater but it is inscribed in a luminous Book\(^{157}\)—

---

147. (alone). He alone is the Praiseworthy; He alone is the Perfect.
148. (as it is in this world).
149. So He planned everything with wisdom.
150. So He is the Knower of everything open or secret, manifest or hidden.
151. (such as the rain-water, the dead, etc.).
152. (such as spring water, vegetation, etc.).
153. (such as the angels, Scriptures, decrees of God, etc.)
154. (such as the angels, man's works, the prayers of the faithful, etc.).
155. The reference is to the pagans of Makka.
156. (O Prophet!).
157. (of Divine decrees) i.e., in the Preserved Tablet.
4. (لجزئي كريم) that He may recompense those who believed and worked righteous deeds. Those! theirs shall be forgiveness and a generous provision.

5. (والذين الم) And those who attempted to frustrate Our signs—those! theirs shall be a chastisement of afflictive calamity.

6. (فربس الخ) And those who have been vouchsafed knowledge behold that the Book revealed to thee from thy Lord,—It is the truth and it guides to the path of the Mighty, the Laudable.

7. (والجديد) And those who disbelieve say: shall we direct you to a man declaring to you that when you have dispersed with full dispersion, then you will be raised unto a new creation.

8. (اترى البند) Has he fabricated a lie against Allah, or is there a madness in him? Nay, but those who disbelieve in the Hereafter are themselves in a torment and error far-reaching.

9. (الم نيب) Do they not see what is before them and what is behind them of the heaven and the earth? If We will, We shall sink the earth with them, or cause a fragment of the sky to fall on them. Verily there is a sign therein unto every penitent bondman.

158. (of the Scriptures).
159. (and realize).
160. (among themselves).
161. (in dust).
162. The Arab pagans denied Resurrection altogether, and looked askance at the messenger who preached such a 'preposterous' doctrine.
163. Such a preacher, they said, must be either a deliberate liar or distracted. See P. XVIII. n. 110.
164. Can't they think that so powerful a Creator and Preserver is able to bring about a new creation?
165. (for rejecting a truth so manifest).
166. (of God's majesty).
167. i. e., in the heavens and the earth.
10. And assuredly We vouchsafed to Dā'ūd grace from Us 168 and said: O mountains I repeat Our praise with him, and birds you also! And We softened for him the iron 169 —

11. Saying: make thou complete coats of mail 170 and rightly dispose the links, 171 and work thou 172 righteously. Verily I am of that which you work a Beholder 173.

12. And to Sulaimān We subjected the wind, 174 of which the morning journeying was a month 175 and the evening journeying a month. 176 And We made the fount of brass flow for him 177 And of the Jinn were who worked before him by the will 179 of His Lord. And whosoever of them swerved from Our command, 180 him We shall cause to taste the torment of the Blaze.

13. They fashioned for him whatsoever he wished, of lofty halls and statues 181 and basins like cisterns 182 and cauldrons standing firm 183 O house of Dā'ūd work with gratitude; 184 few of My bondmen are grateful.

14. Then when We decreed death for him, 185 naught discovered his death to them, 186 save a moving creature of the earth, 187 which gnawed away his staff. 187 Then when he fell the Jinn clearly perceived that, if they had known the Unseen they would not have tarried in the ignominious torment. 188

168. i.e., We bestowed on him moral and spiritual eminence. ‘We may safely assert that if the narratives can in the main be trusted, no ancient Israelite exercised such a personal charm as David, and that he owed this not merely to his physical but also to his moral qualities.’ (EBi. c. 133). This may also refer to the greatness of David as a king. After the death and defeat of Saul at the hands of the formidable Philistines, ‘Israel rallied to David as the one possible saviour, though the succession was disputed by a rival faction; and under David’s leadership the supremacy of Hebrew kingdom was decisively established, the Philistine power was shattered and the hostile encircling tribes were forced to become David’s tributaries.’ (UHW. I. p. 447).
169. (so that he could use this hard and tough metal for arms and instruments of war).
170. (O David!).
171. See P. XVII. nn. 173, 174. ٌ، applied to a thing of any kind, complete, full, ample, or without deficiency, and long.’ (LL).
172. (thereof) Or ‘observe due measure in the sewing.’
173. (O David! and people of David!). See P. XXIII. nn. 350, 351.
174. (so be righteous and conscientious in all your words and deeds).
175. See also P. XVII. n. 175.
176. شم is here synonymous with مسيرة شم; meaning, it covered the distance of a month’s journey.
177. According to the rabbinical accounts, Solomon was given ‘a large carpet sixty miles long and sixty miles wide, made of green silk interwoven with pure gold, and ornamented with figured decorations... When Solomon sat upon the carpet he was caught up by the wind, and sailed through the air so quickly that he breakfasted at Damascus and supped in Media.’ (JE. XI. p. 440).
178. (at its source).
179. i. e., the cosmic Will.
180. Which means, in the context, obedience to Solomon the prophet.
181. Which were not forbidden till then.
182. (in greatness).
183. (which could not be removed from their place, by reason of their greatness).
184. i. e., in the service of God.
185. For he with all his might and glory was but a mortal.
186. i. e., the genii, who were working as labourers.
187. According to the commentators, Solomon perceiving his end drew nigh had prayed to God that his death might be concealed from the genii who were constructing the Temple at Jerusalem till they had entirely finished the edifice. In fulfilment of this prayer, He died as he stood at his prayers, leaning on his staff, which supported the body in that posture a full year, by which time the temple became completed. And it was then that the fact of his death was revealed by the white ants gnawing his staff. (cf. JE. XI. p. 445)
188. i. e., in servile subjection to his command.
15. Assuredly for Saba\(^1\) a sign\(^2\) in their own dwelling place: two gardens on the right hand and on the left\(^3\). Eat you of the provision of your Lord, and give thanks to Him: a fair land\(^4\) and a Forgiving Lord\(^5\).

16. But they turned away. So we sent upon them the inundation of the dam\(^6\) and We exchanged their two gardens\(^7\) for two gardens\(^8\) bearing bitter fruit, and tamarisk and some few lote-trees\(^9\).

17. In this way We requited them, as they were ungrateful. And We do not requite thus any save the ingratiates.

18. And We had placed between them and the cities\(^10\) which We had blessed\(^11\) cities easy to be seen,\(^12\) and We had made the stages of journey between them easy\(^13\) : travel in them nights and days secure.

19. And they said\(^14\) : our Lord! make the distance between our journeys longer; and they wronged themselves. So We made them by words\(^15\) and dispersed them totally. Surely herein are signs for every persevering, grateful person.

20. And assuredly Iblis found his conjecture regarding them true;\(^16\) and they followed him, all save a party of the believers.

---

189. i.e., for the people of Sheba. 'Yaqūt and after him many others identified 'Saba' with 'Ma'rib'. In reality Saba 'was the name of the land and people, and not a town.' (Hitti, op. cit., p. 55). See also P. XIX. n. 438.

190. (of Our Uniqueness and Omnipotence).

191. i.e., two tracts of land, one on this side of their city and the other on that, planted with trees and made into gardens so that each tract seemed to be one continued garden. 'They irrigated their gardens and their seed-crops, and they wanted for nothing, whatever they might desire, and to spare. And a servant would walk among the trees with a large basket on his hand. The basket would fill with fruits without his picking any with his hand, and without gathering any from the ground. The sun could never reach anyone who walked beneath the trees of these garden, by reason of their interlacing.’ (Redhouse’s Khazraj[i’s History of the Rasuli Dynasty of Yemen, I. p. 52).

192. i.e., prosperous and happy.

193. i.e., One who overlooks many faults and weaknesses.

194. (as a punishment for their backsliding).

195. ‘Marib, the Sabaeans capital, was celebrated for its great dam.’ (EBr. XXIII. p. 886). Marib, some 60 miles east of San‘ā’, lies 3900 feet above the sea. . . . It was the meeting-place of the trade routes connecting the frankincense lands with the Mediterranean ports. The construction for which the city was particularly famous was the great dam Sadd Marib. This remarkable engineering feat, together with the other public works of the Sabaeans, reveal to us a peace-loving society highly advanced not only in commerce but in technical accomplishment as well.’ (Hitti, op. cit., p. 55) ‘The failure of the dam at Marib was at once an effect and a cause of the national decay. . . . The dam at Marib is now in much the same condition as when Houdani (A. D. 848) saw it.’ (EBr. XIX. p. 785) ‘West of Marib are the ruins of the dam which figures so prominently in Arabic tradition. These show a very solid construction with several sluices. It was destroyed by a flood.’ (EBr. II. p. 184) ‘This deluge marks an epoch in the history of South Arabia. The waters subside, the lands return to cultivation and prosperity, but Marib lies desolate and the Sabaeans have disappeared for ever, except to point a moral or to adorn a tale.’ (Nicholson, op. cit., p. 16) According to a Muslim chronicler, ‘Subsequently God destroyed the dam and after this tore up the rocks, the pavilions, the trees, and the canals, casting the sands over them. And when they who were below the dam saw its destruction, and that they could do nothing to it, they fled to the tops of the hill with their families and cattle. And the water surged over the dam through an abundance of rain; and the water issued from the interstices buried by the rats. . . . And it is related that the torrent of the inundation occurred about four hundred years before Islam . . . but God knows best.’ (Redhouse, op. cit., I. pp. 55-56) ‘The chroniclers report that a rat turned over a stone which fifty men could not have budged, and thus brought about the collapse of the entire dam.’ (Hitti, op. cit., p. 65) Referring again to this ‘memorable event immortalized in Islamic literature says Hitti:—Al-Isfahānī, . . . puts the tragic event four hundred years before Islam but Yāqūt comes nearer to the truth when he assigns it to the reign of the Abyssinians. The ruins of the dam are visible to the present day. . . . The final catastrophe alluded to in the Koran must have taken place after 542 and before 570. (p. 64).

196. (hitherto so rich and luscious). According to a newspaper report dated September 1951, Wendell Phillips, leader of an American Archaeological expedition to South Arabia, said in a London meeting that ‘portions of the great Marib dam, the most extensive irrigation system of antiquity, are still visible. Phillips said that various stories of the wealth and beauty of the kingdom of Sheba were probably true, and the kingdom must have derived its prosperity from the irrigation system. South Arabia, which had been described as a paradise at the time of the existence of the dam fell into its present state of decay after the destruction of the dam.'

197. (wild and barren).
198. (of a wild, thorny and fruitless variety).
199. i. e., the people of Sheba or Yaman.
200. (of Syria).
201. (with prosperity).
202. (from the public highway). Or, cities close to each other.
203. (and in due proportion, where travellers could get comfort and provision). The route was perhaps lined with inns and rest-houses. In the words of Khazrejiyy. ‘And a man used to travel from his own country to another, take his siesta there, and arrive at a third in the evening, of those towns on which God had granted His blessing.’ (Redhouse, op. cit., I. p. 52).

204. i. e., with no risks of highwaymen and robbers, as the Yaman-Syria route was much frequented.
205. (out of covetousness).
206. (of whom tales are told).
207. i. e., for every true believer.
208. The devil when being driven out of Paradise had said: ‘I will surely seize his (Adam’s) posterity, all save a few. (Surah ‘Bani Isrā‘l, v. 62) Now this proved true in the case of the people of Saba.
21. And he has no authority over them,^{209} except that we would know^{210} him who believes in the Hereafter from him who is in doubt thereof. And thy Lord is a Warden over everything.

SECTION 3

22. (قل ... ظهر،) Say thou: call upon those whom you assert^{211} besides Allah. They do not own an atom's weight either in the heavens or in the earth,^{212} nor have they any partnership in either^{213} nor is there for Him any supporter^{214} from among them.

23. Intercession with Him profits not save the Intercession of him whom He gives leave.^{215} They^{216} hold their peace^{217} until when fright is taken off from their hearts, they say^{218}: what is it that your Lord has said? They say: the very truth.^{219} And He is the Exalted, the Great.^{220}

24. (قل ... مبين،) Say thou: who does provide food for you from the heavens^{221} and the earth?^{222} Say thou: Allah; verily either we or you are on the guidance,^{223} or in clear error.^{224}

25. (قل ... تصلون،) Say thou: you will not be questioned about what we have committed,^{225} nor will we be questioned about what you work.

26. (قل ... الالم،) Say thou: our Lord shall assemble us^{226} together, then He shall judge between us with truth;^{227} and He is the Great Judge,^{228} the Knower.^{229}

---

209. i. e., no power to tempt them.
210. (demonstrably, in Our Universal Plan).
211. (to be associate-gods).
212. (as regards their sustenance) i. e., they are in no sense co-equals of the Sustainer, or the Preserver.
213. (as regards their creation) i. e., they are in no sense co-equals of the Creator.
214. i. e., they are in no sense minor gods or sub-deities.
215. The reference here is to the worship of the angels who were held to be minor gods or independent intercessors. See P. XVI. n. 428.

216. i.e., the angels.

217. (when they receive any new commandment). So respectful and so humble the angels are before God.

218. (to one another) i.e., they ask among themselves most reverentially.

219. i.e., that certain thing which is of course the very truth.

220. And so it is no wonder that the angels feel themselves so humble and lowly in His presence.

221. i.e., by sending down rain.

222. i.e., by causing vegetation.

223. (in respect of the unity of Godhead).

224. i.e., it is only one of us who can be right. Monotheism and polytheism are mutually exclusive; both of us cannot be right.

225. (of sins).

226. i.e., both believers and infidels.

227. (and justice).

228. التاح as an epithet applied to God, means The Judge; or . . ., the Opener of the gates of sustenance and of mercy to His servants.’ (LL).

229. (so nothing can be kept back from Him and His decisions and judgements would be with knowledge).
27. (قل ... السكيم) Say thou: show me those whom you have joined with Him as associates. By no means! Aye! He is Allah, the Mighty, the Wise.

28. (وَمَا... دِينَ) And We have not sent thee save as a bearer of glad tidings and a warner to all mankind; yet most mankind do not know.

29. (وَلَأَنْعَمُ... دِينَ) And they say: when is the promise to come, if you say sooth?

30. (قل... ننفْرُونَ) Say thou: the assignment to you is for a Day which you cannot put back for an hour nor can you anticipate.

SECTION 4

31. (وَمَا... مؤمنين) And those who disbelieve say: we shall by no means believe in the Qur'an nor in what has been before it. Would that thou couldst see when the ungodly shall be made to stand before their Lord. They shall cast back the word one to another. Those who were deemed weak will say to those who were proud: had it not been for you, we should surely have been believers.

32. (قال... مجرمين) Those who were proud will say to those who were deemed weak: was it we who prevented you from the guidance after it had come to you? Aye! you have been guilty yourselves.

230. —now that you have heard of the majesty of your Lord—
231. (O polytheists!).
232. (can there be any associate of His).
233. (O Prophet!).
234. This brings into strong relief the essentially cosmopolitan character of Islam. Its message is extended to the whole world, and is not confined to a particular race or people.
235. i.e., the pagans.
236. (of Resurrection).
237. (O Muslims!).
238. i.e., the pagans of Makka.
239. (of old Scriptures).
240. (O Prophet!).
242. (of blame and reproach). 'Holding a colloquy, or a disputation, or debate, with one another; or it means rebutting one another's sayings, or blaming one another.' (LL).
243. (in the life of the world).
244. (by force);
245. (by adopting the wrong course of your own free choice).
And those who were deemed weak will say to those who were proud: aye! it was your plotting night and day, when you were commanding us that we should disbelieve in Allah and set up peers unto Him. And they will keep secret their shame when they behold the torment. And We shall place shackles on the necks of those who disbelieved. They shall be required not save according to what they had been working.

And We sent not a warner to a town but the affluent thereof said: we are disbelievers in that with which you have been sent.

And they said: we are greater in riches and children, and we are not going to be chastised.

Say thou: verily my Lord expands the provision for whom He will and stintst it likewise, but most of mankind know not.

It is not your riches nor your children that will draw you nigh unto Us with a near approach, but whoso believes and works righteously—then those I theirs will be a twofold meed for what they will have worked, and they will be in upper apartments secure.

And those who endeavour to frustrate Our signs, torment will be brought to them.
39. Say thou: my Lord expands the provision for whom He will of His bondmen and also stintst it for him. And what you expend of aught, He will replace it. And He is the Best of Providers.

40. And on the Day when He gathers them together, He will say to the angels: was it you that these polytheists were wont to worship?

41. They will say: hallowed be Thou! Thou art our protecting friend, not they. Aye! they have been worshipping the jinn; in them most of them were believers.

42. To-day you cannot benefit or hurt one another. And We shall say to those who did wrong: taste the torment of the Fire which you were wont to belie.

43. And when there are rehearsed to them Our plain revelations they say: this messenger is naught but a man, who seeks to prevent you from what your fathers have been worshipping. And they say: this message is naught but a fraud fabricated. And those who disbelieve say of the truth: when it is come unto them, this is naught but manifest magic.

256. (O Prophet!).
257. (so expenditure in His cause does not bring about poverty).
258. (in His cause).
259. (in this world or in the Next).
260. (polytheists; given to angelolatry). See P. XVIII. n. 423.
261. ‘There are many other factors in the domain of Greek religion that belong to the level below that of the High Gods. Among them is the worship of gods or “demon” that may be called “functional” because their power and activity are limited to a single function so that the name . . . “specialist-gods” . . . is not inappropriate.’ (UHW. II. p. 1369) These ‘functional’ sub-deities of the polytheists are but a perversion of the ‘angels’ of Islamic theology.
262. i.e., our relationship of obedience and dependence is with Thee and not with Thy helpless creatures. Note that the Qur’ān never lets an opportunity slip of awakening in man the consciousness of his manifold relations with, and entire dependence upon, God.

263. i.e., it is in reality the demons that they were wont to worship. That demons were worshipped as gods by many primitive people is indisputable. Beings who in Muslim theology would be called angels were worshipped as mighty though subordinate deities in polytheistic systems. See P. VII. nn. 644, 645.

264. (also in intent). Which is the same thing as to say that it was the Jinn who were actually worshipped as gods by the Arab pagans.

265. (as Our helpless creatures). The address is both to the misleaders and the misled.

266. i.e., the pagans of Makka.

267. (to rouse their prejudice and excite their passion).

268. ——to explain away its neverchanging effect and incomparable charm.
And We had not vouchsafed to them books they should have been studying, nor had We sent to them any Warner before thee. And those before them believed, and these have not arrived to a tithe of which We had vouchsafed them. But they believed My messengers. So how terrible was My disapproval!

SECTION 6

Say thou: I but exhort you to one thing: that you stand, for Allah’s sake by twos and singly and then ponder: in your companion there is no madness; he is naught but a Warner to you of a severe torment.

Say thou: whatever wage I might have asked of you is yours; my wage is with Allah; and He is a Witness of everything.

Say thou: My Lord hurls the truth; the Knower of things hidden.

Say thou: the truth is come, and falsehood shall neither originate nor be restored.

Say thou: if ever I go astray, I shall stray only against myself; and if I remain guided it is because of what My Lord has revealed to me. Verily He is Hearing, Nigh.

269. i.e., the pagans of Makka.
270. (so they should have all the more gladly received and welcomed this message and messenger).
271. (the prophet of their day).
272. (of strength and riches).
273. i.e., as in the sight of God; without passion and prejudice.
274. This is perhaps because in large gatherings passion and prejudice are more likely to prevail.
275. (cooly, seriously and sincerely).
276. i.e., the Prophet. See P. IX. n. 327.
277. See P. IX. n. 328.
278. (O Prophet!).
279. (for my preaching).
280. A forceful way of repudiating any suggestion of worldly gain or interest on his part.
281. The Qur'ān first by appealing to sanity of the Arabs refuted the charge of mental weakness hurled against the Prophet, and now it proceeds to say that his claim to prophethood is not due to any worldly gain either.
282. (so that it overcometh falsehood, and overpowers untruth).
283. (and shall not perish). The arguments of Islam are well-established and irrefutable.
284. (now) i. e., after the advent of Islam.
285. i. e., falsehood shall not show its face, nor shall it return. The particle ۰ may here be a negative, or may be in the place of an accusative in the sense of ای.
286. (after the truth has been established).
287. i. e., to my own hurt; to the loss of my own soul; without affecting the Truth as it is.
288. Unlike the deities of ancient heathenism 'which were not supposed to be omnipresent.' (Robertson Smith, Religion of the Semites, p. 207).
51. Couldst thou see the time when they shall be terrified. Then there shall be no escaping, and they shall be seized from a place quite nigh.

52. And then they will say: we believe in it. But whence can there be the attainment of faith from a place so afar.

53. Whereas they disbelieved in it before, and conjectured about the Unseen from a place so afar.

54. And they will be shut off from what they shall ardently desire, as shall be done with the likes of them of yore. Verily they have been in doubt perplexing.

289. i.e., the infidels.
290. (on the Day of Judgment).
291. (for them from Us).
292. i.e., from before God's tribunal to Hell-fire.
293. i.e., in the True religion.
294. (when they come in the other world).
295. (when they were in this world).
296. i.e. the acceptance of their faith on the Day of Judgment.
297. i.e., those of the same persuasion.
298. i.e., all of them; both the predecessors and successors.
299. So a common guilt would lead to a common penalty.
Sūrah Fātīr

The Creator. XXXV

(Makkān, 5 Sections and 45 Verses)

In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

SECTION 1

1. (الحمد...قديم) All praise to Allah, the Creator of the heavens and the earth, the appointer of the angels as His messengers with wings of twos and threes and fours. He adds in creation what He will. Verily Allah is Potent over everything.

2. (ما...الكلم) Whatsoever of mercy Allah may grant to mankind none there is to withhold it, and whatsoever He may withhold none there is to release it thereafter. And He is the Mighty, the Wise.

3. (يا...توفتون) O mankind! I remember the favour of Allah toward you. Is there any Creator other than Allah who provides for you from the heaven and the earth? There is no God but He. Whither then are you deviating?

300. (from nothing).

301. The earliest heathen gods were the personifications of the heaven and the earth. Hence the need for emphasizing that they are mere created beings. Even the Jews with their heritage of monotheism were led, under the sway of Platonic and Neoplatonic ideas, to conceive of creation 'as carried into effect through intermediate agencies, not very distinguishable from sub-deities,' (JE. IV. p. 338).

302. (Angels as created beings are only Divine messengers, faithful executors of His commands, and have nothing of Godhead about them.)

303. The figures are not designed to express the actual number of wings. They are symbolic of the different orders of those heavenly beings so unlike the creatures of the earth. The very expression 'threes' is sufficient to show that the angelic 'wings' are not synonymous with feathers of the birds. In the Bible also there is a mention of certain winged heavenly beings, known as seraphim, attending on God and proclaiming His holiness:—'I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple. Above it stood the seraphims: each one had six wings: with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly.' (Is. 6:1-2).

304. So that the angel Gabriel is mentioned in Hadith as having 600 wings.
305. i.e., Able to withhold and release.
306. i.e., adopting the course in accordance with His universal wisdom.
307. He is the sole Creator and the sole Preserver. Contrast with this the grossly polytheistic teaching of the NT. Speaking of Christ, 'the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature' it says: 'By him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him.' (Col. 1:15, 16) And again; 'All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made.' (Jn. 1:3) And yet again: 'To us there is . . . one Lord, Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him.' (1 Cor. 8:6) 'The profound and enduring impression which Jesus made upon His followers even constrained them to associate Him with the Father in the work of creation. It was He who had brought redemption from sin, and given them a glad new sense of sonship with God. But Lordship in the spiritual world must and did ultimately involve equal Lordship in the material world and in the whole realm of the Divine activity. This idea was early expressed by St. Paul. . . The specific use of the word Logos by the Fourth Evangelist completed and confirmed a development which had been in progress for several decades, by which Jesus as the Son was definitely classed with God, the Father, and associated with Him in the creation and government of both the visible and invisible world.' (ERE. IV. pp. 141-142). See also P. VI. n. 261.

308. Even in Paul's time the prevalent idea was 'there be gods many, and lords many.' (1 Cor. 8:5).
309. i.e., turning aside from acknowledging His unity.
4. (م و ان ... الأمور) And if they belie thee, they have been belied before thee. And to Allah shall be brought back all affairs.

5. (إِيَّاءا ... المور) O mankind! verily the promise of Allah is true. So let not the life of this world beguile you, and with respect to Allah let not the great beguile you.

6. (ان ... السهر) Verily Satan is an enemy to you; so take him for an enemy, he only tempts his confederates that they become the inmates of the Blaze.

7. (الذين ... كسر) Those who disbelieve theirs shall be a severe torment. And those who believe and work righteous deeds, theirs shall be forgiveness and a great wage.

SECTION 2

8. (الآن ... يعترن) Can he whose evil work has been made fair-seeming to him, so that he considers it good be as he who rightly perceives the truth? Verily Allah sends astray whom He will and guides whom He will, so let not thy soul expire after them in sighings. Verily Allah is the Knower of what they perform.

9. (وَرَاءَه ... المور) And it is Allah Who sends the winds, and they raise a cloud, and then We drive it into a dead land and We raise thereby the earth after its death. Even so shall be the Resurrection.

310. (O Prophet!).

311. (so take comfort, and do not grieve over-much).

312. (for disposal, and He shall requite everyone according to his deserts).

313. (in regard to the Final Judgment).

314. (in respect of the inevitable requital).

315. i. e. the devil.

316. (whose own desire is to ensnare as many of the mankind as possible).
317. i. e., beware of his solicitations; be on your guard against him; treat him as an enemy.

318. It is only those who give him a willing ear that fall victim to his machinations.

319. i. e., who have succumbed to the devil's blandishments.

320. (in accordance with the demands of justice and wisdom.)

321. (out of thy great pity and compassion of heart, O Prophet!)

322. (and He will deal with everyone as He thinks fit and proper).

323. (and not any rain-god or wind-god).

324. (with herbage and vegetation).

325. i. e., by means of rain.
10. Whosoever desires glory, then all glory is Allah's; and those who plot evils, theirs shall be a severe torment, and the plotting of those it shall perish.

11. And Allah created you of dust, then He made you pairs. No female bears or brings forth but with His knowledge. And no aged man grows old, nor is aught diminished of his life, but it is in a Book. Verily for Allah that is easy.

12. And the two seas are not alike. This, sweet, thirst-quenching and pleasant to drink, and that, saltish and bitter. And yet from each you eat fresh flesh. And bring forth the ornaments that you wear. And thou seest therein the ships cleaving water, that you may seek of His grace, and that haply you may give thanks.

326. (in the Hereafter).
327. (so let him obtain that glory by his strong ties with God).
328. i.e., profession of Islam; confession of faith.
329. i.e., the goodly word.
330. i.e., their devices against Islam shall come to naught.
331. (as species, O mankind!).
332. (as individuals).
333. He is Omnipotent, and He knows every event beforehand; unlike the heathen gods of very limited and partial knowledge.
334. i.e., another's
335. (duly recorded and ordained).
336. (of Divine decrees).
337. 'The great salt ocean with its seas and gulfs is all one: and the great masses of sweet water in rivers, lakes, ponds, and underground springs are also one: and each is connected with the other by the constant circulation going on which sucks up vapours, carries them about in clouds or atmospheric moisture, and again brings them condensed into water or snow or hail to mingle with rivers and streams and back into ocean.' (AYA).

338. See P. XIX. 74, 75.

339. (kind of water).

339-A. See P. XIV. n. 144-A.

340. See P. XIV. n. 145.

341. (O reader!).

342. See P. XIV. n. 147.

343. (by means of commerce and sea trade).
13. (بُحِلَّ ... قَطَمَ) He plunges the night into the day and plunges the day into the night;\(^{344}\) and He has subjected\(^{345}\) the sun and moon, each running\(^{346}\) till an appointed term. Such is Allah, your Lord; His is the dominion; and those whom you call upon beside Him\(^{347}\) do not own even the husk of a date-stone.\(^{348}\)

14. (إِن ... خَيْرُ) If you call unto them, they hear not your calling, and even if they heard they could not answer you. On the Day of Judgment they will deny your associating.\(^{349}\) And none can declare to thee\(^{350}\) the truth like Him Who is Aware.

SECTION 3

15. (بَيْنَاهُ ... المِنْهَابِ) O mankind! you are the ones that stand in need of Allah,\(^{351}\) and Allah! He is the Self-sufficient, the Praiseworthy.

16. (إِن ... جَدِيدُ) If He will, He can take you away,\(^{352}\) and bring about\(^{353}\) a new creation.

17. (وَإِنَّا ... يَعِزُّ) And with Allah that shall not be hard.

344. And nights and days are mere phenomena of nature; not objects of worship,

345. (to His control).

346. (its course) And the twain again are not deities or sub-deities.

347. i. e., your fancied gods.

348. i. e., a thing so insignificant.

349. (them with God with their approval, and shall forsake you altogether).

350. (O reader!).

351. i. e., they who stand in need of Him.

352. (in punishment of your deeds of sin and infidelity).

353. (in your stead).

354. (of beings who will not be so rebellious).
18. (و لا ... المصير) And no bearer of a burden\textsuperscript{355} shall bear another's burden,\textsuperscript{356} and if one heavy-laden calls\textsuperscript{357} for his load\textsuperscript{358} naught of it shall be borne,\textsuperscript{359} although he be of kin.\textsuperscript{360} Thou canst warn only those\textsuperscript{361} who fear their Lord, unseen, and establish prayer. And whosoever becomes clean,\textsuperscript{362} becomes clean only for himself;\textsuperscript{363} and to Allah is the return.\textsuperscript{364}

19. (د و ... الصر) Not alike are the blind\textsuperscript{365} and the seeing,\textsuperscript{366}

20. (ولا ... النور) neither darkness and light,\textsuperscript{367}

21. (ول ... المروج) nor the shade\textsuperscript{368} and the sun's heat.\textsuperscript{369}

22. (ولا ... المور) Nor alike are the living and the dead. Verily Allah makes whosoever He will,\textsuperscript{366} to hear and thou\textsuperscript{370} canst not make them hear who are in the graves.\textsuperscript{371}

23. (إن ... تذمر) Thou art but a warner.\textsuperscript{372}

24. (إنا ... تذمر) Verily We! We have sent thee with the truth, as a bearer of glad tidings and as a warner; and there is not a community but there has passed away among them of a warner.

25. (ر إن ... المير) And if they belie thee, then surely those before them have also belied.\textsuperscript{373} Their messengers came to them with evidences\textsuperscript{374} and scriptures\textsuperscript{375} and a luminous Book.\textsuperscript{376}

26. (ثم ... نكر) Then I took hold of those who disbelieved. So how terrible was My disapproval!

SECTION 4

27. (الم ... سود) Dost thou not see\textsuperscript{377} that Allah sends down water from the sky, and then We thereby bring fruit of diverse hues?\textsuperscript{378} And in the mountains are streaks white and red, of diverse hues, and also intensely black.

\textsuperscript{355} i. e., soul burdened with sins.

\textsuperscript{356} (in the Hereafter, as supposed by the pagans and also by the Christians). This repudiates the doctrine of atonement altogether.

\textsuperscript{357} (on another).
358. i. e., that he should bear his load.
359. (by the person who shall be called on).
360. i. e., even so nearly related. Several pagan nations have considered their gods to be their fathers and ancestors.
361. i. e. they alone can profit by the preaching and warning.
362. (of infidelity, and accepts Islam).
363. i. e., for the good of his own soul.
364. (of all on the Day of Judgment for requital).
365. i. e., the rebels; the infidels.
366. i. e., the obedient; the believers.
367. (cool and refreshing as it is).
368. (scorching and deadly as it is).
369. (in conformity with His infinite Wisdom).
370. (O Prophet!).
371. i. e., those who obstinately persist in their unbelief.
372. to the infidels; so it is no concern of thine whether they profit by thy preaching or not).
373. (the apostles of their age; and their rejection is no new thing).
374. i. e., clear arguments and miracles.
375. See P. IV. n. 410.
376. See P. IV. n. 411.
377. (O reader!).
378. (and kinds).
28. And of men and beasts and cattle, likewise of diverse colours. Those of His bondmen fear Allah who have knowledge. Verily Allah is the Mighty, the Forgiving.

29. Verily those who read the Book of Allah and establish prayer and expend of that with which We have provided them, secretly and in open, look for a commerce that will not perish—

30. that He may pay them their wages in full and increase to them of His grace; surely He is Forgiving, Appreciative.

31. And what We have revealed to thee of the Book—it is the very truth confirming what has been before it. Verily Allah is unto His bondmen Aware, Beholder.

32. Afterwards We made those We chose of Our bondmen the inheritors of the Book. Then of them are some who wrong themselves, and of them are some who keep the middle way, and of them are some who go ahead, by Allah's leave, in virtues. That is that is indeed a great grace.

379. Cf. the OT:—'And unto men he said, Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom.' (Job. 28:28).

380. (of His greatness).

381. (on the strength of His promise).

382. (superabundantly).

383. So He will readily overlook the faults of his penitent bondmen.

384. (of services to Him). applied to God, He who approves, or rewards, or forgives, much, or largely: He who gives large reward for small, or few, works; He in whose estimation small, or few, works performed by his servants increase, and who multiplies his rewards to them. (LL).

385. (O Prophet!).
386. So He will requite everyone accordingly.
387. i.e., after revealing it to the Prophet.
388. (in respect of faith).
389. i.e., the Muslims, who, after the Prophet, are made custodians of the Holy Book, and who as regards their faith are above all other peoples and communities.
390. (by not practising in their individual conduct what they are taught).
391. (by performing their duty, but performing it rather imperfectly).
392. (by shunning vice and performing their duties perfectly).
393. i.e., the inheritance of the Qur'ān.
394. i.e., the highest possible honour bestowed on mankind.
33. (جنت... حير) Gardens Everlasting! These they shall enter wearing therein bracelets of gold and pearls, and their apparel therein shall be of silk.
34. (وقالوا... تكبر) And they will say: All praise to Allah Who has taken away grief from us, verily Our Lord is Forgiving, Appreciative.
35. (الذي... لنب) Who has through His grace, lodged us in the everlasting abode, wherein there will not touch us toil and wherein there will not touch us weariness.
36. (لذين... كفرون) And those who disbelieve, for them shall be Hell Fire. It shall not be decreed to them that they should die, nor shall its torment be lightened for them. Thus do We requite every ingrate.
37. (روم... نصير) And they shall be shouting therein: our Lord! I take us out; we will work righteously, not what we have been working. Did We not give you lives long enough so that whosoever would receive admonition could receive it therein? And there came to you a Warner; taste therefore. And for the ungodly there will be no helper.

SECTION 5

38. (ان... الصدور) Verily Allah is the Knower of the Unseen of the heavens and the earth. Verily He is the Knower of what is in the breasts.

395. See P. XVII. n. 318.
396. i.e., who has ended all sorrows and grieving anxieties.
397. See n. 384 above.
398. On that plane of blissful existence the freshness of joy will never wear out, and there will be no monotony.
399. (so that there might be an end to their misery).
400. (directly or indirectly) i.e., an apostle of God, either in person or his preaching conveyed through others.
401. (the fruits of your deeds).
39. (مرأى... خسارا) He it is Who has made you successors in the earth.\textsuperscript{403} So whosoever disbelieves on him will befall his infidelity. And for the infidels their infidelity increases naught with their Lord save abhorrence.\textsuperscript{404} And for the infidels their infidelity increases naught save loss.\textsuperscript{405}

40. (قل... غورا) Say thou;\textsuperscript{406} what do you consider of your associate gods upon which you call besides Allah? Show me whatsoever they have created of the earth. Or, have they any partnership in the heavens? Or, have We vouchsafed to them\textsuperscript{407} a Book so that they stand upon an evidence from it?\textsuperscript{408} Nay! the ungodly promise to each other only delusions.\textsuperscript{409}

41. (ان... غورا) Verily Allah withholds the heavens and the earth\textsuperscript{410} lest they cease;\textsuperscript{411} and should they cease, not any one could withhold them after Him.\textsuperscript{412} Verily He is ever Forbearing, Forgiving.

42. (روفس... نغورا) And they\textsuperscript{413} swore by Allah with a most solemn oath, that if there came a warner unto them, they would surely be better guided than any of the other communities.\textsuperscript{414} Then when there did come to them a warner, it increased in them naught save aversion—\textsuperscript{415}

\textsuperscript{403} O men of the present generation!.
\textsuperscript{404} (to the generations past).
\textsuperscript{405} (in this world).
\textsuperscript{406} (and ruin in the Hereafter).
\textsuperscript{407} (O Prophet!).
\textsuperscript{408} \textit{i.e.}, the pagans.
\textsuperscript{409} (to authorise their practice).
\textsuperscript{410} The purport is: ‘traditional’ religion of polytheism has no basis whatsoever either in reason or in Scriptures.
\textsuperscript{411} (by His power).
411. (to function). God is not only the Creator or Originator of the universe but also its constant Regulator, Sustainer, and Preserver.

412. (if He were to withdraw His support).

413. i.e., the Makkani pagans.

414. 'The great body of Koraish were careless and indifferent. . . . The more susceptible amongst the citizens listened, perhaps with attention at the first. But when pressed to throw in their lot with the Inquirers, they would answer: "It is well enough for Jews and Christians to follow the purer faith thou speakest of. They, we know, had prophets with a message from heaven. If to us also, a prophet had been sent, we should doubtless have followed his directions, and been as devout and spiritual in our worship as the Jews and Christians" (Muir, op. cit., pp. 42-43).

415. (from truth).
43. through their stiff neckedness in the land and their plotting of evil. And the plotting of evil only infolds its author. Do they then wait only the dispensation of the ancients? And thou wilt not find in the dispensation of Allah a change, nor wilt thou find in the dispensation of Allah a turning off.

44. Have they not journeyed on the earth, so that they might see how has been the end of those before them, although they were stronger in power than these? Allah is not such that aught in the heavens and the earth can frustrate Him. Verily, He is ever Knowing, Potent.

45. Were Allah to take mankind to task for what they earn. He would not leave a moving creature on its back, but He puts them off till a term assigned, then when that term arrives — then, verily, Allah is ever a Beholder of His bondmen.

416. (against Islam and the Prophet). The conjunction ‘and’ couples ‘their plotting of evil’ with ‘aversion’.

417. i.e., the Arab pagans.

418. i.e., the way in which God dealt with the disbelieving nations of old — destruction in the last resort.

419. (O Prophet!).

420. ‘so that the offenders may escape unpunished.’ (Th).

421. ‘so that instead of offenders the innocent ones may happen to be punished.’ (Th).

422. The one lesson of all history is that evil, in the long run, has resulted in evil.

423. So He knows how best to effect His plans.

424. i.e., Able to effect His plans.

425. (immediately).

426. Even the believers would then have been removed, for in the universal Scheme of God, there is no meaning in populating the world with the obedient alone. The world, as it is constituted, demands that good, without its counterpart evil, should have no sense.

427. (and an Awarder of reward and punishment in justice).
